Nixon Headline Flashed to Jury

Colonist-Los Angeles Times Service

LOS ANGELES — Charles Manson disrupted the Tate-La Bianca trial Tuesday by showing jurors a Los Angeles Times headline reading, "Manson guilty, Nixon declares."

The shaggy-haired cultist then stroked his bearded chin and smiled pleasantly at three of his "girls" — co-defendants Susan Atkins, Patricia Krenwinkel and Leslie Van Houten.

By the time the resulting legal problem had been handled, Superior Court Judge Charles Older had questioned each juror individually and had sentenced defence attorney Daye Shinn to three nights in jail for contempt of court.

The jurist did not say what effect, if any, he thought the incident might have on the trial of Manson and the others for murder, but the defence indicated a motion for a mistrial may be made today.

The disruption developed just when it appeared the court had successfully manoeuvred past the problem created by President Nixon's remarks about the case in Denver Monday.

Nixon said Manson was "guilty, directly or indirectly, of eight murders without reason," then amended his remarks in Washington to say he had not intended to comment on Manson's guilt or innocence.

Despite the president's later word, however, defence attorneys used his initial comments as grounds for motions for dismissal of charges, a mistrial, a continuance, an investigation and censure of Nixon.

All were denied Tuesday morning.

Older explained he had ordered sheriff's deputies to take special precautions to avoid exposure of the jury to Nixon's statement.

Bailiffs whitened windows of the jury's bus, chose a special route to and from the hotel where the panel is sequestered to avoid newsstands and made certain jurors did not have access to

Russian Ship Ordered Arrested

Public Inquest On Thursday

The Russian freighter Sergey Yesenin Tuesday was ordered placed under arrest in Vancouver harbor as a result of its collision Sunday with the British Columbia ferry Queen of Victoria, which killed three ferry passengers.

Lawyer John Bird of Vancouver, acting for the B.C. highways department, filed a writ at the Vancouver court house and the Exchequer Court of Canada issued a warrant ordering the marshal of the B.C. admiralty district to place the ship under arrest.

The warrant had not been served by late Tuesday night and lawyers said they had been instructed not to serve it until directed to. It was not known when that might be.

Attorney General Leslie Peterson said in Victoria that Bird has been instructed "to take appropriate action in respect to the collision."

He confirmed that the government's objective in taking legal action is the recovery of damages, but he refused to say how much they might come to.

★ ★ ★

"We have a preliminary estimate," Peterson said, "but I am not at liberty to make it public in light of the action we are taking."

The attorney-general also declined to answer questions about whether the passenger vessel may legally have held right-of-way over the freighter in Active Pass.

"I have some views on that," he said, "but again I do not wish to discuss them while this action is under way. It is just in its initial stages."

Asked if the B.C. government might ask Ottawa to introduce a law or regulation barring freighters from Active Pass, Peterson again said: "No comment."

The warrant orders that the ship be held pending further direction from the provincial government, which operates the ferry.

The government writ also seeks compensation for damages sustained by the ferry through what the highways department claims was negligent navigation by those in charge of the Soviet vessel.

The warrant orders the officers of the vessel to appear in the admiralty division of the exchequer court within seven days.

The 14,700-ton freighter knifed into the ferry — carrying 626 passengers and a crew of 50 — in Active Pass, a narrow passage among the gulf islands.

Premier Accepts Plan, But . . .

No Binding Pact, No Israel Pullout

From UPI, AP

Israel formally announced acceptance Tuesday of U.S. proposals for peace in the Middle East, but Premier Golda Meir said not one Israeli soldier would leave occupied Arab territory until a "binding" peace treaty is signed. Officials in Washington expressed the hope that there could be a cease-fire within a week.

While the first moves toward it were being made, however, the air war went on. Israeli planes attacked along the Suez Canal for the 76th straight day.

Egypt and Jordan already have accepted the U.S. plan submitted by State Secretary William Rogers last June 19. It calls for a three-month cease-fire and reactivation of the peace mission of United Nations mediator Gunnar Jarring.

In New York, UN Secretary General Thant conferred with Jarring on the mechanics of a cease-fire and said "there is a real chance" for important advances toward peace between Arabs and Israelis. Jarring scheduled private meetings during the day with the envoys of Israel, Egypt, Jordan and Lebanon to work out details for the resumption of his mission.

The so-called Rogers plan, however, has split the Arab world and divided the Israelis. The hawkish right-wing Gahal party resigned from Israel's National Unity Coalition government to protest acceptance, which it said would commit Israel to surrender Arab territory captured in the 1967 war.

Iraq, backed by Alberia and Syria, denounced Egypt's acceptance as a betrayal of the Arab cause. Major Arab guerrilla organizations also have condemned Cairo and vowed to continue the fight until all of Palestine has been liberated.

Diplomatic efforts were underway to heal the breach in the Arab ranks. Premier Col. Moammar Al-Khadafy of Libya returned to Cairo Tuesday from talks with Iraqi and Syrian leaders in Baghdad and Damascus.

Fun in Far North

Premiers Warned

Pollution's End Starts at Home

● Premiers will meet in Victoria in 1971. Page 7

WINNIPEG (CP) — The 11th Canadian premiers' conference ended Tuesday with a stiff warning from one of its own committees that government must clean up its own municipal wastes if it expects industry to do the same.

The warning came in a terse, six-page pollution report by a committee of the Canadian Council of Resource Ministers, an inter-government body established by the federal and provincial governments.

It recommended that a declaration be made by "all governments" that the responsibility for proper waste management lies with those who produce the pollution.

"It must be declared that this recommendation is no less for a private individual than it is for industry and for every level of government," the report states while urging common approaches to exchanging information and the planning of pollution-control programs.

Governments should set a high example in handling of wastes to the extent of imposing deadlines on projects to clean up pollution-causing practices.

"If there is one area where there should be collaboration, it is pollution," said Quebec Premier Robert Bourassa, who played a leading role in the closed, two-day conference, his first.

★ ★ ★

But he agreed with Nova Scotia Premier G. I. Smith that pollution was only one of several problems faced by the provinces.

Smith, while acknowledging the seriousness of pollution, wondered "is it more important than education, or industrial development?"

'Hardsite' Heir to Safeguard

New Missile Plan Hatched

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The U.S. Army has already begun work on another anti-ballistic missile system, this one called "Hardsite," to succeed the Safeguard ABM if it should become obsolete, it was learned Tuesday.

The new system — now in what the army calls the "hot idea stage" — would be dedicated exclusively to defending Minuteman missiles against a Soviet pre-emptive strike.

It would consist of smaller and cheaper radars and computers than those being used by the Safeguard system. But its total expense would be as great, if not greater, than the estimated $6 to $10 billion for Safeguard because it would require more components.

The existence of the Hardsite system was disclosed April 23 in secret testimony by army research and development officials before the House appropriations committee. The testimony was censored and released as part of a thick volume on defence appropriations late last month. Opponents of the ABM called it to the attention of newsmen Tuesday.

★ ★ ★

Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield, meantime, endorsed a proposed ban on expansion of the Safeguard to new sites, but made it clear he would not support any effort to hinder development of the ABM at the two existing locations.

The army has already spent $6 million on Hardsite and has asked congress this year for $58 million to accelerate work on the system.

Dr. J. B. Gilstein, director of the project, said the system would consist of radars, data processors and high-speed sprint missiles. Each of these units would defend "a smaller portion of the battlefield than now assigned to the Safeguard system, whereas the Safeguard now defends a squadron at a time," he said.

"By being given the assignment to handle a smaller portion of the battlefield, the whole engagement becomes easier for the technology to handle and, at the same time,

Rebels Free Judge

MANAGUA, Nicaragua (UPI) — Four young men and a woman dressed as a nurse tried to kidnap Alfredo Pellas, millionaire sugar mill owner and banker, near his home Tuesday but were frightened away by Pellas' 18-year-old son.

Youths Attack Troops

BELFAST (Reuters) — Rioting broke out in Belfast Tuesday night for the sixth straight night as about 100 youths in a Roman Catholic area of the Ulster capital atacked British troops.

Army helicopters flew low over the embattled Ballymurphy housing development, where fighting was reported in a maze of small streets and alleys. The Ballymurphy area was also the scene of intense rioting Monday night.

Youths attacked troops with stones and bottles Tuesday night. Special "snatch squads" of soldiers raced into the crowds in an attempt to grab ringleaders.

Romney Wife Holds Lead

DETROIT (UPI) — Lenore Romney held a steady but thin lead Tuesday night in her battle for the Michigan Republican nomination to oppose two-term Senator Philip Hart in November. She is the wife of U.S. Secretary of Housing and Urban Development George Romney, a former governor of Michigan.

Despite Delays

Hope Glimmers In Postal Talks

OTTAWA (CP) — A rosy speck glimmered from the gray expanse of the postal dispute Tuesday but negotiators will have to wait until next Monday before they can try to nurse it into a glow.

"It's the first time we've had a discussion like that in a long time," reported Roger Decarie, co-chairman of the Council of Postal Unions, following a 1½-hour meeting with treasury board negotiators in the morning.

A further meeting, however, will not be held until the start of next week. Intervening on Thursday will be a hearing by the public services staff relations board into a council charge that the post office has illegally locked out employees in retaliation for rotating strike activity.

Discussion Tuesday involved the job security issue on which the unions have claimed they must have satisfaction before any settlement of the 11-month dispute can be reached.

A principal concern for the unions has been that work performed by their membership in the past should continue to be done by them and not shifted to other bargaining units in the post office as a result of reorganizations.

Strike action, meanwhile, was confined to Kitchener, Ont., and Baie Comeau, Que.

Coast Ravaged

Twister Kills 9 in France

BORDEAUX, France (Reuters) — A tornado ravaged the coast of southwest France Tuesday, killing at least nine persons and injuring 29.

Another 11 persons were reported missing.

It was not known if any foreigners were among preliminary casualty lists. Fourteen persons were reported badly injured.

The tornado began as a 15-minute thunderstorm accompanied by strong winds Tuesday afternoon. It caused havoc along the coast of the Landes and Gironde regions, then howled inland.

GORDE HUNTER

What Progress?

HAVE the temerity to stand up for altruistic causes such as save the trees and be ready to field the hoary old cliche, "well, you can't stop progress, y'know."

Why can't we stop progress? What is so all-fired, censored magnificent about progress that we would meekly give up something enjoyable for? Like little lambs we accept the so-called inevitable.

PROGRESS is mile on mile of concrete ribbon, of twisting, confusing overpasses, interchanges and underpasses that leave the 98-cent body in a state of frazzled nerve ends after a day's drive.

It's jumbo jet-liners carrying hundreds of passengers at great speeds to terminals already hopelessly inadequate for the obsolete aircraft. It's a pellmell, time-saving flight that puts you down in the midst of the biggest luggage snafu in the history of mankind. Your metabolism groans under the strain of rapid time change, but you got there faster, didn't you?

Progress is credit card buying on beutifully easy terms. Have your cake now, get indigestion making the payments you can't really afford.

PROGRESS is a permissiveness that allows nihilistic monsters to sack and pillage our universities or anything else that draws their ire. Don't be too harsh on them, you might damage their psyche.

It's a beat-the-Jones struggle for $50,000, four-bedroom, three-bathroom homes on half acres and if you tell me they enjoy the ulcer wearing mortgages more than the little guy enjoys his paid-for bungalow on a trim 50-foot lot, I'll tell you to check with your nearest head shrinker.

IT'S ALSO the slow decimation of park lands in the name of dire need for road joining. Of town planners who would even hint at putting four lanes of road through the sheer delight of a Beacon Hill Park.

Progress is mining companies pouring their effluent into clear waters, of industrial concerns belching all sorts of poisons into our air. We can't swim or fish the waters, can't drink the water, have trouble breathing the air, but the economy is booming and that's all that matters, isn't it?

IT'S THE turning away from religion in favor of material gods. It's the eggheads telling us there is no supreme being and that the Bible is simply a put on. All I know is that the world was a better place to live in when more people did believe in something more than the almighty buck.

Progress is a 400-horsepower, 140-mph automobile the better with which to fill the morgues. Long, sleek, chrome-covered progress and a bumper that can't withstand a ten-mile an hour crash.

Progress is the hydrogen bomb, a deadly nerve gas, napalm, an hallucinogenic drug. It's military spending on an unbelievable scale.

★ ★ ★

PROGRESS is pornographic movies and a VD rate unequalled in man's memory. It's the obscenity of organized crime and of no-questions-asked government waste.

Progress is more money for less work and a don't-give-a-damn attitude for pride in that work.

It's a complete breakdown in the respect for the rights, even the lives, of others.

PROGRESS is speed up the world, fly to the moon, try Mars next. Get rid of the railways, they're too slow, too comfortable. Hurry up the crop processes with powerful fertilizers and watch the grain stack up in unsold mountains.

You can't stop progress? Time somebody tried before we progress ourselves right off the face of the earth.

Pigeon Toes Curable

By G. C. THOSTESON, MD

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Would you discuss pigeon toes in a young child (age 3)? Cause, cure, methods of treatment, seriousness, etc? — Mrs. E.C.R.

Pigeon toes means toeing-in, which can occur in both feet or just one. The disorder could have been due to the position of the foot while the fetus is still in the womb. A commoner cause is a rotation of the tibia — the big bone of the lower leg. The whole leg may be rotated inward, or the rotation may only be enough to make the foot toe in. Unduly tight muscles in the foot may also cause this inward twist to the foot.

Generally, the defect begins to correct itself when the child starts walking. If not, then manipulation of the foot may be required, and corrective shoes, with appropriate heel or sole wedges, may also be necessary.

In severe cases, consult an orthopedist (bone specialist) to determine the cause and then to indicate what kind of treatment, and how much, to undertake.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Last year I developed shingles. It was awful. I had one of the best doctors in the city. He changed my medicine every visit but nothing helped.

I still have some pain in my right side, but find that taking a bath in a tub of warm water with a half cup of baking soda relieves the pain and enables me to get a good night's sleep. — L.B.

Patients who expect instant relief from shingles and begin going from doctor to doctor seeking it, are disappointed and waste money.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: My boy friend claims that after a vasectomy a male has to take hormones or he will become feminized. I doubt this. — D.J.G.

Your boy friend is very much mistaken. A vasectomy is a means of sterilization, because, with the cutting and tying of the duct, the male sperm is prevented from being released.

The operation does not interfere with the activity of glands or production of hormones, so it is not necessary to take hormones after the surgery.

□

Note to Mrs. V.S.: No, it is not necessary to have a spleen. Plenty of people are walking around after having it removed. The spleen is very soft tissue, and for that reason it is virtually impossible to sew up a tear or rupture in it. To prevent continued bleeding, the spleen can be removed, tying off the connecting blood vessels.

"I'm satisfied that there has been no exposure to what the president said," Older concluded. "I see no reason for taking further action at this time."

★ ★ ★

Manson changed that shortly after the beginning of the afternoon sessions when attorneys were talking to the judge at the bench and the audience had settled into the dull routine of waiting.

"Your honor," said deputy district attorney Aaron Stovitz.

Bailiff William Murray grabbed a newspaper from Manson's hand and quickly folded it. Judge Older almost immediately called a recess. The question was whether the jurors had seen the newspaper.

★ ★ ★

As Older began to examine each juror individually in open court, away from the others, it quickly developed that some of them had.

"Yes," said juror No. 1, Mrs. Thelma McKenzie. "I saw Mr. Manson raise a newspaper in front of him."

★ ★ ★

Did she see what the headline said? The judge asked.

"I think it said Manson guilty (pause) Nixon declares or something," she said.

Under the judge's examination, six regular jurors and five alternates said they had seen the headline well enough to catch its meaning. Six regular jurors and one alternate said they had not.

All but one of the jurors stated unequivocally they would not be influenced by what the headline said. They took an oath to reach a decision impartially, based solely on the evidence.

The other juror, William McBride, No. 3 in the regular panel, said he did not think he would be influenced consciously but that it would be difficult to say he would not be influenced subconsciously.

After the jurors had been questioned, Judge Older took up the matter of how the paper happened to be near Manson.

Stovitz had stated that he had seen Manson take it from beneath books carried to court by the defendant's attorney, Irving Kanarek.

The jurist reminded the lawyers that in the morning session he had ordered them to remove from their table all newspapers containing reports of President Nixon's remarks. hold Kanarek in contempt of

He appeared to be ready to court for willfully disobeying that order when Shinn, attorney for Miss Atkins, spoke up and was sworn in.

Shinn testified he had looked at a sports page at lunch time and that apparently the front section of the Times had been in a stack of papers he had taken from atop a file cabinet.

"Mr. Kanarek had nothing to do with it," he said.

Judge Older said Shinn had disrupted and jeopardized the trial and held the lawyer to be in contempt for a "Willful, deliberate violation" of the order.

her seven-month-old son, Peter, were killed as they sat in a car on a deck of the 4,900-ton ferry. Sheila Taylor, 17, of Allendale, N.J., was killed in a sun-deck lounge.

Eight others were injured.

Vancouver Coroner Glen McDonald announced Tuesday that a public inquest will open Thursday. The inquiry jury will view amateur films of the accident, already studied by investigators for the federal transport department and the provincial ferry authority, which runs the ferries for the highways department.

A spokesman for the coroner's office said up to 30 witnesses could be called, including some of the freighter's crew members.

Peterson said Tuesday it appeared from preliminary reports that the freighter, carrying a Canadian pilot, "swung wide to avoid commercial fishing vessels in Active Pass," sending it into the ferry.

Movies shot by Ed Johnson, who was fishing nearby at the time of the accident, show the freighter moving into the pass in mid channel, about 200 yards from Helen Point. Between it and the shore were two seine boats, both hugging the shore line.

RCMP said they feared the death toll could rise as ferry passengers arrive at their destinations and missing persons are reported. No passenger list was kept.

B.C. Ferries said passengers whose cars or other property were lost or damaged would be compensated. About 20 cars were damaged, half of them beyond repair.

In the meantime, the funeral arrangements were announced in Victoria Tuesday for Mrs. Hammond and her son.

The service will be from McCall Bros., 1400 Vancouver Street, at 3 p.m. Thursday.

The government leaders sped through five of the seven items on the agenda during a cruise of Lake Winnipeg Monday and were able to adjourn at noon Tuesday instead of Wednesday when the conference had been due to end.

Among the chief recommendations of the pollution report, the result of a year's study by the 15-man committee, was for creation of a central clearing house and data bank for exchange of information, a special intergovernment body to act as a buffer between the governments for dealing with specific problems, and the holding of a conference this fall to explore fully environmental management programs.

The buffer committee could also seek to envisage problems that may crop up in the future, and suggest programs to deal with them.

The council also suggested that a single-agency approach be taken by the provinces, a step that many provinces have already taken.

In view of the report, the premiers agreed to strengthen the council so that it can act as a national environmental body, and agreed also to increase its budget if necessary.

Manitoba Premier Ed Schreyer said at a press briefing at the close of the conference that the government leaders were unable to reach a consensus on interprovincial exchanges of civil servants.

However, there was agreement that salary guidelines for civil servants could not be universally applied, and that pension portability "was an objective to be sought."

Concern was expressed about rapidly-rising provincial program costs without a corresponding rise in revenues. It was agreed that "a fundamental adjustment of the relationship between provincial and federal expenditures and revenues is required."

Trudeau Snaps Garter

WHITEHORSE, Y.T. (CP) — Prime Minister Trudeau slipped a red garter from a young lady's leg to qualify as the Yukon's "best darn garter watcher" after arriving in the territorial capital from Watson Lake for a six-hour stay Tuesday.

Trudeau was met at the airport by about 200 people, including Whitehorse Mayor Bert Wybrew.

The prime minister went directly to a city park where about 300 people gathered for a picnic under sunny skies with the temperatures in the high 70s.

A local band, the R and B's, A local band, the R and B's, blasted rock music through the park while Trudeau walked leisurely through the crowd, chatting and shaking hands.

A group of girls, dressed as Klondike saloon dancers, finished a can-can on a small stage and one of them, Debbie Murdoch, 20, walked down into the crowd to lead Trudeau to the stage.

An announcer said the prime minister had been selected the best darn garter watcher in the Yukon but he must take the garter from Mrs. Murdoch's leg.

The prime minister slipped off the garter and was kissed by Mrs. Murdoch before he quickly returned to a light lunch he had been eating.

The Iraqi delegation, believed to be seeking Soviet military and economic aid, arrived in the Soviet capital Tuesday.

In Ottawa the embassy of the United Arab Republic was forcibly occupied Tuesday by a group of 35 persons protesting Cairo's decision to accept the U.S. peace proposals.

After walking in an peacefully taking over the three-storey building at 10:30 a.m. EDT, they spent the day discussing the war situation with Arab Ambassador Mohammed Shukri and his officials.

Washington sources say Israeli jet aircraft clashed with Egyptian planes piloted by Russians over the Suez Canal area on at least two occasions within the last 10 days with indications the Russians lost one air skirmish.

The sources described two incidents, the first of which was disclosed to the Israeli Knesset (parliament) July 27 but which was immediately hushed up by the Israeli government.

The second clash, United States sources said, came July 30 when four MiG-21 jets were downed over the Suez Canal area. The sources say evidence indicates two of the MiGs were flown by Russians, and possibly all four.

since they are given a smaller assignment, it is far cheaper than the Safeguard components and we can afford to proliferate them," Gilstein said. "This complicates the enemy task."

The Hardsite was being developed, he said, as a hedge against the possibility that the Soviets would design a multiple warhead for its huge SS9 missiles that could carry more than three re-entry vehicles, and at the same time would increase the accuracy of its smaller SS11 missiles.

Colehour Joins Denver Broncos

DENVER (AP) — Denver Broncos of the National Football League have announced the signing of Corey Colehour, a 210-pound running back from the University of North Dakota.

Colehour played quarterback for Edmonton Eskimos of the Canadian Football League in 1968 and 1969. He was cut by Edmonton last week.

NOTICE
Patricia Bay Highway

As a result of the present construction program the Patricia Bay Highway will be closed to vehicular traffic between Royal Oak Avenue and Falaise Crescent for several months, starting within two weeks. At about the same time direct access to the Patricia Bay from Royal Oak Avenue will also be closed and traffic redirected over a new service road lying east of the Patricia Bay Highway and connecting to Quadra Street. Pedestrian traffic between Royal Oak Avenue and the West Saanich Road will be maintained.

Northbound Glanford Avenue, Quadra Street and Patricia Bay Highway traffic will be diverted along the West Saanich Road to a new service road west of the Patricia Bay Highway which rejoins it at a point opposite the Royal Oak Burial Park. Southbound traffic will use the same route. Access will be maintained to the Royal Oak Burial Park and Falaise Crescent.

In the accompanying sketch plan the shaded sections represent the portions of the Patricia Bay Highway and Royal Oak Avenue to be closed and the dotted lines, the new service roads. These will be paved. Exact dates of the closure will be advertised shortly.

It is expected that most of the time the service roads will carry traffic without difficulty but it is possible some delays may occur during rush hours. Commuters and tourists, therefore, make allowances.

Mom Took Fertility Drug, Gives Birth to Sextuplets

ROME (UPI) — A 35-year-old woman who had been taking fertility drugs gave birth Tuesday night to three boys and three girls after 11 years of childless marriage. Attending doctors said they believed it was the first sextuplet birth in Italy.

Physicians at Rome's Umberto I Policlinic Hospital said the babies, all born within 35 minutes, were three months premature and had very narrow chests and seemed to be fighting for breath. The mother, Mrs. Antonio Petrone, was reported in good condition.

Celia Roars Death, Devastation

CORPUS CHRISTI, Tex. (AP) — Hurricane Celia was dying in the mountains of Mexico Tuesday after moving across Texas and leaving this resort city of 335,000 devastated and without gas or electricity.

The hurricane, worst of the season, left 31 known dead — five in Cuba, 14 in Florida and 12 in Texas. The deaths in Florida were blamed on undertows and high waters caused by Celia as she shipped through the Caribbean.

Officials said 90 per cent of downtown Corpus Christi was destroyed or badly damaged, with 70 per cent of the residential areas similarly wrecked. The picture was the same in surrounding towns.

In Washington, President Nixon declared a major disaster area in Texas, authorizing federal funds to help with relief measures. The amount is still being determined.

★ ★ ★

Nixon's declaration came as the American Insurance Association estimated $233 million worth of insured property had been damaged or destroyed by Celia.

The storm, packing winds of 145 to 160 miles an hour, ripped into Corpus Christi Bay Monday night and then swept across Del Rio Pass, 250 miles northwest.

Corpus Christi Mayor Jack Blackmon, surveying the devastation, attributed some of the city's problems to the fact that the weather bureau first estimated winds of only 90 m.p.h., then 115 m.p.h., and never went as high as the 145 m.p.h. reported Monday night and which were found later to have been 160 m.p.h.

Five victims were found in Corpus Christi.

Armed guards, national guardsmen, sheriff's deputies and state highway patrolmen were almost everywhere. There was an armed national guardsman on almost every corner in Corpus Christi.

Telephone and electric service in many areas was out.

There was no water and no sanitation in many places. Gasoline was limited. Some looting was reported.

Some buildings appeared to have exploded. Others lost complete walls so that they appeared to be an open-sided doll's house with everything inside intact.

In Aransas Pass, City Manager Gay Walker said the city had sent out a call for blood plasma and snakebite serum.

Walker said that if minor as well as major damage were included, the city had suffered "100 per cent damage to commercial and residential buildings."

"Hurricane Celia may prove to be the most disastrous storm to hit the Texas Gulf coast in modern times," said Gov. Preston Smith.

U.S. Over Cambodia

Air Support Widens

SAIGON (AP) — American officials confirmed Tuesday that the United States Air Force is answering Cambodian requests for help by sending up to 50 fighter-bombers on daily raids in Cambodia.

Associated Press correspondent T. Jeff Williams reported Monday from Kompong Speu that U.S. Phantom planes had been dropping bombs and napalm on Viet Cong and North Vietnamese forces who had held Highway 4 since Saturday, cutting off the Cambodian capital of Phnom Penh from Cambodia's only oil refinery on the south coast.

Williams reported Tuesday that Highway 4 had been reopened by Cambodian forces.

The U.S. command had declared that American attacks in Cambodia are aimed at "enemy troops or material which could threaten U.S. and other free world lives in South Vietnam."

"If the Cambodians say there is an enemy troop concentration or supply area at a given point," one source said Tuesday, "and U.S. bombers go in to interdict; this seems well within president Nixon's ground rules."

On June 3, Nixon set guidelines for remaining U.S. military activity in Cambodia after the withdrawal of American ground troops there — a move finished June 30.

The president said there would be "air missions to interdict the movement of enemy troops and materiel where I find it is necessary to protect the lives and security of our men in South Vietnam."

His stated policy seemed to rule out direct air support for Cambodian forces, but was ambiguous enough to allow a wide latitude of interpretation by U.S. field commanders.

Meanwhile, Cambodian troops patrolling Highway 4, 50 miles southwest of Phnom Penh, found the bodies of 11 civilians, one apparently a European, killed by a Viet Cong ambush reported holding Skoun, 40 miles northeast of Phnom Penh.

Vietnam

Pullout Target Now '72

Colonist-Los Angeles Times Service

WASHINGTON — Pentagon officials said Tuesday that U.S. forces in Vietnam will halt all offensive combat operations by next May 1, fighting thereafter only to protect themselves and their bases.

They said all American troops, now totaling 406,700, will be withdrawn from Vietnam by the end of 1972, except for about 20,000 who will remain as military advisers.

This information, the officials said, is being passed on to members of congress and others by Defence Secretary Melvin Laird. It amounts, together with other milestone dates, to a specific withdrawal timetable — something administration critics have been demanding for months.

U.S. May Drop Gas Dumping

From Reuters-UPI

WASHINGTON — The state department said Tuesday the United States Army might change its plans to dump 3,000 tons of highly lethal nerve gas off the Florida coast if the Bahamas makes an official protest.

Meanwhile, reports from Hamilton, Bermuda, said the Bermudian government had lodged a formal protest to the U.S. government about the proposed dumping.

The protest was made throught the British government via the colony's governor, Lord Mortonmere. It requested postponement of the army plans until an international body investigates the consequences.

The disclosure that the U.S. government might change its plans in the face of an official protest came as congressmen clashed over the controversial proposal.

Representative L. Mendel Rivers (Dem. S.C.), powerful chairman of the House of Representatives armed services committee, said he had no objections to the army plans.

"These rockets must be disposed of," he said after army officials had briefed committee members. "The army has done the best they can . . . and as far as I'm concerned this terminates the matter."

John Rinelander, state department dupty legal adviser, mentioned the possible effects of an official protest when the House merchant marine and fishery subcommittee resumed hearings into army plans to dispose of the nerve gas, contained in rockets encased in steel and concrete blocks.

The proposed site is 165 miles northwest of the Bahamas and 270 miles east of Florida. The dumping originally was scheduled to start Aug. 10.

Gov. Claude Kirk of Florida said Tuesday he will sue to block the plan unless the U.S. army can provide better assurance that dumping nerve gas rockets in the ocean off Cape Kennedy won't harm Florida.

Amnesty or Exile

Ransom Demand Uruguay Dilemma

MONTEVIDEO (UPI) — Ransom demands by guerrilla kidnappers of an American and a Brazilian diplomat divided the Uruguayan government Tuesday on the best means of obtaining their release without losing political face.

The government already has refused to respond directly or negotiate with the kidnappers, members of the leftist Tupamaros organization. The guerrillas have demanded the release of all political prisoners in Uruguay in exchange for Dan Mitrione, 50, a U.S. adviser to the Uruguayan police, and Brazilian Vice-Consul Aloysio Mares Dias Gomide, 41.

Government souces said President Jorge Pacheco Areco was studying the draft of a proposed amendment to the Penal Code that would send all political prisoners into exile.

The opposition Blanco Party, however, introduced a proposal in congress Tuesday that would grant amnesty to all political prisoners and automatically free them. Congressional sources said an amendment to the Penal Code, if introduced in congress, had a better chance of passage than the amnesty proposal.

Hands Off Our Park

ALMOST INEVITABLY when the petition on tree-removal on redeveloped Victoria streets is presented, it will be challenged by some stickler on the grounds that many of the signers are not Victoria residents or property-owners, but outsiders from beyond the city's borders. But there are times when Victoria's mayor and aldermen must consider themselves responsible to the whole regional community — particularly when they are not being urged to spend more of the city taxpayers' money —and this is one of them. Everyone who lives in the community has an interest in the preservation of its beauty.

A more outstanding example is Beacon Hill Park, now apparently under the distant threat of having a four-lane extension of Michigan Street driven through it. Although the city taxpayers alone shoulder the cost of its maintenance, it is commonly and understandably considered an asset of everyone. We all say when travelling, or almost all, not that we are from Oak Bay or Saanich or Esquimalt, but from Victoria. In the same way, it's our beautiful park, no matter where in the region we dwell.

Perhaps indeed Beacon Hill should be paid for on a regional basis, and some day it may be. But the fact is that the standard of the park might go down on a regional budget, with development elsewhere competing for limited funds, and this no one would want to see. It is disagreeable enough that because Victoria city council itself cut back hard on its budget this year, the number of flower beds in the park will be reduced by almost half in the fall, to be replaced with grass and shrubs which require less maintenance. This, however, may and should be only a temporary setback.

But a four-lane (or any) new road further fragmenting the park would be a permanent scar, besides being a more serious precedent than the extension of Superior Street to the north which went through not entirely as a new traffic link but partly in the guise of a new park entrance. In this instance too we believe all Victorians, in the larger sense, are entitled to say "hands off our park" — and to be heard at Victoria city hall.

On the eve of his retirement last week, Victoria Parks Director Herb Warren, to whom great credit must go for much that delights senses in the city, offered this advice: "Keep out polluting industry; don't touch the beauty we have; stay away from construction of freeways at the expense of parks."

No one to whom the Victoria region is home should be considered ineligible to say a loud and echoing amen.

Too Early to Relax

THE CANADIAN PUBLIC should not be misled by optimistic reports from Ottawa suggesting that inflation has been controlled.

It may have been braked, but the same runaway potential is there that carried the price-wage spiral to the point where it was simply insupportable for fixed incomes at low levels and a worry and a burden to everyone.

A week ago, Dr. John Young, chairman of the prices and incomes commission, calculated the raging inflation of the 1960s had been temporarily checked. Mark that word "temporarily." And he added it would be premature to dismiss his commission's recommendation of a 6 per cent ceiling on wage and price increases.

Elsewhere in Ottawa, however, there seems an inclination to accept the reassuring aspect of Dr. Young's summation but to ignore the implicit warning. All that tough talk — and Prime Minister Pierre Trudeau's was the toughest — about "squeezing the tax lemon" and 6 per cent ceilings and enforced economies seemingly has become muted. It wasn't politically popular.

"Now, Ottawa seems to be quietly and gracefully backing away from the concept of controls," writes Vincent Egan, a Toronto commentator. "The reasoning is that inflation is not as bad at it was, so controls can be forgotten."

This would be a dangerous assumption.

Canada has been plagued for years by the over-spending of the federal authority, and this has been a contributing factor in the creation of an inflationary economy. Mr. Trudeau has promised it would stop. And all his ministers have vowed that they would hold the line. If they have tried it appears they haven't tried hard enough.

Already, in the first three months of the current fiscal year, federal expenditures are up by nearly 9 per cent over the corresponding period in 1969.

They are up, reports Canadian Press, in every major spending category except family allowances, which are down fractionally.

The fact that revenues are up 9.5 per cent is no justification for relaxing the austerity pose, and certainly no excuse for extravagance — particularly in view of Edgar Benson's plan to hit the taxpayer again under the terms of his odious White Paper.

But if total revenues are up to $3.75 billion in the first quarter from $2.99 last year, compare them with the corporation pre-tax situation to get a clearer picture. Corporation profits in the first three months of the calendar year were running at an annual rate of $7,844 million, down from $8,160 million a year ago.

"It is clear," writes Mr. Egan, 'that our current economic problem won't be solved by expecting business to acquiesce in an ever diminishing rate of profitability. Owners, he concludes, "expect a reasonable return . . . and their efforts to achieve it will lead to still more price increases."

If the government has grown complacent and is already back in the customary free-and-easy spending mood, if the effort to impose restraints is abandoned, and business decides the time is ripe to pass on those production cost increases to the consumer, there is danger of a new round of interacting inflationary moves which this country simply cannot tolerate.

Ottawa Offbeat

Alan MacEachen's 'Flexibility'

By RICHARD JACKSON, Colonist Ottawa Bureau

THE trouble with Immigration Minister Allan MacEachen is that he's all heart.

Some rather unusual people have managed to make it into Canada as landed immigrants since he embraced what, in a prepared speech, he described as "a more flexible policy."

To read his text, you understand his meaning of the word "flexible" is, as he puts it, "the acceptance of a cross-section of newcomers different in many respects from the traditional arrivals from the British Isles and Europe."

As a result of "flexibility," he has revealed, there are fewer of the "traditional arrivals" coming and more of the "cross-sections of different newcomers."

* * *

Fewer Britons, Italians, Germans, Czechs, Yugolavs, and other western and eastern Europeans, and rapidly increasing numbers of West Indians, Asians and Americans.

Some of the West Indians have engaged in such costly temper tantrums as putting the axe and torch to that $2 million computer at Sir George Williams University.

Some of the Asians, self-proclaimed Maoists, trying to transfer the Vietnam war to the streets of Montreal, have been ordered deported, but have "resisted," as they put it, official efforts to persuade them to depart.

Some of the Americans have been draft-dodgers and deserters who persist in getting themselves into court on all manner of charges ranging from robbery with violence, criminal assault, bigamy and leading violent demonstrations in street confrontations with police.

* * *

Allan MacEachen, more in sorrow than in anger, concedes in this speech that with "flexibility" has come a pretty undesirable element.

But he pleads for understanding.

"It should not be a source of surprise," he says, "that some of these who come from other countries" — this "cross-section of different newcomers," as he terms them — "share other views, other approaches and are concerned about other issues" (such as agitation and not infrequently demonstrating violently for black power, Mao, Castro, and other would-be leaders of hoped-for world revolution.)

* * *

This saddens Allan MacEachen, and he is moved to gently lecture them:

"Nevertheless, we in Canada have a right to expect that from whatever country they may come, they respect our institutions and contribute to our way of life.

"We must teach them that under majority rule, change is brought about, not by violence, but by a free choice of an informed electorate.

"We in Canada do not subscribe to any philosophy whereby the few attempt by violence to impose their will on the many.

"That is not the kind of democracy we have in Canada."

"We expect those who come here to abide by the rules of parliamentary democracy; and if they do not, then they will not be welcome in Canada."

So there.

* * *

Such naughty, naughty boys. Like the prankish pair of American deserters, befriended by a kindly Montreal woman with a heart as big as Allan MacEachen's who took them into her home, fed and cared for them. Neighbors found her bound and gagged and brutally beaten with a table leg.

Thumbing their way west along the Trans-Canada, her two American guests were arrested on charges of assault causing bodily harm.

Like the American deserter who, escaping from Guleph Reformatory on a robbery with violence conviction, married an Ottawa Valley farm girl, bigamously, hoping to establish Canadian "domicile." He was fined $1.000 on the bigamy charge and appealed against a deportation order.

deserters who keep turning up as leaders of Vietnam riots in Toronto, Ottawa and other cities.

But American draft-dodgers and deserters have become over-familiar among Allan MacEachen's "cross-section of different newcomers," there being an estimated 50,000 or more of them here.

Not so familiar are the 800 Vietnamese students and graduates calling themselves "Patriots," many of whom between classes and illegally-held jobs, make their headquarters at the Ho Chi Minh Bookshop on Prince Arthur Street near St. Lawrence Boulevard to carry on their underground battle against what they call "the war machine of the imperialist west."

* * *

A senior immigration department executive who must, of necessity, remain nameless because Allan MacEachen just might not understand, says 102 of these Vietnamese students are enrolled at Canadian taxpayers' expense in Quebec universities.

More interesting, reveals this executive, there are some 150 former students whose visas have expired and who refuse to go home, disregarding what the department terms "invitations" to leave.

* * *

Many openly acknowledge they are deserters and draft-dodgers who came here and were degreed in Canadian universities at your expense, and don't at all mind saying they consider Canada an "ideal sanctuary" for "Ho Chi Minh idealists," as they describe themselves.

They confess to "resenting and resisting" government efforts to persuade them to, as Allan MacEachen so understandably puts it, "respect OUR way of life," and they elude deportation when offical patience infrequently becomes exhausted.

National Viewpoint

The Unusual Role of Paul Hellyer

By PETER THOMSON from Ottawa

AT times, Paul Hellyer appears to be the forgotten man of Canadian politics.

Two years ago Mr. Hellyer was a giant of the Ottawa scene. He had been one of the main contenders for the Liberal leadership; he was deputy prime minister; he was minister of the major transport portfolio; and he was the minister responsible for housing.

His resignation from the Trudeau government in April, 1969, created immediate shock waves, but they subsided with surprising swiftness.

* * *

In the past 15 months the 21-year veteran of the House of Commons has deliberately stayed out of the limelight and has generally been silent about government action—or inaction.

It has been an unusual role for the man who took on the admirals in the unification issue and the man who campaigned long and hard for the Liberal leadership.

Occasionally, however, the Liberal member for the Toronto riding of Trinity offers a hint of his disillusionment with the Trudeau government's performance.

Last March, when the government was using tight money and surplus budgets to fight inflation, Mr. Hellyer publicly stated that it was "like going after a fly with a sledge-hammer."

He was opposed to the creation of unemployment to fight inflation.

In late May, Mr. Hellyer told the Mortgage Loans Association of Alberta there was no possibility of success with government policies of the day.

"An outside observer might be pardoned for getting the impression that the powers-that-be in Ottawa are deliberately trying to wreck the economic system," he declared.

(The government has since eased the money supply and reduced its budgetary surplus.)

Mr. Hellyer also called for mandatory wage and price controls.

These were strong words for a party loyalist and sufficient cause for a suspicion that Mr. Hellyer was about to break out of his self-imposed silence.

But the outburst, if it is to come, will not be for some time.

Sitting in his Rideau River Drive home recently, Mr. Hellyer admitted his main preoccupation now is with the book he is writing.

Mr. Hellyer left recently on a three-week trip through eastern Europe to complete his research for the book. He has already travelled to Scandinavia, Australia and the Far East to interview people.

He expects to complete the text by late September, with publication due some time during the winter.

Not until the book is complete will Mr. Hellyer take a long look at the future. The immediate likelihood is a series of lectures on the subject matter of his book.

* * *

Some of those ideas will touch on fundamental problems of the Canadian economy today, and, Mr. Hellyer says "unlearning some of the myths about inflation and economic growth that we have learned in school."

The whole tradition of conflict between labor and management has to go and "we should be thinking about ways to remove it," Mr. Hellyer said.

He cites the Japanese experience where "there is a sense of national purpose—and employees go to company gatherings singing the company song.

"The life tenure—security—is obviously an important element," he adds. "And we can't ignore the fact that Japan has the highest economic growth rate in the world."

In Scandinavia, he says, strikes are virtually unknown. And the people benefit from the stability. Ships are built in Finland which would normally be built in Britian—simply because the Finns can guarantee delivery on schedule, while strikes have ruined Britain's reputation for prompt delivery.

* * *

Delivery delays, whether for a ship or an office building, add immeasurably to the costs. It is economic waste.

Any unused capacity in a nation is an intolerable waste.

Answers must be found to correct the system. That will be the theme of the Hellyer book.

Where Mr. Hellyer turns when the book is finished is still an open question, but he discourages any speculation that he might take another run for the Liberal leadership.

In fact, he professes to be tired of politics. He was elected to the Commons in the general election of 1949 and has been there ever since, except for a brief period after being defeated in the Diefenbaker sweep of 1958.

A cabinet minister at age 33, he served five years in opposition and became minister of national defence with election of the Pearson government in 1963.

Mr. Hellyer twice rejected approaches to run as the Liberal candidate in the Toronto mayoralty race of 1969. He has turned down several attractive business offers.

Although he professes to be tired of federal politics, Mr. Hellyer is determind to fill out his term and give his constituents the representation they expect.

He might even voice some of his misgivings about the Trudeau administration—especially in those areas he knows so well, like housing and other problems of the cities, as well as economic problems.

* * *

After his resignation from the cabinet, Mr. Hellyer said he would give the Trudeau government time to prove him wrong, and the government right.

To date he hasn't seen enough performance to change the opinion that caused him to quit the government.

With Soviet Union

Hard Bargaining Ahead

By ROBERT STANFIELD from Moscow

A CHANCE meeting with some 20 Canadian high school students in the centre of the capital of the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics was a forceful reminder of the smallness of today's world.

The students, part of a group from Ontario secondary schools visiting Moscow, had chosen that night to attend a concert of folk-singing and dancing, as had my wife and I. Leaving the theatre after the performance we ran into each other on the square outside. The rest of the audience had long since left the area when we Canadians adjourned to our respective hotels.

A visit to the Soviet Union following one to the Socialist Federal Republic of Yugoslavia is an object lesson in the wide differences that can exist within the framework of a common general ideology.

Coming from a communist state that is undertaking an apparently wide-ranging experiment in economic and political decentralization, one finds oneself in Russia in a society that offically retains complete faith in the efficacy of central planning and of centralized control of the economy.

Other communist governments may be questioning many of the assumptions of Marxism-Leninism as they have developed through the years, but the Soviet Union still clings tightly to a belief in communist fundamentalism; and there seems little chance of it abandoning the ship in the foreseeable future.

This is not to say that there are no changes taking place in the U.S.S.R. Even here there are some suggestions of decentralization in the interests of economic efficiency.

But to the extent that it is proceeding, the trend appears to be an extremely cautious one that will avoid important departures from the present system. Certainly the open self-criticism that characterizes Yugoslav officialdom is absent here. Instead, there reigns an almost boundless official confidence that present planning procedures are more than adequate to solve the problems of the future.

The Soviet Union is a land of contrasts. Its remarkable achievements in the field of the aerospace industry stand in stark opposition to continuing shortages in some consumer goods and to standards of consumer services that are somewhat surprising to a Canadian. High standards of public urban transportation form a contrast to the still largely-unsolved problem of agriculture.

And yet there is no doubt that this is one of the great powers of the world and one that Canada, as well as other countries, must always take into account. Barring the horrible disaster of a third world war, the U.S.S.R. and the western countries must work out a means of peaceful co-existence, no matter what name we may choose to call it.

* * *

As in the other countries I have visited, I had extensive talks with government officials at all levels, including one with Mazurov, one of the two first deputy chairmen of the Soviet Union and a member of the powerful 11-man political bureau of the Central Committee of the Communist Party.

Obviously there were differences of opinion, occasionally quite sharp. Czechoslovakia was one example. But I came out of each meeting with a clearer idea of Soviet internal and external policies. I hope the Soviet officials with whom I talked also had a clearer idea of the opinions of many Canadians. For example, I raised some particular issues of Soviet-Canadian relations, including the difficulties that have arisen recently between Canadian and Soviet fishermen.

My visit to the Arctic Institute in Leningrad left me with at least two impressions — the U.S.S.R. is making a considerable effort to develop northern regions, and is probably ahead of Canada in that domain. There is, however, room for co-operation between us in such things as the exchange of information concerning this area where we have considerable interests in common.

Certainly we came to no firm conclusions in the discussions we had. It was my role, not to negotiate, but to listen to the views of the Soviet spokesmen and to tell them what I think most Canadians would like to say if they had such an opportunity.

* * *

It is, in fact, in the areas where disagreements are sharpest that the value of discussion may be greatest. I am more than ever convinced that negotiations between the West and the Soviet Union will be long and arduous; and I was reminded that, whatever side he may represent, patience is one of the vital things that are demanded of the diplomat.

In short, in our dealings with the Soviet Union, we must be prepared for some hard bargaining. From my admittedly limited experience, it is clear that Soviet diplomacy is coolly aware of the directions in which it sees the national interest to lie. We, too, must keep this awareness of our own interests in our discussions with the U.S.S.R. as with other countries. That is what the future negotiations will be all about, whether they are concerned with the establishement of peace and international security, or whether they deal with trade.

If both sides realize this from the beginning, we shall have taken at least one further step onward in the development of our relations.

Japanese Reds Open, Intelligent

By DON SHANNON
From Tokyo

The biggest news in Japanese politics is the remodeling of the Communist Party, which has dropped its aura of subversion and secretiveness for an image of open and intelligent opposition.

First indication of a revitalized Japanese Communist Party came with the Lower House elections last December, when it raised its number of seats from four to 14 with a record total of 3.2 million votes.

Although the achievement was overshadowed by the disastrous decline of the socialists and an unexpected gain by the ruling Liberal Democrats, the communists won credit for the most intelligent campaign among the opposition parties, hitting at the rising cost of living, the shortage of housing and increasing environmental hazards.

In a sideline dispute which started during the election and continued into the new year, the party stepped into an unaccustomed role with an attack on the Buddhist-based Komeito (clean government) Party when the latter sought, with behind-the scenes aid from the Liberal Democrats, to suppress the sale of a book attacking the Komeito. By the time the controversy settled down, the communists won an apology from their opponents and public acclaim as defenders of free speech.

Through the year, the party has been going through a quiet house-cleaning, culminating in a party convention early in July which for the first time was opened to the non-communist press. The convention also produced new leaders, notably 39-year-old Tetsuzo Fuwa as director of the party secretariat, a newly created post. A first-term member of the House of Representatives from Tokyo, Fuwa is busily revamping the party image.

Fuwa's smiling face has been familiar to newspaper readers and television audiences since the party convention enlarged the presidium from 11 to 31 members, many of them also young members. Son of a leftist educator, Fuwa' is a graduate of Tokyo University and a writer as well as a trade union official. The name he uses is one he signed to articles in party publications. His real name is Kenjiro Ueda.

★ ★ ★

Fuwa makes light of the old ideological quarrel over whether communists should participate in the parliamentary system and attain power through the democratic process rather than revolution.

"That was all decided 10 years ago and has won the unanimous support of the party as a whole since then," he declared in an interview shortly after his appointment. "We are convinced that we must participate in the system in order to change the direction of Japanese politics."

★ ★ ★

The communists have chosen Moscow's side over China's in the world schism. The party carefully proclaims its "independence," however, and took a mildly reproving stand on the invasion of Czechoslovakia by Soviet tanks, provoking few ripples inside the party compared with the scars it left on European parties.

The detachment also spares the party the traditional enmity against the Russians, reinforced lately by Moscow's refusal to return the Kurile Islands seized at the end of the Second World War.

Guam Pins Its Future On Tourists, Casinos

By JACK FOISIE from Agana

As this U.S.-controlled mid-Pacific island of Guam moves toward fully autonomous local government, its 80,000 residents are banking on attracting tourists — and probably legalizing big-time gambling.

In this way they hope to diversify an economy now almost entirely dependent upon the island's strategic value as the westernmost major U.S. military complex in the Pacific not located on foreign soil.

But at the same time, they don't want to see their beautiful and unspoiled island get the seamy reputation associated with some big-time gaming spots, such as Cuba when Havana was a haven for racketeers and gangsters.

For clientele they hope to attract the Asian big spender who in this jet age is but four hours away in Japan, Hong Kong and the Philippines. Although he could always gamble, the well-heeled Asian has never played the games amid soft tropic breezes and white sands of a place such as Guam, with its American-style hotel comfort. The Guamanians are counting on his desire to do so.

If North Americans want to fly the Pacific to fancy Guam resorts bypassing the non-gambling pleasures of Hawaii, they also will be welcomed.

With their island not much more than a 31-mile-long coral droplet covered with luxurious jungle growth (and with one-third of the land devoted to military bases), Guamanians see no other role than to be a tourist and gambler's mecca, with attendant industries to serve them.

The island's mercantile families, who dominate the economy not already dominated by the military, appear ready to accept casino-type gambling provided it can be properly policed. They favor the Puerto Rico type of operation, which limits such gambling to visitors and confines the casinos to hotels.

The prospect of being excluded from such big-chip games of chance will not dishearten the rural islanders, it is reasoned, so long as they have their own traditional forms of gambling. Being mostly Roman Catholics, a legacy of Guam's earlier days under Spanish rule, the native-born are accustomed to church raffles in the island's 19 villages,

And cock fighting is legal, with a modern arena in the capital town of Agana being filled each Sunday to watch spurred cocks duel to the death.

Owners of new hotels, now completed or under construction, are so certain of the eventuality of casino gambling they have included suitable space in their structures for a sporting arena, and have added guest rooms to bring the number above 200, a conjectured minimum to make hotels eligible for casino operations.

Big-time real estate developers, such as Chinn Ho, have begun ventures in Guam to provide lavish apartments for the well-to-do retired.

Foreign investors are coming in, the latest being San Miguel Brewery of Manila, which plans to put a branch plant on Guam.

★ ★ ★

There is evidence that veterans of Nevada, Florida and Caribbean gambling establishments have put their advance scouts on Guam, seeking favorable "partnerships" with local businessmen before gambling casinos are legalized.

New Bootleg Age Dawns in U.S.

Marijuana Traffic 'Dangerous and Violent Business'

By JERRY COHEN from Los Angeles

During prohibition a booze runner could get killed if he became too greedy.

Now a new bootleg age has arrived. Bigtime marijuana smugglers — with millions at stake — are reviving the gang violence of prohibition.

While the public may be unaware of them, parallels between the two eras are unmistakable.

In the 1920s alcohol was an illicit commodity for which there was an inexhaustible demand. Today it's marijuana. Traffickers in prized contraband get rich — in any era.

★ ★ ★

That's what is happening for the shrewdest and boldest of the big league pot smugglers.

Like the successful bootleggers of the '20s, the new breed of ganglords has achieved eminence through slick merchandising and distribution techniques.

As California chief deputy attorney-general Charles O'Brien observed in a recent speech, the marijuana traffic "has become a dangerous and violent business."

"A few years ago, it was uncommon to encounter violence in the drug traffic," O'Brien said. "Few drug dealers carried weapons. This has changed radically.

"The recent growth of violence in the narcotics traffic first became noticeable in the Haight-Ashbury district of San Francisco when differences between dealers began to be settled by gunfire.

"Then, in Mexico in 1968, there was a series of semi-gangland-type slayings involving residents of Mexico and the United States. These slayings were accomplished with machine-guns, automobile bombs and handguns equipped with silencers."

★ ★ ★

One case involved an ex-navy flyer who died at 27 from an overdose of ambition and gunfire.

Let's call him Joe.

After graduating from high school in Haskell, a hamlet in mideast Oklahoma, Joe joined the navy and was commissioned as a pilot in Pensacola in 1964.

At Key West he met a brunette, and married her in 1966.

Joe became disenchanted with service life and obtained his discharge in 1967 while stationed in Rhode Island, where he struck up a casual acquaintance that would doom him.

When the acquaintance learned Joe and his wife planned to move to California, he gave the ex-navy flyer the name of a man he said might help him find work.

The California man was a dope pusher who introduced him to a big-time dealer who, in turn, introduced him to the boss of a major marijuana smuggling ring, a one-time New Yorker residing in Phoenix with his wife and children.

The boss was 26 when Joe met him in March, 1968, but he was meek and rarely spoke above a whisper. Nevertheless, he was the master of a combine that in a single month could turn a profit of $1 million.

The boss bought raw marijuana off Mexican fileds, where his own employees packaged it in kilo form with 10-ton jacks flown in from Arizona. He sold to wholesalers and middlemen throughout the west, but chiefly in California.

The boss, always looking for reliable pilots, hired Joe for $25,000 a month.

But once Joe got an overview of the lucrative operation, he got greedy.

In the summer of 1968 the boss entrusted Joe and two other employees with about 500 kilos of marijuana to be delivered to a dealer in the Santa Clara mountains. The price: $60,000.

★ ★ ★

Joe had a better idea and persuaded the other two to go along with it.

They peddled the pot in San Francisco for $26,000 then kept their mountain rendezvous with the dealer, whom they robbed of the $60,000.

Joe returned to Southern California to plot the overthrow of the boss. He schemed aboard a rescue craft he kept docked at Los Angeles harbor.

Joe forced one of the men who had participated in the Santa Clara mountains double-cross to join the plot by threatening to kill him. Call him Mr. Z.

Mr. Z accompanied Joe to Tucson to look over a B-26 bomber which Joe was interested in buying for across-the-border ferrying.

In Tucson they met in a motel with a young California smuggler whom Z told Joe was a potential recruit for the coup. Call him Assassin No. 1.

The boss had been in touch with Z. In a telephone conversation he asked Z to find a gunman to take care of Joe.

Why, and how, Z and the boss re-cemented their relationship after the former's Santa Clara mountains treachery is unclear.

Anyway, Z introduced the boss and a sidekick to Assassin No. 1 in a Berkeley, Calif., motel room. They plotted Joe's doom.

Assassin No. 1 and a 31-year-old ex-convict from Louisina (Assassin No. 2), met Joe in a Long Beach, Calif., hotel and told him they were set to go ahead with the coup against the boss.

They informed Joe they had spotted a house near Riverside, Calif., which they thought he should consider as a dropoff point, or stash pad, for marijuana imports. Joe agreed to meet them in Riverside.

Arriving at the Ramada Inn in Riverside, Joe checked into room 128 about 9 p.m.

Minutes later he answered a knock on the door and admitted Assassins No. 1 and 2.

He left minutes later, telling a friend who had accompanied him to Riverside that he was going with the pair to inspect the prospective stash pad.

No one but the two men ever saw Joe alive again.

The boss met no further challenge to his primacy until he was arrested.

U.S. Customs and California narcotics agents caught him with 700 kilos of marijuana in Concord, Calif., in Jan. 1969.

The boss went to Arizona state prison in Florence to serve a sentence of 10 to 20 years.

Law enforcement, however, never really got solid evidence to connect him with the execution of Joe until two related plane crashes occurred early this year.

The first involved an aircraft carrying such an overload of marijuana that it was forced into a crash landing in Imperial County, Calif., in February, with two smugglers aboard.

Evidence, including records of phone calls, tied together smugglers throughout the Southwest — and led the California attorney general's organized crime unit to launch a full-fledged investigation into Joe's execution.

The second crash occurred in March in a mountainous Arizona region and claimed the lives of five men — one of whom reportedly was dickering with agents to tell what he knew of smuggling operations.

Agents are convinced that the plane was sabotaged and that the bodies of the five victims were set afire after the accident.

In May formal complaints of conspiracy to commit murder were filed in the two-year-old execution of Joe and indictments were returned this week by a Riverside County grand jury.

The boss was in prison when the May complaints were filed. His sidekick was seized and jailed in Riverside County. Assassin No. 2 was seized in Texas.

But Assassin No. 1 had skipped. He got out in such a hurry that he forfeited $67,000 bail in San Diego on state and federal narcotics charges — a sum indicating the kind of money marijuana smugglers are dealing with.

Temple Flashpoint Of Indochina War

By ARTHUR DOMMEN
From Phnom Penh

What is perhaps the most dangerous flashpoint of the Indochina war at the present time is the situation existing at a 1,000-year-old Shivaite temple perched at the edge of a cliff 1,500 feet high.

The temple, known as Preah Vihear, is on the border between Cambodia and Thailand about 90 miles northeast of Angkor Wat. Although it is on Cambodian soil, its only access is from the northern, Thai side. Cliffs protect the temple on three sides and on a clear day the view southward across the Cambodian plain extends for hundreds of miles.

At Preah Vihear, Thailand and North Vietnam are face to face today and if there is one point at which Thailand might be provoked into sending its army into Cambodia it is there.

The temple was the object of a dispute between Cambodia and Thailand in 1962 that was settled in favor of Cambodia at the World Court in The Hague.

Preah Vihear, like dozens of other stone monuments of the Khmer Empire that lie now within the borders of Thailand, was built by the ancient kings of Angkor. Begun by King Yasovarman I, who ascended the throne in 889 and founded the first city of Angkor, Preah Vihear took 200 years to complete. Its esplanades ascending gradually over a distance of a quarter of a mile leading to the main temple, perched at the very edge of the cliff, show the influence of the worship of Shiva, of its founder Hasovarman and then the growing Buddhist influence on his successor.

After Sihanouk's overthrow March 18, one of the first moves taken by the government of Premier Lon Nol to restore normal relations with Cambodia's neighbors was to open the border with Thailand. Hundreds of devout Thai Buddhists visited the temple in the next few weeks. They were guided by Cambodian soldiers who knew where the booby traps planted in Sihanouk's time were located.

But then North Vietnamese troops moved into the region, coming from Laos. They were driving Cambodian army garrisons from their isolated jungle forts and setting up a new supply line into Cambodia.

Gunfire began to be heard in the vicinity of Preah Vihear and some 400 Cambodian civilians, fearing for their lives, moved across the border and settled on the outskirts of Pumsarom, the closest Thai village.

From his Peking retreat, Sihanouk has been threatening to "liberate" all Cambodia and there is hardly a square inch of Cambodian soil that is more loaded with political meaning for Sihanouk and his North Vietnamese backers than Preah Vihear.

But to reach the temple and drive off the Cambodian army soldiers there, the North Vietnamese would have to cross through Thailand.

★ ★ ★

Furthermore, North Vietnamese soldiers at Preah Vihear would be encamped on the Korat plateau, and that is a situation that Thailand might not be willing to accept.

In that case there would be no river like the Mekong separating the North Vietnamese from the Thais, who would be face to face on the same ground.

So far Hanoi has taken care to avoid such a provocation, although a Thai border police patrol clashed with the communists on July 15 in a skirmish that took lives on both sides.

Woods Violence

Municipal Officers At Fault

QUEBEC (CP) — Forests Minister Kevin Drummond said Tuesday he holds the municipal authorities of Cabano responsible for acts of violence committed by the people of the industry-hungry Gaspe Peninsula town of 3,500.

In a statement, the minister urged Cabano residents "to exercise all their remaining patience to avoid aggravating their dispute with d'Auteuil Lumber Co. any further."

He was referring to incidents during the weekend in which demonstrators destroyed all bridge approaches to the company's cutting grounds, scattered cords of wood and set fire to some company buildings.

Cabano residents contend that d'Auteuil Lumber, in exchange for wood-cutting rights, had promised to build a wallboard mill in their town, which nestles in the Lac Temiscouata valley about halfway between Riviere du Loup on the Gaspe coast and the New Brunswick border.

* * *

Spokesmen for the company, owned by industrialist K. C. Irving of New Brunswick, denied that there had been any commitment and said it would not be financially wise to start up a wallboard mill.

About 600 residents adopted a weekend resolution warning the government that forests would burn unless the dispute was settled soon.

Drummond said d'Auteuil Lumber had indeed promised to build a mill in Cabano by April of next year, but the government could not force it to keep the commitment.

"If d'Auteuil Lumber will not or cannot build the mill it undertook to set up in Cabano, all the government can do in the circumstances is to co-operate with the municipal authorities of Cabano to find a new investor who will take up the d'Auteuil Lumber project."

Mayor Guy Michaud said the entire region has been dying slowly since a fire in 1966 destroyed its last lumber mill, throwing about 200 mill employees out of work.

Gives Self Up

Convict Frees Hostage

ROSSMOUNT, Ont. (CP) — An escaped convict who held a woman hostage at knifepoint in the back of a police car for several hours gave himself up Tuesday night without having harmed the woman.

Provincial police said Maurice Lauzon, 24, gave himself up about 6:30 p.m., releasing Lorraine Barry, 26, of Campbellford, Ont., an employee at the prison from which he had escaped earlier in the day.

* * *

Lauzon, serving a nine-year sentence at Warkworth medium-security prison, agreed to get into the police car after 25 policemen pinned him down behind a small farmhouse near this village north of Port Hope a few hours after his escape.

A prison official said Lauzon, serving the 13th month of his sentence, barged into the prison's administrative building, grabbed the woman and demanded a car and $1,000 in cash.

LEVER DETERGENTS HAVE DONE MORE THAN JUST LOWER PHOSPHATE LEVELS.

All these famous Lever Brands have been reformulated to give you great washday performance along with lower phosphates!

You've known them for years and you can still trust them.

Effective August 1st, 1970, all Lever detergents began to be manufactured with reduced phosphate levels. All the famous Lever brands, Breeze, Omo, Sunlight, 'all', Surf and Drive. All of them with reduced phosphate levels. All of them offering you high quality results.

When Lever scientists started to reformulate all the Lever brands they had to keep two things in mind. First, the reduction of phosphate levels. Second, Lever Detergents' reputation for high quality products. The new formulas had to conform to government regulations, while at the same time maintaining the high quality reputations of all Lever brands. Every new formula was a complete success. Every one achieved really high quality results, yet with a lower phosphate content.

This is just the beginning. Lever research will continue to try to find ways to get the phosphate levels in all their brands even lower. When this can be done and the high quality performance maintained, Lever will make these products available to you with all possible speed.

Alberta Report

Bias Charged To Ombudsman

EDMONTON (CP) — Alberta Ombudsman George McClellan "glaringly" flouted the law under which he operates because he failed to investigate both sides in a dispute, a former Alberta chief justice said Tuesday.

Colin McLaurin made the statement in a report to the government on his investigation into the ombudsman's report in the case of an Edmonton real estate salesman.

In his report to the cabinet, McClellan said R. J. Philipzyk was wrongfully expelled in 1964 from the Edmonton Real Estate Co-operative Listing Bureau Ltd.

McClellan suggested the expulsion was partly due to the government's action in allowing the bureau to incorporate as a co-operative and that Philipzyk should receive damages from the province.

the ombudsman's report and a seven-day hearing was held in June.

McClellan told the hearing that he could not testify under the provisions of the Ombudsman Act.

McLaurin, in his report released Tuesday, said Philipzyk was "rightfully expelled," that no government compensation should be paid, and that no changes were necessary in the bureau's by-laws or provincial legislation.

McLaurin said McClellan's report contained an "adverse reference" to H. R. Kellough, manager of an Edmonton real estate firm which once employed Philipzyk.

While the ombudsman heard statements from Philipzyk and others, "a limited degree of fair-mindedness should have been suggested to the ombudsman that he should obtain Kellough's version," McLaurin said in his report.

The ombudsman's report on the case was "biased, unfair and inaccurate."

McClellan said it was the most exhaustive investigation made by his office since being appointed in 1967. He is a former RCMP commissioner.

McClellan declined comment on McLaurin's report.

"I have asked the legislature to appear before it and that is probably where I will speak," said the ombudsman.

Premiers Here Next Year

WINNIPEG (CP) — The 11th Canadian premiers conference ended Tuesday, a full day ahead of schedule, and will be held next year in early August in British Columbia.

Premier Bennett's invitation to hold the conference in Victoria in honor of his province's centennial celebrations was accepted. No specific dates were announced.

Manitoba Premier Ed Schreyer said the premiers suggested that the 1971 conference should deal with pollution, investment policies and a revaluation of medical care programs in the provinces.

The premiers were able to break up earlier than expected because of the rapid progress they achieved Monday in dealing with five of seven agenda items during a cruise of Lake Winnipeg.

Dow Level Tested

Analysts said they were encouraged by what they called a successful test of the 720 level of the Dow Jones average of 30 industrials. The Dow average closed 2.94 higher at 725.90 after having been down more than 5 points in earlier trading.

The comeback was due to technical factors and to news reports that United States officials had predicted a Middle East ceasefire within a week.

Airlines, oils, rails, chemicals, aircraft, and electronics were generally higher. Steels, mail order-retail, metals and utilities were off, while motors were mixed.

International Nickel rose 1⅝ among Canadians. McIntyre Porcupine was up a point, Canadian Pacific ⅜ and Distillers Seagrams ⅝. Dome fell a point. Hudson Bay Mining lost ⅞ and Walker Gooderham ⅜.

Bond Sales Brisk, Premium Boosted

By HARRY YOUNG
Business Editor

The new issue of $200 million Government of Canada bonds was "priced to sell", and sell it did.

Dealers said the new issue, details of which were made known on Tuesday morning, sold so well that within a few hours they were not only all taken up, but the issue price of 100 had moved up to a premium of about ¾ point.

The new issue is an "extendable." It may be cashed at 100 in five years time, or extended for another 10 years.

The short part of the loan carries interest at 7¼ per cent, and the latter part pays off at 8 per cent. The delivery date for the new bonds is Aug. 15.

"On the face of the current market the bonds looked like a bargain at the issue price of 100." said one dealer, "They are very similar to the April 1, 1984 issue which is also a five-year bond with a 10-year extension option. Both start off with a rate of 7¼ per cent, but in the last 10 years the 1984s pay 8 per cent while the new issue pays only 7⅛ per cent."

He added the 1984s were currently selling at 102, or two points higher than the new and more attractive issue.

Institutions were said to be strong buyers of the $200 million issue of which $50 million was taken up by the Bank of Canada.

BENNETT'S TURN NEXT

Now that Finance Minister Benson has got his own financing out of the way, the stage is set for Premier Bennett.

The B.C. premier and finance minister has chosen Friday for his annual parity bond breakfast in Vancouver.

This is the one at which he announces the annual sale of B.C. parity bonds. This year $50,500,000 in the name of B.C. Hydro and Power Authority are due for refunding Sept. 1.

Like other B.C. parity bonds they pay interest at 6½ per cent, and dealers are taking part in their annual speculation as to whether Premier Bennett will once again hold the line, even if the rate is a full point below the market level.

By contrast the current issue of Canada Savings Bonds is paying 7 per cent to November, when it switches for two years to 8 per cent, and then from 1972 to 1978 to 8¼ per cent.

However, British Columbia's parities are a law unto themselves, and in an improving bond market it is certain Premier Bennett will do his utmost to hold the line on his borrowing costs.

If he offers a lower rate than the Canada Savings Bonds, the premier will tell you they have advantages such as quarterly, instead of yearly, payments of interest.

Well, we will wait and see.

OIL RULING "BLOW"

A learned judge of Canada's Exchequer Court has ruled the government out-of-order in banning the sale of imported gasoline in Canada west of the Ottawa Valley.

Justice W. R. Jackett held that the May ban was unconstitutional and invalid and found the complaintants, Cal Oil Inc. of Montreal to be entitled to damages.

The order to keep imported oil to the east of Ottawa Valley was made when several national oil companies complained that gasoline made from cheap imported oil and refined in the Montreal area was invading their own Ontario market.

They informed the National Energy Board that because they were forced to use the higher priced Western Canadian crude, they were being forced to cut-back on their own gasoline production.

The government ruling which was to forbid the sending of imported gasoline into Ontario was then contested by Cal Oil.

Dr. R. D. Howland, chairman of the National Energy Board, said it would be up to the Justice Department to decide whether an appeal should be made to the Supreme Court against the Exchequer Court decision.

Canadian oil producers' immediate reaction was that a wedge had been driven into what was regarded as "Western Oil" territory, and that it might have a serious effect on the Canadian oil industry.

Canadian oil company shares were weak in late stock exchange dealings, presumably in disappointment of the Exchequer Court ruling.

CP AIR COSTS RISE

CP Air said its first half revenues were up 9 per cent over a year ago, but its expenses had mounted even faster at 16 per cent in the same period.

Total transportation revenue was $68,700,000 of which 90 per cent came from passenger traffic.

J. G. Gilmer president, said yields were being eroded because a larger proportion of traffic was moving at promotional rates.

He didn't look for an improvement in the rest of the year because of general softening in the travel market.

MINES HOLD LINE

Despite the increasing value of the Canadian dollar which affects companies selling their product abroad, the mining industry in Canada is facing up fairly well to the new conditions.

McIntyre Porcupine net earnings for the first half rose to $2,936,000 ($1.21 a share) compared with $2,810,000 ($1.18) a year ago, and Hudson Bay Mining and Smelting came close to the 1969 first half with six months earnings of $12,185,164 ($1.35) against $12,781,346 ($1.41) a year ago.

PLASTICS HELP

Record sales were made by Dominion Glass Company in the three months ended June 30 and helped the company to offset a drop in first-quarter earnings.

Net income for the six months period was $1,164,652 (50 cents a share) against $1,445,284 (64 cents) in the corresponding period of 1969.

In the second quarter net income of $951,796 (42 cents) was up from $790,036 (35 cents) in the corresponding quarter of 1969.

Improved sales of plastic containers and consolidation of sales with its new subsidiary, National Pressed Glass, contributed to the improvement.

Salary Gap Closing

NEW YORK (AP) — The average office employee in the United States earns $105 a week while his Canadian counterpart makes $89 a week, a survey released Monday shows.

The survey of salaries, conducted annually by the American Administrative Management Society, indicates that salaries this year are 3 to 8 per cent higher than in 1969 for 17 of the most representative jobs in both countries.

A top key punch operator in the U.S. earns $106 a week, or 7 per cent more than a year ago, the survey found. Typist-clerks are making $93, or 8 per cent more, while book-keeping machine operators are earning $99, or 7.6 per cent more.

UP 44 PER CENT

The salary of the average clerical worker in the U.S. over the last 10 years has increased 44 per cent to $105 a week from $73, the society said. In Canada, the average weekly pay has jumped 54 per cent to $89 from $58 a decade ago.

The combined turnover rate for male and female office employees in 1969 was 26 per cent, or 2 per cent more than in 1967, the previous year in which turnover was measured.

The survey is based on figures reported by 6,800 companies covering about 540,000 office workers.

Chevrolet Wagons Recalled

OSHAWA (CP) — More than 1,500 1970 Chevrolet station wagons built at General Motors Corp. Oshawa plant and distributed across Canada have been recalled, it was announced Tuesday.

The vehicles are being recalled to replace a possibly defective load rest attachment to the wagons' bumper jack.

A GM Canada spokesman said most of the 1,569 made in Oshawa have probably been sold and owners will have to bring them back to dealers for necessary repairs. The defect may cause the wagons to slip off the jacks when raised.

The recall announcement came from Detroit where another 1,700 of the wagons were made.

Chevrolet and GMC Truck divisions also announced the recall of 450 half-ton 1970 trucks for replacement of any wheels which may be cracking and subject to eventual failure.

Commission's Key Question

By DIANE JANOWSKI

Should a goose that laid a golden egg be abandoned in its old age just because the egg has hatched into a gosling that would like to disown its parentage?

That is the question that will have to be answered by the Canadian Transportation Commission when it holds a hearing in Victoria today.

The goose is passenger service on the Esquimalt and Nanaimo Railway and the ungrateful gosling is the massive land grant that accompanied the railroad's establishment.

The CPR, which purchased the Vancouver Island line some 65 years ago, applied to the federal government in the summer of 1968 for permission to end the passenger service, which it described as economically prohibitive.

At that time, the commission decided the service would have to be maintained until such time as a final ruling was made.

While few people will dispute that the service is not now paying its way, many suggest that this is perhaps a planned effect of the giant company's long-proclaimed desire to rid itself completely of passenger lines in favor of freight and commuter and rapid transit systems.

Others contend that even if the run is hopelessly uneconomic, it should be maintained as payment for the valuable E & N land belt.

Disputes Common

Conflict is a familiar companion to the railroad which has been involved in disputes since before it was even built.

When the question of Confederation first arose 100 years ago British authorities, anxious to ensure that the Vancouver Island colony, then larger than British Columbia, would join the unit, offered to construct a cross-country railroad with the western terminus to be agreed upon.

Original plans had the railroad crossing Seymour Narrows via Ripple Rock and ending in Esquimalt, but manoeuvring by Vancouver merchants resulted in the terminus being changed to Vancouver.

Angered by the slight, Vancouver Island threatened to withdraw from the federation. To calm the colony, the national government said a railroad would be built from Esquimalt to Nanaimo.

Before the line could be built, however, the provincial government had to agree to give the federal government some 4,700,000 acres of land.

This land, in the form of a 2.5 million-acre block in the Peace River district and an additional 2,000,000 acres on the east coast of Vancouver Island between Esquimalt and Seymour Narrows, was then held by the federal government for a private firm which was to build the railroad.

Costly Venture

The company, made up of Robert Dunsmuir, James Dunsmuir, and John Bryden of Nanaimo, along with some American associates, raised $2.5 million for the venture, to which the federal government added $750,000.

When the line to Nanaimo was completed in 1887, the land was transferred to the group.

With the land went "all coal, coal oil, ores stones, clay, marble, slate, mines, minerals and substances whatsoever thereupon, therein and thereunder."

Part of the "thereupon" of the Island land grant was what was later described in a royal commission on forest resources as "large stands of the finest timber . . . on the continent."

Lest the company building the line was still dissatisfied with the arrangement, the land and railroad were declared non-taxable.

The only long-term obligations were: "That the said contractors will . . . truly and in good faith keep and maintain the (railway and works appertaining thereto) and the rolling stock required therefor, in good and efficent working and running order, and shall continuously and in good faith operate the same."

Important Clause

A further clause, and the one most important to the question of dropping passenger service, says: "The character of the railway and its equipments shall be in all respects equal to the general character of the Canadian Pacific Railway, now under construction in British Columbia, and the equipments thereof."

In 1905, the CPR bought out the Dunsmuir interests and later extended the line to Courtenay. A spur to Port Alberni was also built.

CPR quietly assumed that it would not be taxed either until 1947 when the Privy Council decided otherwise and some revenue began to come to the province.

Shortly afterward, an additional tax, in the form of a 25 per cent land sale tax was imposed on the land belt.

The shift away from providing services to the general public began about the same time as the CPR's successful application for permission to drop passenger service on its Parksville-Port Alberni run.

Residents Angry

The company argued that the passenger service was disrupting its freight service and area residents accused the firm of what "appears to be a deliberate attempt to discourage passenger traffic."

Then rumors that the E&N passenger service would have to be dropped began more than 10 years ago.

During the same period, CPR ferry service between the Island and the mainland was cut back. At that time, J. N. Fraine, CPR regional vice-president and president of the E & N, was quoted as saying the CPR had discharged "all its legal and moral obligations to the Island."

The death blow came in 1968 when the giant corporation began a system of diversification under which land interests and transportation interests were separated.

So it is possible under the new Canadian Pacific organization for the land belt to continue being highly profitable while the E & N loses more than $100,000 per year on passenger service.

Hydrofoil Kills Four Fishermen

MESSINA, Sicily (UPI) — The hydrofoil which links Sicily with mainland Italy plowed into a motorboat a mile out of port Friday night, killing four men on a fishing expedition.

Of the other three persons aboard the motorboat, one was missing, one was seriously injured and the last was reported unhurt.

The captain of the hydrofoil, with 20 passengers aboard from Reggio Calabria, said he saw no light aboard the motorboat and did not see it until the boats collided.

Esquimalt Building Increases, Victoria, Saanich Still Lag

In spite of permits issued for major construction in Saanich and Esquimalt during July, the total value of building permits issued in Greater Victoria during the first seven months of 1970 remained well below last year's, except in Esquimalt.

Victoria issued 483 permits during July worth a total of $2,106,903. In July 1969, a total of 526 permits valued at $4,224,055 were issued.

There was also a decline in Victoria figures for the first seven months of this year.

Up to the end of July, Victoria had issued 3,129 permits worth $13,719,906. In the corresponding period last year, a total of 3,843 permits valued at $22,341,877 were issued.

In Saanich, two building permits accounted for most of a $1.75 million total, which was $362,233 higher than last July's figure.

But the total vaule of permits issued during the first seven months of this year, was $5.45 million below the 1969 figures.

Permits for dwellings dropped from $1,015,792 last July to $411,700 last month, and the number fell from 44 to 16.

Dwelling permits to date this year total 133 compared with 258 last year, and the value of permits has dropped from $5.6 million to $3.2 million.

The two largest permits issued in Saanich during July went to Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation ($633,000) for the municipality's senior citizens' housing project and to Diversified Holdings for a 60-unit town house development valued at $600,000.

★ ★ ★

In Esquimalt, a permit for construction of a $614,600 sewage pumping station resulted in a marked increase in that municipality's building figures last month.

During the first seven months of this year, Esquimalt issued 105 permits worth $1.74 million compared with $1.72 million last year.

The seven-month total is 257 permits worth $1,972,777 this year, compared with 299 permits valued at $5,501,396 in 1969.

Plane Packs Unique New Machine

VANCOUVER (CP) — An Air France Boeing 707 is scheduled to land at Vancouver International Airport today with a 40-ton wire-drawing plant made in England for a Canadian manufacturer who ordered it from an American sales agent.

The freighting by air will speed up the assault by the Canadian manufacturer on the world market with an expanded line of wire products.

"To our knowledge, this will be the largest drawing machine in service in North America, as measured by the number of stages and horsepower per stage," said Abraham Sacks, president of Tree Island Steel Co. Ltd. of Richmond, buyers of the $250,000 machine.

Mayor Raps Arms Disclosure

CALGARY (CP) — Mayor Rod Sykes said Tuesday he wants Police Chief M. J. Kent to explain why he provided details to Calgary newspapers of riot control equipment held by city police.

"The police chief made a positive statement to me Friday that neither he nor his staff had or would make such a statement.

★ ★ ★

"But obviously there is a credibility gap. He has either misled me — which I'm not prepared officially to believe — or else he has decided to confirm what appears to be public knowledge."

The mayor reiterated for a news conference that he was not aware of any riot control inventory when he spoke at the University July 30.

At that time the mayor said Calgary police did not need riot sticks and they would not be purchased for the force.

He said the presence of similar riot control equipment, such as that held by the Vancouver force, could cause normally peaceful demonstrations to become violent.

Later Chief Kent said Calgary police were equipped with riot control equipment which included night sticks, shields, mace and tear gas. He added any progressive force should have such material.

Lions Thump Bombers With Surprising Power

WINNIPEG — British Columbia Lions, showing their most potent striking power in years, smothered Winnipeg Blue Bombers, 48-21, Thursday night for their first win of the young Western Football Conference season.

Except for the second quarter when quarterback Wally Gabler and flanker Kenny Nielsen gave the defence fits and the Bombers wiped out a 13-0 deficit to lead 21-20 at the half, Lions were in command.

Gabler combined with Nielsen five times for 159 yards in the first half but, except for one second-half completion, Lions took Bombers' long threat away.

The Lions' defence, led by linebacker Greg Findlay, was superb, forcing the Bombers into nine turnovers on downs, interceptions and fumbles.

The defenders came up with a touchdown on one of four interceptions, flopped on three of four Bomber fumbles and twice held on third-and-short-yardage situations.

And the long-suspect B.C. offence led by quarterback Paul Brothers, A. D. Whitfield and Jim Evenson impressed a lot of doubters as well as the Bombers.

Brothers diversified his attack, particularly in the second half in which he completed seven of seven pass atempts. He threw touchdown passes to Jim Young and Lefty Hendrickson and scampered in from the 19-yard line for a touchdown on a broken play.

EVENSON SHINES

Evenson, returning to the lineup after a dispute with the club over his physical condition, started slowly but regained his timing to crack over for two touchdowns and break loose twice for long runs in the second half.

Whitfield, running mostly over the middle on trap blocks, was the leading ground gainer with 123 yards on 15 carries although held pointless.

CONVERTS, FIELD GOALS

Jerry Bradley scored the other touchdown when he picked off a Gabler pass and streaked in from the 32.

Ted Gerela converted all of the touchdowns and also kicked field goals from 39 and 31 yards. The 12-point effort moved him into second place behind Jack Abendschan of Saskatchewan in the conference scoring with 20 points. Abendschan has 23.

Lions startled the Bombers on the first play after the opening kickoff when Brothers hit Young for an 80-yard, pass and run touchdown play. Gerela converted and kicked his field goals to give B.C. a 13-0 lead.

LOSE EARLY BAD

Bombers came back to score on a three-yard plunge by Amos Van Pelt, set up largely by a 47-yard pass from Gabler to Nielsen.

Bradley's interception early in the second quarter put Lions ahead, 20-7, but before the half ended, Van Pelt on a four-yard pass play and Nielsen on a 12-yard pass, both converted by Gene Lakusiak, put the Bombers in front, 21-20.

SPOTTED FLAW

Obviously having spotted a flaw in the Winnipeg defence, Lions went to work early in the second half with Brothers directing them 82 yards in eight plays, climaxed by his own 19-yard touchdown run.

But the turning point in the game came just a minute later when Findlay intercepted a pass at the Winnipeg 26-yard line. Lions moved right in to score on a five-yard pass from Brothers to Hendrickson, which with Gerela's convert made it 33-21.

Before the quarter ended, Evenson plunged over from the one-yard line for his first touchdown. He went over from the two-yard line at 5:08 of the final quarter to put the game out of reach.

Wade and Evanshen Stun Argos, 34-27

MONTREAL (CP) — Sophomore quarterback Sonny Wade scored three touchdowns and passed to flanker Terry Evanshen for two more as Montreal Alouettes toppled Toronto Argonauts, 34-27, in the opening game of the Eastern Football Conference season for both teams Tuesday.

Pierre Guindon completed the Montreal scoring with four converts.

Don Jonas, who replaced Tom Wilkinson at quarterback in the third quarter, fired touchdown passes to Bobby Taylor and Tony Moro and also added a field goal, three converts and a single.

Wilkinson threw a touchdown strike to Taylor in the second quarter and the Argos added two points on a safety touch when Wade conceded in the third quarter.

Montreal took the lead early in the second quarter on Wade's first touchdown.

A 15-yard passing play from Wade to Evanshen and Guindon's convert ran the count to 14-3 before Wilkinson found Taylor alone in the end zone and connected on a nine-yard pass.

INTERCEPTED PASS

Near the end of the half, Larry Fairholm intercepted a Wilkinson pass on the Argos' 30-yard line and Wade marched the Als to the one-yard line, aided by a pass interference call, before plunging over.

Alouettes struck again early in the third quarter as Wade romped over from the eight-yard line and then increased the margin to 34-17 with an 11-yard scoring play to Evanshen after Jonas and Moro had combined for a two-yard touchdown for the Argos.

CLOSED GAP

Argos closed the gap to 34-26 before the end of the quarter with Jonas hitting Taylor with a 23-yard touchdown pass and Wade conceding the safety touch. But the best they could do in the fourth quarter, against the tough Alouette defence, was a single by Jonas on an attempt field goal on the final play of the game.

Federal fisheries biologists and engineers are considering a second dam on Demaniel Creek — a tributary of the Sooke River — to provide more water storage in the upper reaches above Youngs Lake.

A $15,000 dam was completed below Youngs Lake in April and is now being used to conserve water for rearing coho fingerlings in downstream holding pools.

Demaniel Creek is one of the major coho spawning rivers on the west coast, with up to 7000 spawning coho returning to it in peak years . . . a figure that may be increased by improved conditions.

This is the year fish guardians and biologists will be watching the Leech River, another tributory of the Sooke, to see how many coho return from a transplant of 33,000 coho fingerlings in 1968, from parched pools of Demaniel to the hitherto salmon-barren Leech.

Another 50,000 salvaged coho fingerlings were transplanted from Demaniel to Leech in 1969 and to date this year 20,000 have been transplanted.

Fisheries engineers will study the Leech River this year with a view to removing obstructions which stop spawning salmon entering it. If any return this fall tank trucks could be brought into operation to take the spawners over the waterfall obstructions.

An appreciable return would mean a brand new salmon run to serve west coast sports and commercial fishermen.

Biologists and guardians will also be watching Woodhus Creek, a tributary of the Oyster this fall for coho returns from a 1968 coho transplant from the Oyster to Woodhus in an attempt to start a run in that hitherto barren tributary.

The obstruction at the falls where the Woodhus joins the Oyster was removed by fisheries engineers in March and the way is cleared for the returning coho to swim right to the Woodhus spawning beds.

Next year will be the "watch year" in Saanich Inlet when coho from a 27,000 fingerling transplant from Goldstream to barren Shawnigan (Millstream) Creek should return. This year 25,000 fingerlings have been transplanted to Shawnigan Creek from Cowichan River tributaries and 5000 of these have been planted in waters above Shawnigan Lake.

Results of a two-year federal fisheries survey of the coho and chinook "shaker" problem off the west coast of Vancouver Island show that 13 per cent of the total coho catch by commercial trollers in the April 15 to June 15 fishing period are "shakers."

Shakers are the salmon that troll fishermen must release, and include all chinook salmon under the 26-inch minimum size limit and all coho taken prior to June 15, the opening day for these species.

In most cases these shakers are dead before they are released, or die after being released, usually by shaking them off the hooks.

During the 1968 and 1969 shaker investigation fishermen voluntarily kept log books of their catches and turned the information over to fisheries investigators.

The catch of coho shakers in the west coast of Vancouver Island troll fishery has been estimated at 254,000 fish in 1968 and 120,800 fish in 1969. Each of these estimates represents 13 per cent of the commercial troll catch of coho in the west coast fishery for the appropriate year.

The number of chinook shakers has been estimated at 67,200 in 1968 and 87,800 in 1969. It is noted these estimates are for the two-month period, out of the 6½-month season, and that the chinook shakers are present throughout the season.

A lure selectivity study conducted in conjunction with the investigations showed that plugs are a relatively effective lure for legal-sized chinooks and that exclusive use of plugs would greatly reduce shaker catches.

However, it appears that use of plugs by commercial trollers has declined.

Less than 20 years ago plugs were the predominant lure used to capture chinooks. By contrast, in 1969 log book records showed that only one fisherman in eight used plugs predominantly (57 out of 363 troll days) prior to the opening of coho in the west coast troll fishery.

★ ★ ★

This slaughter of salmon as shakers is of grave concern to both commercial and sports fishermen, because every fish that dies needlessly is one that is lost to fishermen . . . sports or commercial.

The obvious answer to cut down on the mortality is to enforce the exclusive use of plug fishing until coho open on June 15.

A better answer would be to stop all commercial fishing until June 15 when both chinooks and coho would be legal. The same fish would be around, only they would be bigger.

But, the big danger would be that the Russian trawlers on the big banks, who are not governed by any conservation treaties as yet, might catch and capitalize on the salmon Canadian fishermen would conserve for later fishing.

MISSING—A Coupla Joes!

Kapp

With the players-owners dispute settled, most National Football League players are in camp and preparing for this weekend's exhibition openers.

But a couple are missing and they are no ordinary Joes.

Coach Weeb Ewbank of New York had hoped to have Namath play at least one quarter in Saturday's game against Buffalo Bills but at last report Namath was in Rome making a western movie and sporting Prince Valiant-length locks.

Kapp, who became a free agent May 1 after leading Vikings to the NFL title last season, is reported to be demanding $350,000 a year in a four-year contract plus a $250,000 bonus. He is believed to be somewhere in the western United States.

General-manager Jim Finks said he intended to see Kapp's lawyer "as soon as time will allow."

If officials of either club are worried, it is not showing.

Pirates' Pitching Improves

Pittsburgh Pirates, who took over first place in the National League East through their hitting during the weekend, protected their lead Tuesday with their best pitching performance in 10 games.

Bob Veale became the first Pirate pitcher to go the distance since Dock Ellis stopped Houston Astros with a four-hit shutout July 24 when he scattered six hits for a 4-2 victory over Montreal Expos.

The Pittsburgh mound staff had allowed 25 runs in their three previous games and Veale, 7-12, hadn't won since July 7 and was unable to last past four innings in his previous two starts.

HOMER TIES GAME

Bob Robertson, whose first-inning error enabled Montreal to take a 2-0 lead, tied the game with a two-run homer in the fourth inning and singled in an insurance run in the sixth after Al Oliver scored the winning run, coming in on two wild pitches after a double.

It was only the fourth win in 10 games for Pirates, but kept them a game in front of defending-champion New York Mets, who blanked Chicago Cubs, 4-0, behind the three-hit pitching of Nolan Ryan.

SIXTH STRAIGHT WIN

St. Louis Cardinals continued their hot play, bringing their win streak to a season-high of six games with a 3-2 victory over Philadelphia Phillies.

Richie Allen tripled in the decisive run in the fifth inning after Carl Taylor, who hit a home run in the third inning, drew a two-out base on balls.

Sweat flies from Chuvalo as Foreman connects in third round

Chuvalo Stopped by Foreman But Has No Plans to Retire

NEW YORK (AP) — Young George Foreman hit George Chuvalo with a devastating left hook and then pounded the Canadian heavyweight champion at will for a third-round technical knockout in a scheduled 10-round bout at Madison Square Garden Tuesday night.

Chuvalo was hanging on the ropes and not fighting back when referee Arthur Mercante stepped in at 1:41 to stop the fight. His action was loudly booed by the Garden crowd.

22ND STRAIGHT WIN

Although Chuvalo was taking a battering from his younger opponent, he said later the bout should not have been stopped.

"I just couldn't believe it," he said.

EYE PUFFY

In the second round, Foreman continued to stick with his left jab and move around Chuvalo. Chuvalo missed with several left hooks and his left eye looked puffy.

The third round opened with Foreman continuing to jab. Chuvalo dug in a right to the body. But then Foreman landed a sharp left hook to the head which stunned Chuvalo.

IN SAME POSITION

Foreman pounded away with lefts and rights in one corner. After George escaped, he immediately found himself in the same position in another corner.

Chuvalo, who now has a record of 59 victories, 16 losses and two draws, has never been knocked off his feet and didn't go down this time either, but was unable to stop Foreman's swarming attack in the third.

It was only the second time Chuvalo had been unable to go the route. Joe Frazier, the only other man to stop the Canadian champ, did it with a TKO July 19, 1967.

It was Foreman's 19th knockout in his string of 22 wins.

OLYMPIC WINNER

Foreman first came to prominence when he waved an American flag at the Olympic Games in Mexico City after he won the Olympic gold medal.

It was only a little more than a year ago, June 23, 1969, that he had his first pro fight on the Frazier-Quarry heavyweight title show in the garden.

He went into the ring as the favorite although Chuvalo was ranked No. 3 among the contenders and Foreman No. 5 in the WBA ratings.

LARGEST PURSE

Chuvalo was guaranteed $50,000 for the night's work and Foreman got $17,500, his largest purse.

"What's that for?" he asked when someone handed him an ice pack.

He answered with a simple "Yes" when asked in the interview area if he would fight again.

In his dressing room, he said he had no plans to retire.

"I have to re-evaluate my position. . . . I have a lot of things to think about."

He said he was not hurt when the fight was stopped but "maybe I was not reacting as good as I should have."

Manitoba Gains Share of Lead

WINNIPEG (CP) — Three teams remain in contention among western clubs while Quebec and Newfoundland have clinched the top two positions in the east after action Tuesday in the interprovincial soccer championships.

Manitoba moved into a first-place tie with British Columbia in the four-team western pool with a 5-0 victory over Saskatchewan while Quebec downed Ontario, 1-0, for their third-straight victory in the eastern pool and Newfoundland clinched second place with an 8-1 victory over Nova Scotia.

The results left Manitoba and British Columbia with a win and a tie atop the western pool while Saskatchewan has a win and a loss. Alberta, with two losses in as many games, is out of contention.

A tie in the standings will be broken by a comparison of goals for and against by each team.

Quebec meets the winner of the four-team western pool Thursday to decide first- and second-place winners over-all, while Newfoundland plays the second-place team in the west for the third-place bronze medal.

Courtroom Parade

Robber Broke, Hungry

There was no money or food in the house, the welfare people had turned down three requests for food vouchers, his parents were dead and his wife's parents were away, and their friends had no money.

John Riley Isaacson, 21, of 422 Craigflower, said Tuesday in Victoria Provincial Court he realized those facts were not an excuse for theft, but he thought differently last Wednesday when the facts represented his situation.

He and Carl L. Melquist, 20, of 418-A Craigflower, changed earlier not-guilty pleas and pleaded guilty to a joint charge of breaking and entering and theft last Wednesday at a shoe store at 916 Douglas, where $164 was stolen.

Police testified Isaacson and Melquist told them they put the money in a garbage receptacle near Dallas and Douglas when police approached them an hour after the theft. But the bag that had contained the money was found in a bush nearby, with no money in either the bag or the receptacle.

The two young men were remanded to Aug. 12 for a presentence report and sentence.

"I regret that the law forces me to send you to prison," Judge William Ostler said to Mrs. Lilac Martin, 57, of 601 Cook.

But, he added, apparently an impaired-driving conviction and fine last January had not been enough to teach her the law. Mrs. Martin pleaded guilty to a charge of impaired driving Monday night in Victoria and, since a jail term is mandatory for a second "impaired" offence, the judge sentenced her to 20 days.

Frank Hoshal, 22, of 170 Old Island Highway, was fined $250 and given an 18-month driving ban after he pleaded guilty to a charge of failing to remain at the scene of an accident early Tuesday in Victoria.

Prosecutor John Macintyre, who said Hoshal's car caused $450 damage to parked car, read a driving record for Hoshal that included 13 offences since late 1966. He called the record "simply atrocious" and the judge agreed.

Fines totalling $400 and a one-year driving ban were levied against Adrian Batterbury, 25, whose address was listed as 1324 St. David or 451 Superior.

He pleaded guilty to a two-count charge of failing to remain at the scene of an accident and of driving while his licence was suspended, both offences occurring early last Sunday in Victoria.

Court was told Batterbury had two impaired-driving convictions and his licence was suspended until next Oct. 21 due to a poor driving record.

He was fined $150 and given the driving ban for failing to remain, and fined $250 for the other offence.

In the court section of Judge J. A. Byers, pleas of guilty were entered by James K. Captain, 19, of 2073 Oak Bay, to a charge of dangerous driving and a charge of failing to remain at the scene of an accident.

Court was told both offences occurred July 19 in Victoria, and Captain was fined $150 for dangerous driving, $200 for the other offence and given a four-month driving ban.

Sidney Thomas Glenny, 25, of 1540 Lionel, was fined $300 after he pleaded guilty to a charge of driving July 24 in Victoria with a blood-alcohol reading of more than .08 per cent.

New York Gang War Takes Toll

Chinese Code Torn

NEW YORK (UPI) — Police Tuesday sought the killers of a 14-year-old boy believed to be the latest victim of a wave of youth gang wars in Chinatown which threatens to disrupt the traditional parental respect that kept Chinese-American communities free of juvenile delinquency.

The body of William Wong was found at dusk Monday by customers leaving the Bamboo Garden Restaurant in the Chinese district of lower Manhattan. Detectives said the boy was stabbed by two Chinese youths. They were checking reports that he had been harassed by a gang of teen-agers earlier.

Until recent years, the strict authority maintained by parents and the traditional respect that Chinese children held for their parents and other older persons had kept the streets of Chinatown virtually free of delinquency.

★ ★ ★

But this respect and authority had been eroded recently by the large influx of rootless refugee youths from China who came to New York, often without their parents, from the crowded slums of Hong Kong and Taiwan.

One officer explained that many of the refugees have little education and speak only a little English and therefore unemployment is a problem.

In Hong Kong "they got away with murder and they think they can do the same here," he said.

★ ★ ★

Police concede there has been an increase of crime in Chinatown, but point out that it still has one of the lowest crime rates in the city.

Hydro Fight

Queen Sends Reply

Patrick Codyre received a reply Tuesday from the Queen, to whom he protested B.C. Hydro's plans to expropriate his Munn Road home and property.

The message:

"The private secretary is commanded by Her Majesty to acknowledge receipt of P. A. Codyre's cable and to state that it has been transmitted to the governor-general of Canada."

Codyre had asked the Queen to intervene after the provincial cabinet adopted an order authorizing Hydro to expropriate his property to make way for a high-voltage power line.

The order was signed by Premier Bennett, who earlier promised Codyre that his case would be arbitrated.

"Believing in justice as I do, I knew that under the circumstances the Queen would answer my telegram," he said Tuesday night.

"I think it is tragic that a Crown corporation can unnecessarily expropriate a person's land without giving the homeowner an opportunity to state the reasons he wants to keep his home."

He said it was important that both sides of such a dispute be heard in public but the cabinet order has now denied such a discussion.

Savage Bus-Takeover Bid Wilts on Council Floor

A motion by Victoria Ald. Clyde Savage to prepare a feasibility study for regional takeover of the bus system in Greater Victoria died Tuesday at a city council B committee meeting.

There was no seconder, no discussion, no vote.

"I don't know what happened. I made the motion, some girls came in with coffee, and someone — I believe it was the mayor — said that was enough of that. No vote was taken," Savage said in an interview following the meeting.

Savage said he will make the motion again — maybe at next week's council meeting.

Reading from a prepared statement, Savage said the city should operate a fast, streamlined transportation system to cope with the increasing traffic congestion and pollution.

"We talk of smoke from industry, smoke from incinerators, but frankly, the main cause of air pollution is the automobile, and the frightful condition some of our major cities find themselves in today should say to us the time to act is now," Savage said.

"We should do something before we become like any large American city with air pollution, fast traffic and huge parking lots.

He said the city manager should immediately start preparing a study into the feasibility of taking over and improving the Greater Victoria bus system.

The cost of acquiring the system, of improving it and maintaining it he said, should be determined.

The city should also explore the possibility of recovering operating losses from the provincial government, Savage said.

Before any action was taken on a takeover of the bus system, he said, the city should ask the Chamber of Commerce to conduct a campaign aimed at discouraging residents from taking their automobiles to work.

"We should also petition the provincial government, civic governments and large businesses to take the lead in instructing their employees to use the transit system," Savage said.

Church Robbed

ROME (AP) — A priceless 13th century painting portraying the Madonna and child has been stolen from the Santa Maria del Popolo Roman Catholic Church, police reported Tuesday. The 47-by 20-inch painting, by an unknow artist, has hung for centuries above the main altar.

Test Case on Fire Risk Brings $1,000 Penalty

Saying he could not believe the risk of fire would be taken for a test case, Judge J. A. Byers levied a maximum fine of $1,000 against a Victoria firm Tuesday in Victoria Provincial Court.

The fine was handed down after the judge returned a verdict of guilty against Carmel Holdings Ltd., 654 Fort, following a trial held July 24 and 28 on a four-count charge of violating regulations issued under the provincial Fire Marshal Act.

Two of the counts charged the seventh floor of the Queen Victoria Inn at 655 Douglas, owned by Carmel, was used as a public hall April 18 and 25 — for wedding receptions — without the approval of the deputy fire marshal.

The other two charged that the exit doors of the seventh floor were each 36 inches wide and were therefore less than the 44-inch legal minimum cited in the regulations.

Counsel for the defence noted the maximum penalty on each count was $250 and asked for a "very small" fine because this had been a test case of the regulations.

But the judge said the regulations contain provision for appeal to a County Court, a step which Carmel had not taken. Then, making his comment about the risk of fire, he fined Carmel $250 on each of the four counts.

And Kenneth Didn't Even Cry

Six-year-old Kenneth Mustafa, all the time refusing to cry, arrived at St. Joseph's Hospital Tuesday afternoon with a hand in a bandage and one of his fingers in a separate package.

Mrs. Dervis Mustafa said she wrapped her son's finger in a separate package before he was taken to hospital by Langford ambulance. However, doctors later had to tell her that they couldn't put it back on the hand.

Mrs. Mustafa said the finger somehow became caught on the side of the slide and about three-quarters of it was torn from the hand.

Her son simply would not cry during the ordeal — "his little eyes were just glassy and he tried to appear as if nothing had happened," she said.

Vaccine Dutch Treat?

British Columbia municipalities were urged Tuesday to pay their own way in a German measles vaccination campaign.

Mayor Hugh Curtis of Saanich, president of the Union of B.C. Municipalities, said in a message to members that they should cooperate with the provincial government as an obligation.

The need for immunization is too urgent to be delayed by provincial-municipal dickering, he said.

"I strongly urge all municipalities to be prepared to contribute toward the cost of providing German measles vaccine in partnership with the provincial government as and when it undertakes the program," Curtis said.

Saanich decided Monday to put "about $5,000 into the pot to cover our share of vaccinating pre-school children" in the four-school districts of Greater Victoria.

The Crystal

Tarzan Once Swam Here

By BILL THOMAS
First of three parts

● The Crystal Garden recreational complex was the product of a compromise between the city of Victoria and the Canadian Pacific Railways in 1923. It has been the subject of great controversy and acrimony between the city and the CPR all its life and it seems that even in its death throes the Crystal Garden will be the centre of even more bitter controversy.

In this three-part series the history of the Crystal Garden will be covered, and also the widely divergent views expressed by civic officials, aldermen, and others will be explored to determine if there is any hope of preserving this city landmark, and if so, what the costs might be.

The marriage between the city of Victoria and the CPR, which gave birth to the Crystal Garden in 1925, goes back to the turn of the century.

Harry Barnard was mayor in 1904 and 1905, and it was he who put to the citizens the dramatic plan which led to the construction of the causeway and the demolition of the wooden bridge which served the James Bay district.

This was the plan that proposed the pumping of silt from the Inner Harbor to fill the swamp area between Government Street, Humbolt Street and Douglas Street. It would cover the mud flats that then stretched to the edge of the St. Ann's Academy grounds. The land created on the two acres, later occupied by the Crystal Garden, was to be used as a garbage dump for the city's 25,000 residents.

The city fathers also agreed to provide the CPR with free water and exemption from land and improvement taxes for a period of 15 years. In turn, the CPR was to build a hotel on the reclaimed land which was to cost no less than $300,000 and to keep it open year round for 50 years.

The hotel ended up costing $1,500,000 and it is still open.

The Empress opened June 20, 1908. Booming business produced another 100 rooms in 1911, and in 1928, the north wing of 345 rooms was added.

In 1923, the city fathers suddenly realized that the 15-year-old free water and taxes agreement was at an end.

It was now that the wheeling and dealing which has marked almost all subsequent negotiations between the city and the CPR began.

Right behind the Empress was a rat-infested garbage dump, part of which had been laid out as a baseball field with seats for up to 1,500 spectators. Various city business groups had tried and failed to make the stadium a success with both baseball and lacrosse.

It was this stadium and the garbage dump that the city used as its wild card in the poker game negotiations that produced the Crystal Garden.

In an 11-page, wordy legal document Mayor Reg Hayward fixed the taxes on the Empress Hotel and its land at a flat $15,000 a year, with an extra $5,000 for city water. In return, the CPR agreed to build the Crystal Garden on the city-owned two acres. It was to cost no less than $200,000, and the CPR was to operate what was legally described as "an amusement centre" for 20 years, with the right to renew for a further 20 years.

The CPR was told "the same shall be finally completed, ready for operation, on or before the first day of December, 1925."

The city fathers went flat out in an effort to sell the public on the deal, and on December 29, 1923 the Amusement Bylaw passed 2,909 to 352.

Even then, there was a group headed by one citizen, John Dean, who was convinced the whole deal was a giveaway.

Almost everything about the Crystal Garden that was a source of civic pride in its day has become a headache. The name Crystal Garden is probably derived from the fact that the amusement centre, as it was originally named, had a glass roof not unlike that of the Crystal Palace in London. The CPR retained architect Frank Rattenbury, who had been responsible for the design of the legislative buildings, the Empress Hotel, and a number of prominent Victoria family homes.

The plan called for a salt water swimming pool 150 feet long and 40 feet wide, two ballrooms, and a theatre, and of course, the glass roof.

Most of the features that were eulogized when the Crystal Garden was opened June 25, 1925, have come back to haunt the city fathers.

Writing about the event in 1968, former alderman Archie Wills reminisced "it turned out to be one of the greatest celebrations in Victoria's long history. Faith Robson was the queen and her princesses were Bertha Ross, Grace Macrimmon, Sara Grogan, Audrey Bennett, and Theodora Service."

Wills went on to describe the crowning of the queen by Lieutenant Governor Walter Nicol, who opened the door to the Garden with a special key, after which guests sat down to a $5 plate luncheon.

In those days the Crystal enjoyed its best public relations ever. There are numerous clippings boasting about the largest enclosed salt water pool in the world. Johnny Weismuller, better known as Tarzan, swam in the pool, along with a great many other stars. The Crystal Garden gained an international reputation as a convention centre, and when the first 20 years' agreement expired, the CPR was enthusiastic about renewing the lease. That was in 1944.

This time, the city, in negotiation with the CPR raised the payments to the city from the $15,000 negotiated in 1923 to $44,000 and the Crystal was taken over for another 20 years.

By the time 1964 came around and it was time to negotiate another 20-year agreement, the CPR had cooled to the idea of renewing the lease because the company needed funds to develop the Empress. When it was taken over officially on January 1, 1965, the buildings were valued at $425,000 with estimates on the worth of the land bringing the total to $600,000.

The CPR had convenanted to devote net profits "which it receives from the amusement centre over and above operating expenses, due allowance and provision for maintainence, repairs, insurance, interest on investment at the rate of 6 per cent per annum, and reasonable allowance for depreciation, to such betterments or improvements as will in the opinion of the company, add to the attractions of the amusement centre."

The CPR's interest in the building may have waned, but the company's interest in the site did not. The controversy surrounding the building was only just beginning.

Detour Opens Soon

A section of Patricia Bay highway will be closed for several months, beginning about Aug. 15, for road widening work.

A B.C. highways department spokesman said the affected section is between Royal Oak Avenue and Falaise Cresent.

Service roads detouring around the closed section have been built and will be paved before they are put into use, he said.

The service roads run from Royal Oak Avenue to Quadra and from West Saanich Road to the open section of the highway opposite Royal Oak burial park.

The spokesman said the exact date of the closure depends on when the paving of the service roads is completed.

Tree Savers Not Satisfied

An alternative plan to save some trees on Begbie Street from being felled in a road improvement program was recommended Tuesday to Victoria city council, but a spokesman for Save-the-Trees campaigners said later the solution was not acceptable.

If council endorses a traffic committee recommendation, all trees on the north side of Begbie between Belmont and Stanley will remain and the encroachment on Stadacona Park will be more limited than originally planned.

According to the city's original scheme, all trees along both sides of Begbie were to be cut down to make room for the widening of Begbie — a part of the Johnson - Begbie - Shelbourne extension approved at the city's capital budget referendum in April.

In a six-page brief, Morris listed 10 objections and proposed as an alternative the conversion of Fernwood into a two-lane one-way artery feeding south into the city from Hillside.

He objected to a lack of information on the project prior to the referendum and told committee the capital budget would have been defeated had taxpayers known the details of the city's proposed traffic schemes.

Following Morris' presentation, Victoria Fire Chief Eric Simmons told the committee that turning Fernwood into a one-way street would cut off certain sections of the city from effective fire protection.

Mayor Courtney Haddock said the city's traffic engineering department had worked on these plans for years. There was no better plan, he said.

Morris said in an interview Tuesday night the committee meeting had been a "perversion of justice," and the outcome an unacceptable compromise.

"From the very moment we entered the room, we sensed that we were being allowed to present our brief only so that the city could give the impression that justice had been done," Morris said.

The city was disregarding the views of the taxpayers in its planning for Victoria, Morris said. Aldermen and residents who appeared before the committee, he said, had been "mesmerized by the figures and statistics" thrown at them by experts.

"We feel the taxpayers, not the civil servants, should dictate the way their city is to be developed," Morris said.

"I have been polite and constitutional so far during this campaign. Obviously this carries no weight at city hall. To be heard, taxpayers have to be tough and rude, and have a lawyer with them," he said.

Dayliner Issue Flunks

● Is CPR's obligation ended? Page 11

Victoria city council's Group B committee refused to take action Tuesday on a request by Mayor Courtney Haddock to submit a number of recommendations to the Canadian Transport Commission's hearing today regarding the CPR's application to abandon the Esquimalt and Nanaimo Dayliner run between Victoria and Nanaimo.

The decision to disregard the mayor's request was made at a closed meeting.

Ald. Clyde Savage said in an interview following the meeting the committee had no alternative but to refuse action because it had no jurisdiction over the matter.

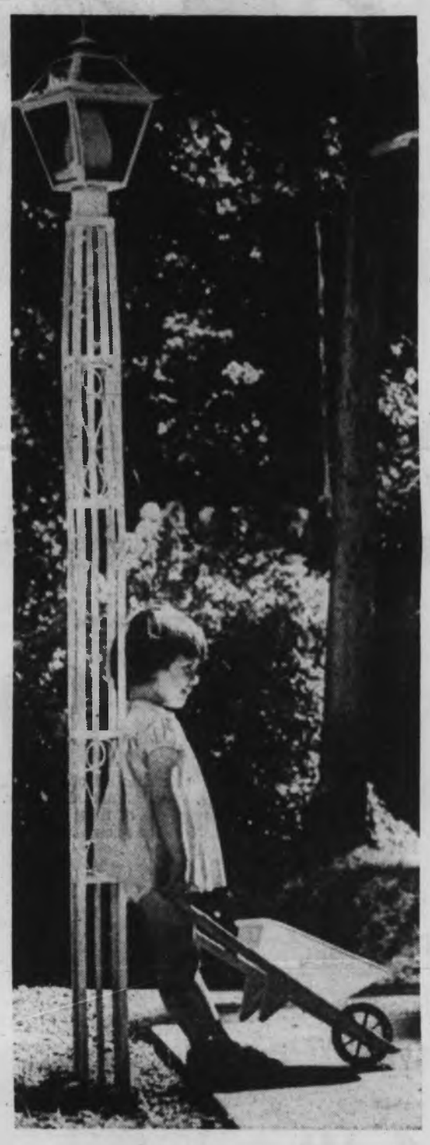

★ ★ ★

"This committee cannot commit council," he said.

Haddock, who left the meeting shortly after the issue came up, had said Monday he would seek committee's approval to send City Solicitor Terry O'Grady to the hearing with three suggestions.

Track rights should be transferred to a company which would operate the line as a tourist attraction if CP receives permission to discontinue the run.

Should permission be denied, O'Grady was to ask the hearing that CP modernize tracks and equipment and adjust the train schedule to coincide with ferry and bus departures along the route.

Pollen Idea

Pocket Parks Urged

Victoria Ald. Peter Pollen wants the city to purchase two small parcels of land and turn them into mini-parks.

The city's parks committee Tuesday endorsed a motion by Pollen asking city council to negotiate with the owners of the properties.

One lot is situated opposite the Memorial Arena at Blanshard and Discovery. Pollen told the committee it was assessed at $6,400. The other parcel of land, at the corner of Fort, Pandora and Belmont (the Oak Bay Junction) has an abandoned service station on it. Pollen said he didn't know the assessment value of this lot.

"These lots have very, very limited commercial value. The one opposite the arena has trees that are hundreds of years old. This is the type of land we should buy and save for pocket parks," Pollen told the committee.

City Comptroller Jim Bramley cautioned committee not to go too fast on the matter. He said there was no money for the acquisition of such properties in this year's budget.

Working Poor Ignored

By DON COLLINS

There was no bitterness, really. But the disappointment was unmistakable.

It was there Tuesday in the tone of an ardent trade unionist who found it necessary to say that organized labor, for the most part, had not been interested in his group of "working poor."

There are 130 of them in all — employees of four Victoria private hospitals — and they have won a long struggle by entering the labor movement with a union of their own.

This is not because they wanted their own union, says Jim Beaubien — but because no union to which they turned seemed to want them.

"They never wanted to be a separate union. They wanted to affiliate with another union, but they found the door closed to them," says Beaubien, who happens to be a member of the Hospital Employees Union — a union to which the group turned for help.

Beaubien, who has guided the group all the way to formation of the new Private Hospital and General Service Employees' Union, doesn't exclude his own union when making his accusations.

Because of this and the work he has done on behalf of the new union, he says: "I have jeopardized my own job over this thing."

It is a breach of his union's constitution to actively promote another union working in the same field. And if his union suspended him for this he would lose his job at St. Joseph's Hospital where he is a technician. Union membership is a term of employment.

But this, he feels, could be a "two-edged sword." By closing the door on people wanting to be organized the union could be violating its own constitution, he says.

The private hospital employees began trying to interest labor in their cause four years ago and failure to do so had left many of their number disenchanted with unionism.

The latest drive began early this year when one of those interested approached Beaubien because of his experience in such matters.

He had served as chairman of the 500-member Hospital Employees' Union local at St. Joseph's and was a former delegate to the Victoria Labor Council.

The union grew out of numerous meetings held at Beaubien's home at 2663 Fernwood. Later, some churches gave halls over to meetings in response to a special appeal.

The group had no funds — most earn the minimum wage of $1.50 per hour — and the churches had agreed to provide the halls rent-free.

—Ellis Shipman
Beaubien

Beaubien says the battle was not won easily. He claims there was harassment of some of those active in organizing the union and that several employees were dismissed for this reason.

Such charges concerning two women who worked at Sandringham Private Hospital will be subject of a B.C. Labor Relations Board hearing Aug. 11.

Negotiations for a first contract have just started with this hospital, and have been in progress in the other three.

Beaubien says that when he first approached his own union with the plight of the private hospital workers he was told it was too busy with its own negotiations to begin organizing.

"Now they've announced that they're going to start organizing private hospitals and nursing homes in the fall, but that's something that didn't come up until this thing of ours was well along the road," he says.

The labor council was approached and it in turn presented the case to a representative of the Canadian Labor Congress. All the while, months were passing by and nothing was happening.

Beaubien says he finally sent a telegram to a CLC official at last May's CLC convention in Edmonton "where the usual platitudes were flying around."

The result was that the Canadian Union of Public Employees came into the picture.

The new union recently received some financial assistance from CUPE, biggest of Canadian unions, and members have now voted to affiliate with this body.

Beaubien says the long wait for such a development is a symptom of the ills that he feels bother the labor movement. He believes labor is guilty of dodging self-criticism and spends too much time and money in jurisdictional disputes and too little on helping the unorganized.

★ ★ ★

He sees a need for more welfare money in the operation of the private hospitals and nursing homes and adds,

"The people who work in these places at $1.50 an hour are subsidizing the operation. The rest of society should be ashamed of itself."

Beaubien, 36, the father of seven, says he stepped into the picture in the beginning to counsel the workers and ended up acting as a sort of business agent and chief negotiator.

The new union wants rates equal to those paid in acute care hospitals and is asking for wages ranging from $2.05 to $3.56 an hour for the various job classifications.

"I didn't intend to stay on like this in the first place," Beaubien says, "I'll be glad to turn it over to the other now."

"I guess they picked me because they thought I'd know something about organizing. Any guy with seven kids has to know something about that."

Crash Hurts City Couple

A Victoria couple was taken to St. Joseph's Hospital Monday night with multiple injuries received when their southbound sports car went off the road and rolled into a ditch on the Malahat near the cutoff to Shawnigan Lake, Colwood RCMP said.

Hospital authorities said Herbert Ford, 46, of 411 Kingston, is in fair to poor condition with multiple fractures to his neck and skull. They said his wife, Mary, 41, is in fair condition with fractured ribs and other undetermined injuries. RCMP said both were thrown clear of the car.

ANN LANDERS

She Ruled Roost

Mean Ma Her Salvation

Dear Ann Landers: We had the meanest mother in the world. While the other kids on our block enjoyed candy for breakfast, we had to eat cereal. They were treated to soda pop and pizza for lunch. We were stuck with sandwiches and milk.

Our mother insisted on knowing where we were at all times — like criminals on parole. She had to know where we were going and who we were with every time we left the house. We had orders when to be home and no excuses were acceptable. She also broke the child labor law. She made us work. We were forced to wash dishes, make beds, cook, sew and do all the rotten jobs, like take out the trash and keep up the yard. Our mother must have stayed up nights thinking up things for us kids to do. We never had a minute to just relax, or fool around..

Ma was like a judge when it came to "facts." We had to tell everything exactly perfect — the truth, the whole truth and nothing but the truth. She should have been on the Supreme Court.

By the time we were teenagers our friends knew we had a very mean mother. When guys came to get Sis and me Ma embarrassed them to death by making them come to the door. Other girls could run out to the car when they heard a horn toot but Ma wouldn't stand for any horn blowing in front of our house. I forgot to mention that Ma's nuttiness nearly made old maids out of us. Our girl friends were allowed to date at 12 and 13 but we couldn't go out until we were 15.

As you can guess, our mother was a complete failure. None of us kids were ever arrested for rioting. We never spent a night in jail. You can't imagine the shame we felt when other kids told about freaking out and getting busted in drug raids. We had to sit there like squares without a blamed thing to tell.

My brothers both served in the air force even though they were very much opposed to the war. They even took part in some peaceful anti-war demonstrations. But somehow they just couldn't see burning their draft cards or going to Canada and giving up their citizenship forever. They said it was too much like copping out.

I've given a lot of thought to how I'm going to raise the kids I hope to have. Although our mother was awfully mean I'll have to admit we all turned out pretty well. None of us kids ever went the pill or drug route. We all seem to be in good shape, physically and emotionally. And each of us has a pretty good idea of what we want to do with our lives. Most of our friends whose mothers were easy going or too busy to pay attention to them are having a lot of trouble. I've decided if my kids think half as much as me as I think of my mother I'll be very proud. I guess I'll be a mean mother, too. —Looking Ahead.

Dear Looking: I've received complaints about "mean mothers" from every state in the union. Your letter said it best. Thanks for writing.

Hunger Strike Fattening

MATSQUI (CP) — Two Doukhobor women who fasted 30 days at the Matsqui Institute in the Fraser Valley have ended their fast after one of them gained 10 pounds.

Warden James Murphy said Monday that Mary Malakoff and Marsha Astaforoff are both in good health and spirits. He said one of them has gained 10 pounds, apparently from lack of exercise and lots of fluids from forced feeding during the fast.

Four other Doukhobor women of an original group of six charged with arson early in July fasted for 18 days at Oakalla Prison in Burnaby.

Female? So What

Myra's Little War Earns Tina Home

KINGSTON, Ont. (CP) — Twenty-one-year-old Myra Smith went to war against government red tape and discrimination against females and saved a timber wolf.

At stake was Tina, a 12-weeks-old timber wolf who was to be destroyed because she was a female.

Under government regulations, Ontario residents may own one male timber wolf, provided they keep it in captivity and in proper facilities.

But the law says female wolves cannot be kept at home because of reproduction problems.

★ ★ ★

"If you can own a male, why not a female," asked Miss Smith. It looked like discrimination to her and she decided to fight the regulation.

Her problems started when she decided to own a wolf, an animal she considers beautiful and capable of taming.

"If it's possible to tame a lion or a tiger, what's the problem with a wolf?" she asked.

She went to a local lands and forests official who told her about a permit and that the pen would have to be at least 10 by 15 feet. But, she said in an interview, he did not inform her that it was prohibited to own a female.

She went to Montreal and bought Tina and two weeks later was informed the wolf would have to be returned or destroyed because it was a female.

But by that time, the pretty secretary at a local high school had grown fond of her pet and felt the regulation was unfair.

She offered to have the animal spayed to overcome the reproduction problem but was told by a lands and forests official that "a female is a female, no matter what organs it's provided with."

A few weeks ago, finally, she received permission to keep the animal because of the special circumstances of her case and provided that it be spayed.

Government officials are still dubious, though, fearing the wolf might bite someone when it is older and Miss Smith would have a lawsuit on her hands.

But she disagrees and says the animal will be kept well under control.

"I don't treat her any differently than any other dog. I'd be more afraid of a German shepherd than I am of her. The kids love her."

Industry Raps Critic

Cereal 'Good Food'

WASHINGTON (AP) — The dry-cereal industry defended its product before a U.S. Senate sub-committee Tuesday and said an earlier witness who testified that cereals have almost no nutritional value didn't know what he was talking about.

"Breakfast cereals are good foods," said Dr. Frederick Stare, a Harvard nutrition professor and syndicated newspaper columnist who testified on behalf of Kellogg Co. and National Biscuit Co.

"A breakfast of cereal and milk," said Stare, "any kind of milk, along with some fruit, a couple of pieces of toast, some polyunsaturated margarine, a little jelly or jam, is just as nutritious as a bacon-and-egg breakfast with fruit, toast and something to put on the toast."

Stare, one of four industry witnesses to appear before the Senate consumer subcommittee, said in prepared testimony that he had been shocked to read of a report given the subcommittee last week by Robert Choate, a Washington lobbyist who has spent the last three years studying national food policy.

Choate said most cereals offer only empty calories and presented a chart ranking 60 dry cereals. He said his studies showed only the top nine "nutritionally meritorious." The remainder, including such old standbys as Wheaties, Cheerios and top brands of shredded wheat, he ranked least beneficial, most costly and most heavily advertised on children's television.

"It is meaningless," Stare said of Choate's chart, "because it ignores the way 95 per cent of breakfast cereals are consumed, that is, with milk. It is meaningless because it ignores a basic contribution of any cereal, energy value or calories. It is meaningless because it ignores the concept of the protein quality of the combination of cereal and milk, which is the way breakfast cereals are consumed."

Stare and J. P. MacFarland, chairman of the board of General Mills, Inc., took issue with Choate's charges that the industry, through massive advertising of low-nutritional products, is educating American children away from nutrition. MacFarland said: "Cereals were never intended to be, nor are they promoted as, a 'complete meal'".

Not Feminine

'Oils' Irked Painter

NEW YORK (CP) — In 1964, Theo Grewer decided that being an oil well driller in Alberta was no job for a woman.

She happened upon a Chinese water-color exhibition in Vancouver's Chinatown and her new career was launched.

★ ★ ★

Miss Grewer, of Vancouver, now has an exhibition at the first annual New York international art show that runs until next Sunday.

She said in an interview Monday that she decided to get into "something more feminine" and so quit the oil business.

When she saw the Chinese art exhibit, "instinctively I knew what I should be doing."

Two weeks later she was in Hong Kong to study Chinese art and has returned there six times to study under Prof. Chao Shao-an, whose exhibit she saw in Vancouver in 1964.

Critics have called Miss Grewer the top Chinese artist on this continent and one of the few westerners to master the art.

From UPI

Some Americans have switched brands. Others have sworn off. But for most the revelation that some cereals aren't worth much nutritionally has drawn a breakfast table yawn.

A United Press International shopping cart survey, further, seems to indicate that no one should ever underestimate the power of a woman's children.

When a researcher announced in Washington last month that most dry cereals come up short in nutrients, industry representatives responded with strong defence of their products and their marketing methods.

Perhaps they didn't have to get so worked up. The survey of food stores across the nation produced plenty of people who had heard about cereal shortcomings, but it also revealed plenty of unconcern.

Mrs. Walter Vignault, Framingham, Mass., mother of two summed up the situation for what may well be the majority of her peers.

"I'm going to buy what I've been buying," she explained. "I don't place that much emphasis on their cereals — I think we're eating enough other nutritional foods."

"I don't buy the cereal," Mrs. Nancy Eubank, Minneapolis, said. "I let Christopher pick his own."

Computer Aids Adoption

By JEAN MURPHY
Colonist-Los Angeles Times Service

SACRAMENTO — In the only program of its kind in the U.S., a computer here matches homeless children with adoptive parents.

The computer is fed data on children and adoptive applicants from 35 public and private adoption agencies in the state.

The adoption resource referral centre of the state department of social welfare was set up in 1968 to help find homes for hard-to-place children.

★ ★ ★

"For example, a Caucasian-Japanese child from the Bay area was recently adopted by a Caucasian-Japanese family in southern California," said Helen Cather, adoption exchange co-ordinator.

"And a Caucasian family in northern California, registered with a private agency, took in a racially mixed girl from a public agency in southern California."

Although the department launched a state-wide hand operation of matching adoptive parents with children in 1957, it was not until 1965 that the idea of computerizing the program was born and not until 1968 that it was funded in the department budet.

"We didn't really get going until this year, and we're still in the process of perfecting it," Miss Cather said.

"In the computer today are 495 children and 725 families on the active file," Miss Cather said.

On each child and each family is information ranging from age and color of hair to the child's physical handicaps, if any, and the family's income and requirements in a child.

Every child is compared with every family and every family is compared with every child.

"We get about 500 printouts a week," Miss Cather said, "but remember that one family, especially if it's flexible in terms of age, handicaps and ethnic background of the child, may be matched with as many as 50 children."

The printouts are sent to the involved agencies.

"The computer produces only a gross match," said Frank Howard, assistant chief of the California Department of Social Welfare's bureau of adoptions and foster care.

"It's a good tool but it does not replace the human factor which only the social workers can supply," Howard said.

The department of social welfare, which licenses all adoption agencies in the state, requires that agencies must register every child who has not been placed after 60 days.

Families for whom a child has not been found after 60 days must also be registered.

"However, agencies do not have to wait the 60 days if they have a child or applicants that they feel they will not be able to serve in their own areas," Howard said.

Howard and Miss Cather noted a change in the expectations of adoptive parents: They are becoming more flexible about accepting racially mixed children and children with handicaps.

"I am amazed that there are families who will accept a child with a terminal illness, even though they know he will die within a year or so," Howard said.

Miss Cather noted:

"In the beginning, everybody wanted a blue-eyed, blonde infant girl but both families and agencies are becoming more flexible and relaxed now.

"However, I wish adoptive applicants would be more flexible about age. We've noticed the demand for babies under three-months-old.

"This is unrealistic. I think people would be more flexible on age if they knew that children are seldom available under three.

Montreal's Hair Casting

One-Tongue 'Dogs' Need Not Apply

MONTREAL (CP) — Auditions for the Montreal version of the tribe-rock musical Hair open today with nearly 500 shaggy hopefuls scheduled to compete for a mere 28 roles.

★ ★ ★

George MacPherson of New York, national director of Hair, says he is pleased with the assortment of "such great-looking people" who turned up at Comedie Canadienne Monday to register for try-outs.

In other cities where Hair has been performed, such as London, Stockholm, Toronto and Amsterdam, he said, "we are getting such dogs."

MacPherson defined dogs as straight-looking, older people or "people with very short hair."

So Funny, So Today

Financier Triumphs

By BILL THOMAS

Ralph Allen has directed a masterpiece in his own translation of the Financier that is well worth the investment of an evening at the McPherson Playhouse.

The Lesage comedy of the 18th Century enjoyed an excellent response when it opened Tuesday to a full house. Allen seems to have established a style for the period that is all his own and he has exploited it to the full.

This is a comedy of conspicuous affluence and the plague of over-consumption that is so pointed as to be painful in its contemporary application. There are people who might squirm at the production, the point is so well taken and so well made.

The strength of this production lies in the casting of the supporting roles. There is a tendency to slightly overdo the business at times but it's hard to fault Tony Jenkins who out-fops anything we have seen in a long time.

He does the Marquis to a turn and comes out laughing. This is easily his best performance to date. Jenkins has style and flair, producing exactly the caricature the play needs.

Maria Wozniak is also excellent in her role as maid to the Baroness played by Harriet Allen.

It is apparent that Miss Wozniak has been influenced in her development by Miss Allen's own style which in this case is all to the good.

The Financier, who brings about his own downfall by a number of shady deals, is a made-to-measure role for Richard Galuppi. He manages to thunder and blunder his way from wealth to ruin by way of my lady's chamber and he does it beautifully.

The Knight played by John Krich is competent though the role doesn't offer him quite the elasticity of his part in Androcles. He still shines.

Eric Schneider is not quite as polished as might be wished in his role as the servant who cheats his way into good fortune. He seems to lack the incisive sense of style and feeling that has caught the imagination of the rest of the cast.

The Robert Cothran setting is totally in tune with the extravagance conceived by Allen in his translation and direction of the comedy. The walls drip with pictures in terribly poor taste and the room reeks of tasteless money poorly spent.

Allan Granstrom has found the period to his liking and designed some brilliantly extravagant costumes that contribute to the compound interest of affluence ill-directed. His designs for the Marquis are particularly effective.

Humor Patient

There comes a time in the life of almost every home gardener when his wife becomes infected with the floral art bug. The first symptoms of this incurable malady appear when she starts bringing home books from the library by Constance Spry and Helen Van Pelt Wilson, plus a few slim volumes by Japanese authors with unpronouncable names.

In later stages, the victim babbles endlessly about communicated movement and the Hogarth Curve, and will show a propensity for bringing home old bricks, chunks of bleached driftwood from the beach, and the occasional broken piece of hollow tile. When she spurns your prize-winning dahlia blooms in favor of tufted grasses and dried seed pods from roadside weeds, the infection has reached the chronic and incurable stage, and all you can do is humor the patient.

In catering to this phobia, it isn't a bad idea to gather together a stock of dried flowers and floral material to keep the little woman happily occupied through the winter months. You can make a start with the usual "everlasting" flowers such as Statice and helichrysum, but if you don't have these in your garden, there are quite a few of the ordinary garden flowers which will dry quite well.

The trick with these is to pick them when they are almost but not quite fully open, strip all the leaves from their stems, and hang them upside down in small bunches in a dark, dry cupboard. The dryness of the atmosphere will absorb the moisture from the flowers, while the darkness will help retain the color of the petals.

Some flowers which respond quite well to this treatment are larkspur and delphinium, achillea, echinops, golden rod, liatris and the hardy outdoor hydrangea. This is effective treatment, too, for the "regular" everlastings such as Bells of Ireland, Sea Lavender and the like.

Some of the more difficult garden flowers can be dried for winter use by burying them in a box of powdered borax or a special flower-drying product based on silica gel and sold in many garden shops. Just lay the blooms flat on a bed of the powder and cover slowly and gently with a trickle of the same material. Leave the flowers in the powder for two weeks and they'll come out perfectly preserved, with their color unimpaired.

The open, flattish kinds of flowers such as zinnias, scabious, cornflowers and daisies respond well to this treatment. At a pinch, beach sand can be used instead of borax or silica gel, but it must be bone dry — the slightest trace of dampness will develop mildew on the flowers.

You can dry the flowers this way, but not the leaves, which must be removed first, so your flower-arranging spouse is going to need preserved foliage of some kind for background material. The best kinds are birch, maple, oak and cotoneaster, cutting branches or sprays and submerging the cut ends in a jar containing a mixture of one part glycerine and two parts water.

★ ★ ★

Leave these sprays of foliage in the solution for a month, or until the leaves start to weep tears of glycerine all over your furniture. Top up the level of the liquid in the jar with plain water as required. By that time the leaves will have turned color to their typical fall shades — yellow, scarlet, purple and a handsome glossy brown — but they will be pliable and leathery, and they won't fall off the branch all winter.

ARTHUR HOPPE

Golda's Open Letter

There was tiny Israel, surrounded by 50,000,000 hostile Arabs grimly united in their determination to throw her into the sea.

Her only powerful ally, the United States, was pushing her into negotiations she didn't want to undertake. Never had her future looked more hopeless.

It was at this point that Premier Golda Meir wrote her famous "Open Letter to the World."

"To Whom It May Concern," she wrote, "everybody wishes peace in the Middle East. But, clearly, the Arabs are never going to give up. Therefore, there is only one way to achieve peace in the Middle East and make everybody happy: So we give up."

The unconditional surrender of Israel stunned the world. The Arabs were jubilant, the Russians delighted. "In a way, it's a shame," said the U.S. State department with a sigh of relief, "but all things considered . . ."

Almost overlooked in the excitement was the postscript Mrs. Meir had appended to her letter: "PS. To whom should we surrender?"

"As leader of the united Arab world," said President Nasser in a triumphant broadcast from Cairo, "I shall go personally to Jerusalem to accept the abject surrender of the Israelis whom I have at last brought to their knees."

★ ★ ★

"Look here," said the Syrians, "we hated the Israelis more than you hated the Israelis. And we'll treat them more hatefully than anybody."

And down on the Persian Gulf, such Arab leaders as the Imquat of Qumquat and the Sukhat of Tash angrily demanded a piece of the vengeful action.

But most outraged, of course, were the Palestinian guerrillas, who had been outraged for years.

"It's my country," shouted Al Fatah, leader of the dread Palestine Freedom Fighters (PFF). "And I'll lead the victorious forces into my reconquered land."

★ ★ ★

"Over my dead body!" cried his brother, George, leader of the dread Freedom Fighters of Palestine (FFP).

"I'll buy that," said Al. And they started a war to see who'd be first to overthrow the government of Lebanon, which was handy.

Iraq sided with Al and Libya with Gorge. Saudi Arabia, which despised Iraq more than it despised Libya, invaded Kuwait, which it didn't like either.

The Imquat of Qumquat ordered his air force to warm up its engine and go bomb Algeria. Syria attacked Egypt. And only Yemen maintained a strict neutrality, it not wishing anything to interfere with its own civil war.

Naturally, the sides changed from week to week, that being the way it is in the Middle East. And naturally the Arabs fought on year after year with undiminished vigor, valor and venom, that also being the way it is in the Middle East.

★ ★ ★

Mrs. Meir said Israel would stand by its pledge to surrender to the proper Arab leader — "even if it takes the Arabs a thousand years to determine which one it should be." Experts said she was being overly optimistic.

French Clarity

One of my children wanted to know why French was, and remains, the language of international relations, when English is so much more widespread and easier to learn.

★ ★ ★

Each language, of course, has its own strengths and weaknesses; and ours cannot be matched for simplicity, directness and power. But it lacks the precision and subtlety of French, just as it lacks the tonal beauty of Italian, or the philosophic depth of German.

It is no accident that the most beautiful operas are sung in Italian, the most complex philosophical systems devised in Geman, the most popular "second language" in the world is English — or that, despite its loss of empire and influence, France still dominates in the language of diplomacy and international relations.

In English, for instance, there is really only one way to say: "I saw a white horse." If we want to emphasize one particular aspect of that sentence, we have to stress the key word, either in speaking or in italicizing it in print, like "I saw a white horse," or "I saw a white horse," or "I saw a white horse," or even "I saw a white horse."

In French there are four different syntactical ways to put the same sentence, depending upon which element is to be stressed. The ordinary unstressed sentence is "J'ai vu un cheval blanc."

★ ★ ★

But "I saw a white horse," becomes "C'est moi qui ai vu un chevel blanc." Whereas, 'I saw a white horse" turns into 'Mais j'ai bien vu un cheval blanc." And 'I saw a white horse" converts into "C'est un cheval blanc que j'ai vu."

The French versions leave no room for doubt or ambiguity, by their very word-order; it is impossible to mistake what the writer or speaker is emphasizing. For French aims at clarity of meaning beyond all else, whereas English is much more loose and subjective.

(It also explains why a great poet like Shakespeare cannot be appreciated in French translation, where he seems merely "sloppy"; and also why France has produced no poet of comparable greatness.)

Moreover, conversation is considered one of the highest arts in France, whereas North Americans (and British, too) are almost ashamed of speaking well and properly.

The French admire leaders for their verbal graces, while one of the reasons Americans failed to elect Adlai Stevenson as president was suspicion of his verbal facility.

We prefer the strong silent man, whose silence is more likely a sign of weakness of intellect than of strength of character.

Those Were the Days — By Hal Boyle

The Safe-Deposit Mind

The best safe-deposit vault is the human mind.

Among the valuables stored in it are memories, which often have the power to uplift the spirit and sometimes make it wise.

★ ★ ★

One of the pleasant things about memories is that you can share them with others, over and over again, and never wake up on the morrow a penny poorer.

Your own hoard of memories is pretty extensive if you can look back and remember when:

If you were the middle child in a large family, you thought clothing came in only two sizes — too big for you or too small for you.

When you visited the doctor, no matter what ailed you, the first thing he asked you to do was to stick out your tongue and say "ah-h-h-h!"

You could win a reputation as a local sage by uttering such profundities as: "It ain't what you want but what you eat that makes you fat," or, "If the dog hadn't stopped to scratch, he'd have caught the rabbit." It was the repeated hearing of remarks such as those that led people to flee to larger cities.

The usual waiting line at the neighborhood movie house melted to nothing the day the price went up to 15 cents from 10 cents. People looked at each other wonderingly — and asked how far could inflation go.

When you had to go somewhere, you went as near to it as you could by streetcar, then walked the rest of the way.

Every young wife spent at least part of every other day looking at herself in the mirror and brooding over what Mary Pickford had that she didn't have — besides Douglas Fairbanks.

One of the things a child secretly liked about grandpa was that, when he blew his nose, he did it loud enough to make echoes — a feat which always brought a testy look from grandma.

If you inherited anything from a relative who had passed to his reward, it was more likely to be old furniture than fresh money.

Men who chewed tobacco were contemptuously sure that the sissies who smoked cigarettes would sooner or later die of tuberculosis.

★ ★ ★

If you didn't have the cash in your pocket to buy it, you did without it.

If there wasn't anything more urgent to do, you could always pass the time constructively by killing flies.

Those were the days — remember?

The Canadian Film Development Corporation (that's your tax money) has given $100,000 to Torontonians Ivan Reitman, 23, and Dan Goldberg, 21, so they can make a movie called Foxy Lady. Famous Players Canadian and Cinipix of Montreal have given another $50,000 each.

So what, you say? Reitman and Goldberg were recently convicted in Ontario on obscenity charges connected with the production and showing of a film called Columbus of Sex. They were fined $300 and given one year's probation. That's what.

BUREAU OF USELESS INFORMATION: Tuesday's answer — Silver screen sallies continued with A Place in the Sun, which starred Montgomery Clift and was based on An American Tragedy by Theodore Dreiser. And in The Prize, Edward G. Robinson played a double role with the prize being Paul Newman's Nobel prize for literature. A funny film.

Today's question — Back to who played the title role in the movies, an interminable game. Kindly identify those who played the title roles in the films Robinson Crusoe, Rose of Washington Square, Ruby Gentry, Reluctant Astronaut and Ramona. Answers Thursday.

Wednesday Highlights

C-8:00 a.m.—Dick Warner, the Victoria fire department's safety inspector, shows Good Morning a timely film on barbecue safety—6, 8.

C-6:00 p.m.—Baseball, Chicago Cubs in Montreal. A few more years and the Expos could become the Mets of the north—2, 6.

C-8:30—A repeat of an enjoyable Boston Pops hour with George Shearing. The music is Mozart, Lullaby of Birdland, Weber, Dvorak and Vaughan Williams—9.

C-9:30—The CBC is repeating Glenn Gould's 1967 Idea of North on both TV and radio. You must see or hear it to dig it—2, 6.

Wednesday Movies

9:00 a.m.—Cinderella Jones (hopeless 1946 Warners luv stuff). Forget everybody but Cuddles Sakall, a nostalgia winner—4.

12:45 noon—The Cracksman (so-so 1963 suspense-comedy), Charles Drake, George Sanders, Dennis Price. Drake is miscast—6, 8.

5:30 p.m.—Belle Starr's Daughter (sickening 1948 offspring) George Montgomery, Ruth Roman, Rod Cameron. Why do they have to make sequels?—12.

C-9:00—See How They Run (1964 killer chases children), John Forsythe, Jane Wyatt, Senta Berger, Leslie Nielsen. I've either forgotten it, or I missed it—7.

12:00—No title available. I missed this, too—13.

1:05 a.m.—Man in the Saddle (1951 Randolph Scott). There is no truth to the rumor that Scott is George Montgomery's illegitimate father—5.

Wednesday Radio

8:00 p.m.—Concern is about germ warfare, and Ideas Network at 9 p.m. tackles Kierkegaard. It's time to think—CBU (690).

8:05—Gala Performance has some winners: Brahms' first symphony, the Moldau, Borodin's Steppes—CFMS (98.5).

9:30—More of Glenn Gould's Idea of North—CBU-FM (105.7).

C—Color.

Winning Contract

By HOWARD and BEE SCHENKEN

A certain degree of megalomania among bridge experts is more or less taken for granted and therefore we may perhaps be excused for recalling a deal which gave the lesser half of this partnership a measure of quiet satisfaction when it came up during an exhibition match played by the 1963 North American international team.

The bidding:

North	East	South	West
1♣	Pass	1♠	Pass
2♡	Pass	2 NT	Pass
3♠	Pass	4♠	All pass

Opening lead: Eight of ♡.

North's one club opening was the Big Club, showing 17 high-card points or a strong distributional hand. Thereafter the bidding was natural.

In view of West's opening lead of the eight of hearts, it seemed likely that East held the king. Nevertheless, we decided we had to get the heart suit going and so we finessed the queen.

East correctly returned a diamond, dislodging the ace. At this point the contract might appear to be in considerable jeopardy, yet when you think about it the outlook is far from unhealthy — by establishing the hearts, declarer is likely to get home whenever the major suits are reasonably well divided.

Declarer ruffed a low heart — a key play — and then continued with the A-K of spades, collecting West's queen.

Two winning hearts provided discards for two losing diamonds, and although East ruffed the next heart, declarer was able to overruff. Dummy was entered by ruffing a club and the remaining heart provided the tenth trick.

Thus the contract was made by virtue of five spade tricks in the closed hand, a ruff in dummy, three heart tricks and the ace of diamonds.

It may appear that dropping the queen of spades was a stroke of fortune but this is not really so. The contract was due to come home just so long as West held either three hearts or any doubleton spade. If East had held Q-x-x of spades instead of x-x-x, the contract would still have been made.

Hovercraft

Passenger Service In Future

Those saving their money for the day when hovercraft passenger service resumes between Vancouver Island and the mainland will probably be disappointed.

Even if the legislative issue that stopped passenger service between Vancouver and Nanaimo last year is resolved, it will be at least 15 months before Pacific Hovercraft, the firm which operated the run, will be interested in re-establishing it, the firm's managing director said Tuesday.

* * *

"We'd rather get a $300,000 or $400,000 contract than sell 100,000 people," said Barry Jones. "It's hard work to get the contract, but once you have it, it's easy.

"The objective of the passenger service was to train our people and to introduce the potential for contract work. We did that very well."

The Vancouver-Nanaimo service stopped in 1969 after the federal government changed legislation under which the hovercraft was covered, removing it from aeronautical control.

Government plans were to amend the Canada Shipping Act to cover the vehicle but this amendment has not yet been passed.

* * *

Until now, Jones had maintained that lack of legislation was preventing resumption of passenger service.

His comments were made at a public meeting held to begin a province-wide sales campaign designed to sell shares totalling $880,000.

Jones also said that if contracts were to come in now requiring the use of additional hovercraft, the units would probably be built in the Vancouver area.

Run of Big Springs May Be on Way

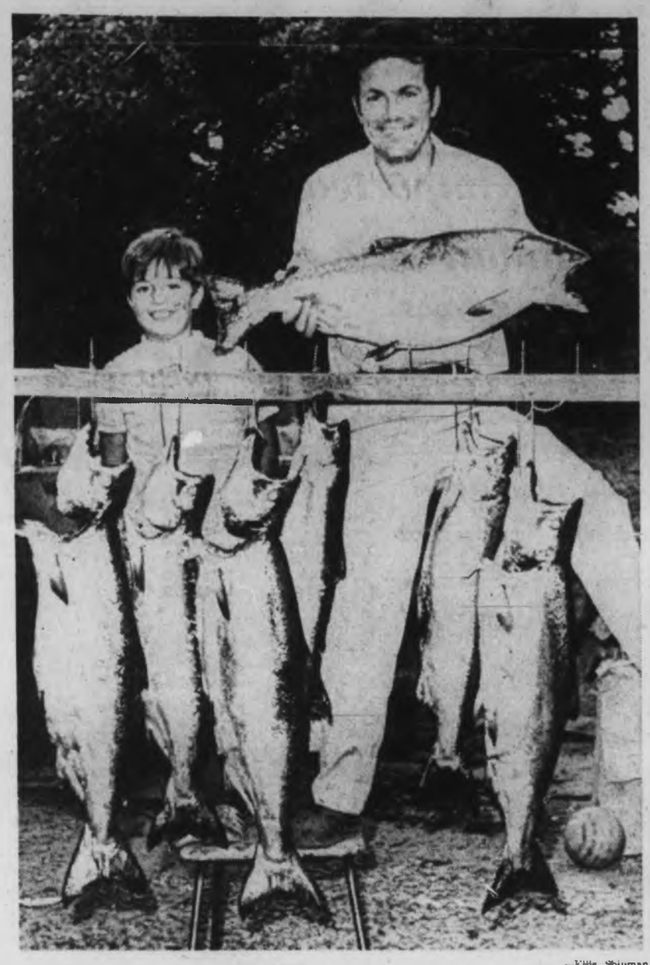

Good news for anglers from Port Renfrew to Victoria is a run of big spring (chinook) salmon which hit Port Renfrew waters at the weekend and are likely working their way down and around the tip of Vancouver Island.

Among the lucky anglers who hit them were Milko Jadresko and his nine-year-old son Danny, who between them landed a 22.11-pounder and 20.5, 20.4, 18.0, 17.5, 14.2, 12.2 and 5.5-pounders in two days of fishing.

They caught them on white and green flashtails and red and white bucktails, flashers and four to six ounces of weight at the mouth of the bay on both sides at the points.

Brent Rowland of Port Renfrew landed a 26.7-pounder on flashtail and Frank Elliott got a 25.6-pounder mooching with squid. Don Pinder got a 24.4-pounder on Alaskan plug.

UVic Chief Questions 'Rebuke' Accusation

An account of an incident in which UVic president Dr. Bruce Partridge was alleged to have rebuked a university staff member for having allowed his wife to publicly make an unfavorable comment about Premier Bennett has been questioned by Partridge.

David Dunsmuir, former UVic information officer, had charged Monday that Partridge had approached him and said he had "done us a great disservice" after Dunsmuir's wife made her comments in a letter to the editor of one of the daily newspapers.

"Apparently Dave's recollection of the conversation, which occurred almost a year ago, and mine are quite different," Partridge said.

"I do recall the incident and I remember I pointed out that snide sarcasm is a poor substitute for mature comment.

* * *

"As I have said a number of times publicly, a university must accept and even encourage dissent, but there's an equal obligation to make it responsible and positive rather than merely critical and negative."

Girl Falls, Breaks Leg

Lori Sather, 11, of 8870 East Saanich, suffered a fractured right leg Monday afternoon in an accident near the bottom of Niagara Canyon falls in Goldstream Park.

Langford fire department officials, who were called to the scene, said a group of youngsters were swimming in a pool at the foot of the falls. Lori, a member of the group, was climbing up a nearby rock face when a branch broke and she fell.

Fishermen Angered By Davis Bypass

He will not be stopping in the city where fisherman want to meet him to discuss the Russian fishing fleet operating off the Island.

There was an angry reaction Tuesday from fishermen who have been demanding a meeting with Prime Minister Trudeau, Davis and External Affairs Minister Mitchell Sharp after a Port Alberni troller was sideswiped by a Russian trawler recently.

"Is he afraid to come and meet with a group of women and children?" asked Mrs. Hazel Koenders, wife of one of the fishermen.

The wives have been active in supporting their husbands who want talks with federal representatives in an effort to get protection for Island fishermen.

It was learned Tuesday that Davis went aboard the 46-foot Cymry, owned by Jack Meredith-Jones, president of the Pacific Trollers' Association, at noon to see the Russian fishing fleet from the commercial fishermen's point of view.

A fisheries department official told the Colonist that the visit was being kept secret because they didn't want to frighten off the Russians.

Air View

Accompanying Davis is Rod Hourston, regional director of the fisheries department.

It is expected that he and Davis will leave the Cymry sometime this morning and make their way to CFB Comox, arriving there by noon.

Then Davis, accompanied by newsmen, will fly over the Russian fleet for an aerial impression.

A fisheries vessel reported Tuesday morning that there were 11 Russian and one Jananese trawler about 15 miles south of Pachena Point, Barkley Sound.

Barry Robinson, whose boat was struck by the Russian trawler, said in an interview Tuesday, "I would think that Mr. Davis appears to be avoiding us. I am losing what confidence I had that he would help."

"He made statements that ships would be sent out to protect us and he has not said how many, where they will be or for how long."

"I think it is necessary that the boys should know they are going to be protected on a 24-hour basis but there has been nothing definite forthcoming. I am very disappointed in the Ottawa people and in Mr. Davis in particular."

'A Farce'

Robinson commented on a suggestion that fishermen could talk to Trudeau if they went to proposed meetings at Bella Coola or Prince Rupert this week.

He described the idea as "a farce."

Robinson said Port Alberni was the obvious choice for a meeting place and fishermen from Tofino, Ucluelet, Bamfield and even Victoria could attend a meting here and return to their home ports the same day.

"I can assure you that if Davis did attend a meeting here, well over half of all the fishermen on the west coast have said they would attend even though some would have to come as far as 200 miles by boat. He certainly wouldn't suffer from a lack of attention."

Robinson added: "In a way I don't blame him for not meeting us. He would be presented with statements designed to make him think seriously and I don't think he wants to be committed."

Colin Wilson of McCoy Lake, who chaired a protest meeting last week, said: "It is about time he did get out there with the fishing fleet. I can appreciate him not letting everyone know about his plans but he should still talk to the boys and their wives."

Few Hours

Asked if he felt Davis was avoiding a meeting, Wilson said: "I don't know what to think. I feel he should have contacted someone here at least give some reassurance."

He said he did not know what Davis could see in a few hours — "if he wants to find out what it's really like, he should spend several days there especially if the Russian fleet is still in the vicinity."

Mrs. Elliott Cook, wife of a fisherman, expressed surprise that no reply had been received from Davis or Sharp to the wires sent by the fishermen. She said she understood both had been in Vancouver during the last few days — "both were so close, why couldn't they have come?"

Discussing the Prince Rupert meeting, Mrs. Cook said she had made the trip last year. She said the fare was $43 a person. First, one had to get to Vancouver then take a bus to the airport, $1.75 each way, go to Prince Rupert and take an airport bus into Prince Rupert, $3 each way.

She said that it would be supper time by the time one reached the city and then one would have to stay overnight in order to attend a meeting and at this time of the year, there would be no accommodation available.

Mrs. Koenders, whose husband owns the Shirley Ann B. said it was not a case of "how can we get to Prince Rupert or Bella Coola" but "why should we go?"

She said dozens of fishermen and their wives would attend a meeting in Port Alberni and "everyone paid high taxes which covers the expenses of government officials."

Mrs. Koenders said it was certainly more practical and sensible to have one man come to meet several hundred fishermen than it was to have several hundred fishermen go to meet one man.

Nixon Headline Flashed to Jury

Colonist-Los Angeles Times Service

The shaggy-haired cultist then stroked his bearded chin and smiled pleasantly at three of his "girls" — co-defendants Susan Atkins, Patricia Krenwinkel and Leslie Van Houten.

By the time the resulting legal problem had been handled, Superior Court Judge Charles Older had questioned each juror individually and had sentenced defence attorney Daye Shinn to three nights in jail for contempt of court.

The jurist did not say what effect, if any, he thought the incident might have on the trial of Manson and the others for murder, but the defence indicated a motion for a mistrial may be made today.

The disruption developed just when it appeared the court had successfully manoeuvred past the problem created by President Nixon's remarks about the case in Denver Monday.

Nixon said Manson was "guilty, directly or indirectly, of eight murders without reason," then amended his remarks in Washington to say he had not intended to comment on Manson's guilt or innocence.

Despite the president's later word, however, defence attorneys used his initial comments as grounds for motions for dismissal of charges, a mistrial, a continuance, an investigation and censure of Nixon.

All were denied Tuesday morning.

Older explained he had ordered sheriff's deputies to take special precautions to avoid exposure of the jury to Nixon's statement.

Bailiffs whitened windows of the jury's bus, chose a special route to and from the hotel where the panel is sequestered to avoid newsstands and made certain jurors did not have access to

Russian Ship Ordered Arrested

Public Inquest On Thursday

The Russian freighter Sergey Yesenin Tuesday was ordered placed under arrest in Vancouver harbor as a result of its collision Sunday with the British Columbia ferry Queen of Victoria, which killed three ferry passengers.

Lawyer John Bird of Vancouver, acting for the B.C. highways department, filed a writ at the Vancouver court house and the B.C. exchequer court issued a warrant ordering the marshal of the B.C. admiralty district to place the ship under arrest.

The warrant had not been served by late Tuesday night and lawyers said they had been instructed not to serve it until directed to. It was not known when that might be.

Attorney General Leslie Peterson said in Victoria that Bird has been instructed "to take appropriate action in respect to the collision."

He confirmed that the government's objective in taking legal action is the recovery of damages, but he refused to say how much they might come to.

* * *

"We have a preliminary estimate," Peterson said, "but I am not at liberty to make it public in light of the action we are taking."

The attorney-general also declined to answer questions about whether the passenger vessel may legally have held right-of-way over the freighter in Active Pass.

"I have some views on that," he said, "but again I do not wish to discuss them while this action is under way. It is just in its initial stages."

Asked if the B.C. government might ask Ottawa to introduce a law or regulation barring freighters from Active Pass, Peterson again said: "No comment."

* * *

The warrant orders that the ship be held pending further direction from the provincial government, which operates the ferry.

The government writ also seeks compensation for damages sustained by the ferry through what the highways department claims was negligent navigation by those in charge of the Soviet vessel.

The warrant orders the officers of the vessel to appear in the admiralty division of the exchequer court within seven days.

* * *

The 14,700-ton freighter knifed into the ferry — carrying 626 passengers and a crew of 50 — in Active Pass, a narrow passage among the gulf islands.

Premier Accepts Plan, But . . .

From UPI, AP

Israel formally announced acceptance Tuesday of U.S. Middle East, but Premier Golda Meir said not one Israeli soldier would leave occupied Arab territory until a "binding" peace treaty is signed. Officials in Washington expressed the hope that there could be a cease-fire within a week.

While the first moves toward it were being made, however, the air war went on. Israeli planes attacked along the Suez Canal for the 76th straight day.

Egypt and Jordan already have accepted the U.S. plan submitted by State Secretary William Rogers last June 19. It calls for a three-month cease-fire and reactivation of the peace mission of United Nations mediator Gunnar Jarring.

In New York, UN Secretary General Thant conferred with Jarring on the mechanics of a cease-fire and said "there is a real chance' for important advances toward peace between Arabs and Israelis. Jarring scheduled private meetings during the day with the envoys of Israel, Egypt, Jordan and Lebanon to work out details for the resumption of his mission.

The so-called Rogers plan, however, has split the Arab world and divided the Israelis. The hawkish right-wing Gahal party resigned from Israel's National Unity Coalition government to protest acceptance, which it said would commit Israel to surrender Arab territory captured in the 1967 war.

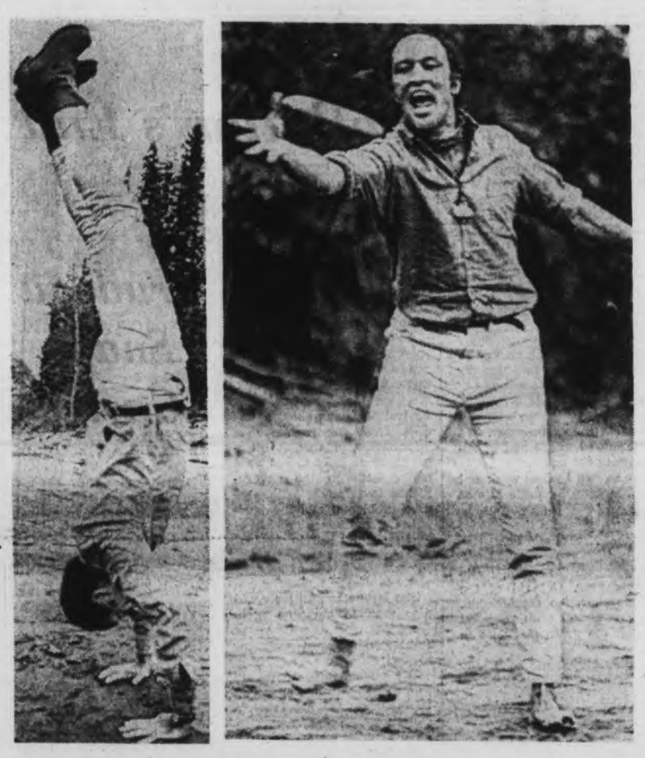

* * *

Iraq, backed by Alberia and Syria, denounced Egypt's acceptance as a betrayal of the Arab cause. Major Arab guerrilla organizations also have condemned Cairo and vowed to continue the fight until all of Palestine has been liberated.

Diplomatic efforts were underway to heal the breach in the Arab ranks. Premier Col. Moammar Al-Khadafy of Libya returned to Cairo Tuesday from talks with Iraqi and Syrian leaders in Baghdad and Damascus.

Premiers Warned

Pollution's End Starts at Home

● Premiers will meet in Victoria in 1971. Page 7

WINNIPEG (CP) — The 11th Canadian premiers' conference ended Tuesday with a stiff warning from one of its own committees that government must clean up its own municipal wastes if it expects industry to do the same.

The warning came in a terse, six-page pollution report by a committee of the Canadian Council of Resource Ministers, an inter-government body established by the federal and provincial governments.

It recommended that a declaration be made by "all governments" that the responsibility for proper waste management lies with those who produce the pollution.

* * *

"It must be declared that this recommendation is no less for a private individual than it is for industry and for every level of government," the report states while urging common approaches to exchanging information and the planning of pollution-control programs.

Governments should set a high example in handling of wastes to the extent of imposing deadlines on projects to clean up pollution-causing practices.

"If there is one area where there should be collaboration, it is pollution," said Quebec Premier Robert Bourassa, who played a leading role in the closed, two-day conference, his first.

* * *

But he agreed with Nova Scotia Premier G. I. Smith that pollution was only one of several problems faced by the provinces.

Smith, while acknowledging the seriousness of pollution, wondered "is it more important than education, or industrial development?"

Newfoundland was the only province not represented while Municipal Affairs Minister Darcy McKeough attended for Ontario in the

New Missile Plan Hatched

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The U.S. Army has already begun work on another anti-ballistic missile system, this one called "Hardsite," to succeed the Safeguard ABM if it should become obsolete, it was learned Tuesday.

The new system — now in what the army calls the "hot idea stage" — would be dedicated exclusively to defending Minuteman missiles against a Soviet pre-emptive strike.

It would consist of smaller and cheaper radars and computers than those being used by the Safeguard system. But its total expense would be as great, if not greater, than the estimated $6 to $10 billion for Safeguard because it would require more components.

The existence of the Hardsite system was disclosed April 23 in secret testimony by army research and development officials before the House appropriations committee. The testimony was censored and released as part of a thick volume on defence appropriations late last month. Opponents of the ABM called it to the attention of newsmen Tuesday.

* * *

Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield, meantime, endorsed a proposed ban on expansion of the Safeguard to new sites, but made it clear he would not support any effort to hinder development of the ABM at the two existing locations.

The army has already spent $6 million on Hardsite and has asked congress this year for $58 million to accelerate work on the system.

* * *

Dr. J. B. Gilstein, director of the project, said the system would consist of radars, data processors and high-speed sprint missiles. Each of these units would defend "a smaller portion of the battlefield than now assigned to the Safeguard system, whereas the Safeguard now defends a squadron at a time," he said.

"By being given the assignment to handle a smaller portion of the battlefield, the whole engagement becomes easier for the technology to handle and, at the same time.

Rebels Free Judge

Criminal Court Judge Daniel Pereira Manelli, 40, abducted a week ago, was released in downtown Montevideo by the Tupamaros guerrillas. Police drove him home for a reunion with his wife and two young children. (See earlier story, Page 3.)

MANAGUA, Nicaragua (UPI) — Four young men and a woman dressed as a nurse tried to kidnap Alfredo Pellas, millionaire sugar mill owner and banker, near his home Tuesday but were frightened away by Pellas' 18-year-old son.

Youths Attack Troops

BELFAST (Reuters) — Rioting broke out in Belfast Tuesday night for the sixth straight night as about 100 youths in a Roman Catholic area of the Ulster capital atacked British troops.

Army helicopters flew low over the embattled Ballymurphy housing development, where fighting was reported in a maze of small streets and alleys. The Ballymurphy area was also the scene of intense rioting Monday night.

Youths attacked troops with stones and bottles Tuesday night. Special "snatch squads" of soldiers raced into the crowds in an attempt to grab ringleaders.

Romney Wife Holds Lead

DETROIT (UPI) — Lenore Romney held a steady but thin lead Tuesday night in her battle for the Michigan Republican nomination to oppose two-term Senator Philip Hart in November. She is the wife of U.S. Secretary of Housing and Urban Development George Romney, a former governor of Michigan.

Despite Delays

Hope Glimmers In Postal Talks

OTTAWA (CP) — A rosy speck glimmered from the gray expanse of the postal dispute Tuesday but negotiators will have to wait until next Monday before they can try to nurse it into a glow.

"It's the first time we've had a discussion like that in a long time," reported Roger Decarie, co-chairman of the Council of Postal Unions, following a 1½-hour meeting with treasury board negotiators in the morning.

A further meeting, however, will not be held until the start of next week. Intervening on Thursday will be a hearing by the public services staff relations board into a council charge that the post office has illegally locked out employees in retaliation for rotating strike activity.

Discussion Tuesday involved the job security issue on which the unions have claimed they must have satisfaction before any settlement of the 11-month dispute can be reached.

A principal concern for the unions has been that work performed by their membership in the past should continue to be done by them and not shifted to other bargaining units in the post office as a result of reorganizations.

Strike action, meanwhile, was confined to Kitchener, Ont., and Baie Comeau, Que.

Coast Ravaged

Twister Kills 9 in France

BORDEAUX, France (Reuters) — A tornado ravaged the coast of southwest France Tuesday, killing at least nine persons and injuring 29.

Another 11 persons were reported missing.

It was not known if any foreigners were among preliminary casualty lists. Fourteen persons were reported badly injured.

The tornado began as a 15-minute thunderstorm accompanied by strong winds Tuesday afternoon. It caused havoc along the coast of the Landes and Gironde regions, then howled inland.

Lions Thump Bombers With Surprising Power

WINNIPEG — British Columbia Lions, showing their most potent striking power in years, smothered Winnipeg Blue Bombers, 48-21, Thursday night for their first win of the young Western Football Conference season.

Except for the second quarter when quarterback Wally Gabler and flanker Kenny Nielsen gave the defence fits and the Bombers wiped out a 13-0 deficit to lead 21-20 at the half, Lions were in command.

Gabler combined with Nielsen five times for 150 yards in the first half but, except for one second-half completion, Lions took Bombers' long threat away.

The Lions' defence, led by linebacker Greg Findlay, was superb, forcing the Bombers into nine turnovers on downs, interceptions and fumbles.

The defenders came up with a touchdown on one of four interceptions, flopped on three of four Bomber fumbles and twice held on third-and-short-yardage situations.

And the long-suspect B.C. offence led by quarterback Paul Brothers, A. D. Whitfield and Jim Evenson impressed a lot of doubters as well as the Bombers.

Brothers diversified his attack, particularly in the second half in which he completed seven of seven pass atempts. He threw touchdown passes to Jim Young and Lefty Hendrickson and scampered in from the 19-yard line for a touchdown on a broken play.

EVENSON SHINES

Evenson returning to the lineup after a dispute with the club over his physical condition, started slowly but regained his timing to crack over for two touchdowns and break loose twice for long runs in the second half.

Whitfield, running mostly over the middle on trap blocks, was the leading ground gainer with 123 yards on 15 carries although held pointless.

CONVERTS, FIELD GOALS

Jerry Bradley scored the other touchdown when he picked off a Gabler pass and streaked in from the 32.

Ted Gerela converted all of the touchdowns and also kicked field goals from 39 and 31 yards. The 12-point effort moved him into second place behind Jack Abendschan of Saskatchewan in the conference scoring with 20 points. Abendschan has 23.

Lions startled the Bombers on the first play after the opening kickoff when Brothers hit Young for an 80-yard, pass and run touchdown play. Gerela converted and kicked his field goals to give B.C. a 13-0 lead.

LOSE EARLY BAD

Bombers came back to score on a three-yard plunge by Amos Van Pelt, set up largely by a 47-yard pass from Gabler to Nielsen.

Bradley's interception early in the second quarter put Lions ahead, 20-7, but before the half ended, Van Pelt on a four-yard pass play and Nielsen on a 12-yard pass, both converted by Gene Lakusiak, put the Bombers in front, 21-20.

SPOTTED FLAW

Obviously having spotted a flaw in the Winnipeg defence, Lions went to work early in the second half with Brothers directing them 82 yards in eight plays, climaxed by his own 19-yard touchdown run.

But the turning point in the game came just a minute later when Findlay intercepted a pass at the Winnipeg 26-yard line. Lions moved right in to score on a five-yard pass from Brothers to Hendrickson, which with Gerela's convert made it 33-21.

Before the quarter ended, Evenson plunged over from the one-yard line for his first touchdown. He went over from the two-yard line at 5:08 of the final quarter to put the game out of reach.

Wade and Evanshen Stun Argos, 34-27

MONTREAL (CP) — Sophomore quarterback Sonny Wade scored three touchdowns and passed to flanker Terry Evanshen for two more as Montreal Alouettes toppled Toronto Argonauts, 34-27, in the opening game of the Eastern Football Conference season for both teams Tuesday.

Don Jonas, who replaced Tom Wilkinson at quarterback in the third quarter, fired touchdown passes to Bobby Taylor and Tony Moro and also added a field goal, three converts and a single.

Wilkinson threw a touchdown strike to Taylor in the second quarter and the Argos added two points on a safety touch when Wade conceded in the third quarter.

Montreal took the lead early in the second quarter on Wade's first touchdown.

A 15-yard passing play from Wade to Evanshen and Guindon's convert ran the count to 14-3 before Wilkinson found Taylor alone in the end zone and connected on a nine-yard pass.

INTERCEPTED PASS

Near the end of the half, Larry Fairholm intercepted a Wilkinson pass on the Argos' 30-yard line and Wade marched the Als to the one-yard line, aided by a pass interference call, before plunging over.

Alouettes struck again early in the third quarter as Wade romped over from the eight-yard line and then increased the margin to 34-17 with an 11-yard scoring play to Evanshen after Jonas and Moro had combined for a two-yard touchdown for the Argos.

CLOSED GAP

Argos closed the gap to 34-26 before the end of the quarter with Jonas hitting Taylor with a 23-yard touchdown pass and Wade conceding the safety touch. But the best they could do in the fourth quarter, against the tough Alouette defence, was a single by Jonas on an attempt field goal on the final play of the game.

Federal fisheries biologists and engineers are considering a second dam on Demaniel Creek — a tributary of the Sooke River — to provide more water storage in the upper reaches above Youngs Lake.

A $15,000 dam was completed below Youngs Lake in April and is now being used to conserve water for rearing coho fingerlings in downstream holding pools.

Demaniel Creek is one of the major coho spawning rivers on the west coast, with up to 7000 spawning coho returning to it in peak years . . . a figure that may be increased by improved conditions.

This is the year fish guardians and biologists will be watching the Leech River, another tributory of the Sooke, to see how many coho return from a transplant of 33,000 coho fingerlings in 1968, from parched pools of Demaniel to the hitherto salmon-barren Leech.

Another 50,000 salvaged coho fingerlings were transplanted from Demaniel to Leech in 1969 and to date this year 20,000 have been transplanted.

Fisheries engineers will study the Leech River this year with a view to removing obstructions which stop spawning salmon entering it. If any return this fall tank trucks could be brought into operation to take the spawners over the waterfall obstructions.

An appreciable return would mean a brand new salmon run to serve west coast sports and commercial fishermen.

Biologists and guardians will also be watching Woodhus Creek, a tributary of the Oyster this fall for coho returns from a 1968 coho transplant from the Oyster to Woodhus in an attempt to start a run in that hitherto barren tributary.

The obstruction at the falls where the Woodhus joins the Oyster was removed by fisheries engineers in March and the way is cleared for the returning coho to swim right to the Woodhus spawning beds.

Next year will be the "watch year" in Saanich Inlet when coho from a 27,000 fingerling transplant from Goldstream to barren Shawnigan (Millstream) Creek should return. This year 25,000 fingerlings have been transplanted to Shawnigan Creek from Cowichan River tributaries and 5000 of these have been planted in waters above Shawnigan Lake.

Results of a two-year federal fisheries survey of the coho and chinook "shaker" problem off the west coast of Vancouver Island show that 13 per cent of the total coho catch by commercial trollers in the April 15 to June 15 fishing period are "shakers."

Shakers are the salmon that troll fishermen must release, and include all chinook salmon under the 26-inch minimum size limit and all coho taken prior to June 15, the opening day for these species.

In most cases these shakers are dead before they are released, or die after being released, usually by shaking them off the hooks.

During the 1968 and 1969 shaker investigation fishermen voluntarily kept log books of their catches and turned the information over to fisheries investigators.

The catch of coho shakers in the west coast of Vancouver Island troll fishery has been estimated at 254,000 fish in 1968 and 120,800 fish in 1969. Each of these estimates represents 13 per cent of the commercial troll catch of coho in the west coast fishery for the appropriate year.

The number of chinook shakers has been estimated at 67,200 in 1968 and 87,800 in 1969. It is noted these estimates are for the two-month period, out of the 6½-month season, and that the chinook shakers are present throughout the season.

A lure selectivity study conducted in conjunction with the investigations showed that plugs are a relatively effective lure for legal-sized chinooks and that exclusive use of plugs would greatly reduce shaker catches.

However, it appears that use of plugs by commercial trollers has declined.

Less than 20 years ago plugs were the predominant lure used to capture chinooks. By contrast, in 1969 log book records showed that only one fisherman in eight used plugs predominantly (57 out of 363 troll days) prior to the opening of coho in the west coast troll fishery.

★ ★ ★

This slaughter of salmon as shakers is of grave concern to both commercial and sports fishermen, because every fish that dies needlessly is one that is lost to fishermen . . . sports or commercial.

The obvious answer to cut down on the mortality is to enforce the exclusive use of plug fishing until coho open on June 13.

A better answer would be to stop all commercial fishing until June 15 when both chinooks and coho would be legal. The same fish would be around, only they would be bigger.

But, the big danger would be that the Russian trawlers on the big banks, who are not governed by any conservation treaties as yet, might catch and capitalize on the salmon Canadian fishermen would conserve for later fishing.

MISSING—A Coupla Joes!

With the players-owners dispute settled, most National Football League players are in camp and preparing for this weekend's exhibition openers.

But a couple are missing and they are no ordinary Joes.

Coach Weeb Ewbank of New York had hoped to have Namath play at least one quarter in Saturday's game against Buffalo Bills but at last report Namath was in Rome making a western movie and sporting Prince Valiant-length locks.

Kapp, who became a free agent May 1 after leading Vikings to the NFL title last season, is reported to be demanding $350,000 a year in a four-year contract plus a $250,000 bonus. He is believed to be somewhere in the western United States.

General-manager Jim Finks said he intended to see Kapp's lawyer "as soon as time will allow."

Pirates' Pitching Improves

Bob Veale became the first Pirate pitcher to go the distance since Dock Ellis stopped Houston Astros with a four-hit shutout July 24 when he scattered six hits for a 4-2 victory over Montreal Expos.

The Pittsburgh mound staff had allowed 25 runs in their three previous games and Veale, 7-12, hadn't won since July 7 and was unable to last past four innings in his previous two starts.

HOMER TIES GAME

Bob Robertson, whose first-inning error enabled Montreal to take a 2-0 lead, tied the game with a two-run homer in the fourth inning and singled in an insurance run in the sixth after Al Oliver scored the winning run, coming in on two wild pitches after a double.

It was only the fourth win in 10 games for Pirates, but kept them a game in front of defending-champion New York Mets, who blanked Chicago Cubs, 4-0, behind the three-hit pitching of Nolan Ryan.

SIXTH STRAIGHT WIN

St. Louis Cardinals continued their hot play, bringing their win streak to a season-high of six games with a 3-2 victory over Philadelphia Phillies.

Richie Allen tripled in the decisive run in the fifth inning after Carl Taylor, who hit a home run in the third inning, drew a two-out base on balls.

Atlanta Braves defeated Houston Astros, 6-1; Cincinnati Reds dumped San Diego Padres, 12-1, and San Francisco downed Los Angeles Dodgers, 11-4, in other games.

McNALLY WINS 15TH

In the American League, Dave McNally became the third Oriole to win 15 games this season as Paul Blair hit two home runs to help out in Baltimore's 5-2 victory over Boston Red Sox which extended the Eastern leaders' win streak to four games.

Rookie Bert Blyleven hurled a seven-hitter, struck out 12 batters and drove in his first major league run with a single to lead Minnesota Twins to a 5-2 victory over Milwaukee Brewers.

Jay gave up his three hits in the first two innings, retiring 14 straight batters before Wade Burns led off the bottom of the seventh with a base on balls. Jay got the next three batters to fly out to end the inning.

Robber Broke, Hungry

There was no money or food in the house, the welfare people had turned down three requests for food vouchers, his parents were dead and his wife's parents were away, and their friends had no money.

John Riley Isaacson, 21, of 422 Craigflower, said Tuesday in Victoria Provincial Court he realized those facts were not an excuse for theft, but he thought differently last Wednesday when the facts represented his situation.

He and Carl L. Melquist, 20, of 418-A Craigflower, changed earlier not-guilty pleas and pleaded guilty to a joint charge of breaking and entering and theft last Wednesday at a shoe store at 916 Douglas, where $164 was stolen.

Police testified Isaacson and Melquist told them they put the money in a garbage receptacle near Dallas and Douglas when police approached them an hour after the theft. But the bag that had contained the money was found in a bush nearby, with no money in either the bag or the receptacle.

The two young men were remanded to Aug. 12 for a presentence report and sentence.

"I regret that the law forces me to send you to prison," Judge William Ostler said to Mrs. Lilac Martin, 57, of 601 Cook.

But, he added, apparently an impaired-driving conviction and fine last January had not been enough to teach her the law. Mrs. Martin pleaded guilty to a charge of impaired driving Monday night in Victoria and, since a jail term is mandatory for a second "impaired" offence, the judge sentenced her to 20 days.

Frank Hoshal, 22, of 170 Old Island Highway, was fined $250 and given an 18-month driving ban after he pleaded guilty to a charge of failing to remain at the scene of an accident early Tuesday in Victoria.

Prosecutor John Macintyre, who said Hoshal's car caused $450 damage to parked car, read a driving record for Hoshal that included 13 offences since late 1966. He called the record "simply atrocious" and the judge agreed.

Fines totalling $400 and a one-year driving ban were levied against Adrian Batterbury, 25, whose address was listed as 1324 St. David or 451 Superior.

He pleaded guilty to a two-count charge of failing to remain at the scene of an accident and of driving while his licence was suspended, both offences occurring early last Sunday in Victoria.

Court was told Batterbury had two impaired-driving convictions and his licence was suspended until next Oct. 21 due to a poor driving record.

He was fined $150 and given the driving ban for failing to remain, and fined $250 for the other offence.

In the court section of Judge J. A. Byers, pleas of guilty were entered by James K. Captain, 19, of 2073 Oak Bay, to a charge of dangerous driving and a charge of failing to remain at the scene of an accident.

Court was told both offences occurred July 19 in Victoria, and Captain was fined $150 for dangerous driving, $200 for the other offence and given a four-month driving ban.

Sidney Thomas Glenny, 25, of 1540 Lionel, was fined $300 after he pleaded guilty to a charge of driving July 24 in Victoria with a blood-alcohol reading of more than .08 per cent.

New York Gang War Takes Toll

Chinese Code Torn

NEW YORK (UPI) — Police Tuesday sought the killers of a 14-year-old boy believed to be the latest victim of a wave of youth gang wars in Chinatown which threatens to disrupt the traditional parental respect that kept Chinese-American communities free of juvenile delinquency.

The body of William Wong was found at dusk Monday by customers leaving the Bamboo Garden Restaurant in the Chinese district of lower Manhattan. Detectives said the boy was stabbed by two Chinese youths. They were checking reports that he had been harassed by a gang of teen-agers earlier.

Until recent years, the strict authority maintained by parents and the traditional respect that Chinese children held for their parents and other older persons had kept the streets of Chinatown virtually free of delinquency.

But this respect and authority had been eroded recently by the large influx of rootless refugee youths from China who came to New York, often without their parents, from the crowded slums of Hong Kong and Taiwan.

One officer explained that many of the refugees have little education and speak only a little English and therefore unemployment is a problem.

Police concede there has been an increase of crime in Chinatown, but point out that it still has one of the lowest crime rates in the city.

Hydro Fight

Queen Sends Reply

reply Tuesday from the Queen, to whom he protested B.C. Hydro's plans to expropriate his Munn Road home and property.

The message:

"The private secretary is commanded by Her Majesty to acknowledge receipt of P. A. Codyre's cable and to state that it has been transmitted to the governor-general of Canada."

Codyre had asked the Queen to intervene after the provincial cabinet adopted an order authorizing Hydro to expropriate his property to make way for a high-voltage power line.

The order was signed by Premier Bennett, who earlier promised Codyre that his case would be arbitrated.

"Believing in justice as I do, I knew that under the circumstances the Queen would answer my telegram," he said Tuesday night.

"I think it is tragic that a Crown corporation can unnecessarily expropriate a person's land without giving the homeowner an opportunity to state the reasons he wants to keep his home."

He said it was important that both sides of such a dispute be heard in public but the cabinet order has now denied such a discussion.

Savage Bus-Takeover Bid Wilts on Council Floor

A motion by Victoria Ald. Clyde Savage to prepare a feasibility study for regional takeover of the bus system in Greater Victoria died Tuesday at a city council B committee meeting.

There was no seconder, no discussion, no vote.

"I don't know what happened. I made the motion, some girls came in with coffee, and someone — I believe it was the mayor — said that was enough of that. No vote was taken," Savage said in an interview following the meeting.

Savage said he will make the motion again — maybe at next week's council meeting.

Reading from a prepared statement, Savage said the city should operate a fast, streamlined transportation system to cope with the increasing traffic congestion and pollution.

"We talk of smoke from industry, smoke from incinerators, but frankly, the main cause of air pollution is the automobile, and the frightful condition some of our major cities find themselves in today should say to us the time to act is now," Savage said.

"We should do something before we become like any large American city with air pollution, fast traffic and huge parking lots.

He said the city manager should immediately start preparing a study into the feasibility of taking over and improving the Greater Victoria bus system.

The cost of acquiring the system, of improving it and maintaining it he said, should be determined.

The city should also explore the possibility of recovering operating losses from the provincial government, Savage said.

Before any action was taken on a takeover of the bus system, he said, the city should ask the Chamber of Commerce to conduct a campaign aimed at discouraging residents from taking their autombiles to work.

"We should also petition the provincial government, civic governments and large businesses to take the lead in instructing their employees to use the transit system," Savage said.

Test Case on Fire Risk Brings $1,000 Penalty

Saying he could not believe the risk of fire would be taken for a test case, Judge J. A. Byers levied a maximum fine of $1,000 against a Victoria firm Tuesday in Victoria Provincial Court.

The fine was handed down after the judge returned a verdict of guilty against Carmel Holdings Ltd., 654 Fort, following a trial held July 24 and 28 on a four-count charge of violating regulations issued under the provincial Fire Marshal Act.

Two of the counts charged the seventh floor of the Queen Victoria Inn at 655 Douglas, owned by Carmel, was used as a public hall April 18 and 25 — for wedding receptions — without the approval of the deputy fire marshal.

The other two charged that the exit doors of the seventh floor were each 36 inches wide and were therefore less than the 44-inch legal minimum cited in the regulations.

Counsel for the defence noted the maximum penalty on each count was $250 and asked for a "very small" fine because this had been a test case of the regulations.

But the judge said the regulations contain provision for appeal to a County Court, a step which Carmel had not taken. Then, making his comment about the risk of fire, he fined Carmel $250 on each of the four counts.

And Kenneth Didn't Even Cry

Mrs. Dervis Mustafa said she wrapped her son's finger in a separate package before he was taken to hospital by Langford ambulance. However, doctors later had to tell her that they couldn't put it back on the hand.

Mrs. Mustafa said the finger somehow became caught on the side of the slide and about three-quarters of it was torn from the hand.

Her son simply would not cry during the ordeal — "his little eyes were just glassy and he tried to appear as if nothing had happened," she said.

Vaccine Dutch Treat?

British Columbia municipalities were urged Tuesday to pay their own way in a German measles vaccination campaign.

Mayor Hugh Curtis of Saanich, president of the Union of B.C. Municipalities, said in a message to members that they should cooperate with the provincial government as an obligation.

The need for immunization is too urgent to be delayed by provincial - municipal dickering, he said.

"I strongly urge all municipalities to be prepared to contribute toward the cost of providing German measles vaccine in partnership with the provincial government as and when it undertakes the program," Curtis said.

Saanich decided Monday to put "about $5,000 into the pot to cover our share of vaccinating pre-school children" in the four-school districts of Greater Victoria.

He will not be stopping in the city where fisherman want to meet him to discuss the Russian fishing fleet operating off the Island.

There was an angry reaction Tuesday from fishermen who have been demanding a meeting with Prime Minister Trudeau, Davis and External Affairs Minister Mitchell Sharp after a Port Alberni troller was sideswiped by a Russian trawler recently.

"Is he afraid to come and meet with a group of women and children?" asked Mrs. Hazel Koenders, wife of one of the fishermen.

Meredith-Jones

It was learned Tuesday that Davis went aboard the 46-foot Cymry, owned by Jack Meredith-Jones, president of the Pacific Trollers' Association, at noon to see the Russian fishing fleet from the commercial fishermen's point of view.

A fisheries department official told the Colonist that the visit was being kept secret because they didn't want to frighten off the Russians.

Air View

It is expected that he and Davis will leave the Cymry sometime this morning and make their way to CFB Comox, arriving there by noon.

Then Davis, accompanied by newsmen, will fly over the Russian fleet for an aerial impression.

A fisheries vessel reported Tuesday morning that there were 11 Russian and one Jananese trawler about 15 miles south of Pachena Point, Barkley Sound.

Barry Robinson, whose boat was struck by the Russian trawler, said in an interview Tuesday, "I would think that Mr. Davis appears to be avoiding us. I am losing what confidence I had that he would help."

"He made statements that ships would be sent out to protect us and he has not said how many, where they will be or for how long."

"I think it is necessary that the boys should know they are going to be protected on a 24-hour basis but there has been nothing definite forthcoming. I am very disappointed in the Ottawa people and in Mr. Davis in particular."

'A Farce'

Robinson commented on a suggestion that fishermen could talk to Trudeau if they went to proposed meetings at Bella Coola or Prince Rupert this week.

He described the idea as "a farce."

Robinson said Port Alberni was the obvious choice for a meeting place and fishermen from Tofino, Ucluelet, Bamfield and even Victoria could attend a meting here and return to their home ports the same day.

"I can assure you that if Davis did attend a meeting here, well over half of all the fishermen on the west coast have said they would attend even though some would have to come as far as 200 miles by boat. He certainly wouldn't suffer from a lack of attention."

Robinson added: "In a way I don't blame him for not meeting us. He would be presented with statements designed to make him think seriously and I don't think he wants to be committed."

Colin Wilson of McCoy Lake, who chaired a protest meeting last week, said: "It is about time he did get out there with the fishing fleet. I can appreciate him not letting everyone know about his plans but he should still talk to the boys and their wives."

Few Hours

Asked if he felt Davis was avoiding a meeting, Wilson said: "I don't know what to think. I feel he should have contacted someone here at least give some reassurance."

He said he did not know what Davis could see in a few hours — "if he wants to find out what it's really like, he should spend several days there especially if the Russian fleet is still in the vicinity."

Davis

Mrs. Elliott Cook, wife of a fisherman, expressed surprise that no reply had been received from Davis or Sharp to the wires sent by the fishermen. She said she understood both had been in Vancouver during the last few days — "both were so close, why couldn't they have come?"

Trip Details

Discussing the Prince Rupert meeting, Mrs. Cook said she had made the trip last year. She said the fare was $43 a person. First, one had to get to Vancouver then take a bus to the airport, $1.75 each way, go to Prince Rupert and take an airport bus into Prince Rupert, $3 each way.

She said that it would be supper time by the time one reached the city and then one would have to stay overnight in order to attend a meeting — and at this time of the year, there would be no accommodation available.

Mrs. Koenders, whose husband owns the Shirley Ann B, said it was not a case of "how can we get to Prince Rupert or Bella Coola" but "why should we go?"

She said dozens of fishermen and their wives would attend a meeting in Port Alberni and "everyone paid high taxes which covers the expenses of government officials."

Mrs. Koenders said it was certainly more practical and sensible to have one man come to meet several hundred fishermen than it was to have several hundred fishermen go to meet one man.

Of Davis, she said: "If he is in Vancouver or nearby, why can't he come to Port Alberni. I am glad to hear he is out there to take a personal look at the fishing fleet but I still think he should come to hear us. Is he afraid to come to meet with a group of women and children.

Plans Wanted

"Even if he is out visiting the fleet, or visiting in the area, the men and their wives still want to know what they should do and what he plans to do."

The fishermen have received a wire from National Defence Minister Leo Cadieux in reply to one they sent asking for protection.

It said that it was a matter for the fisheries department and that the Port Alberni wire had been passed to that department for consideration.

Buck-Passing

A number of wives are threatening to send gifts of fish to Davis through the mail which they feel would cause "a stink in both departments."

Pilots' Reunion In Edmonton

Pilots who flew with the Fleet Air Arm in the Second World War are holding a reunion in Edmonton Thanksgiving weekend. It is being sponsored by the Canadian Naval Air Group, former members of the air arm. Timothy Bell at 802 Royal Bank Building in Edmonton is handling reservations.

Thieves Leave Minus Loot

Thieves who attacked a safe in the Canadian Pacific freight depot at 355 Catherine during the weekend failed to open it and left empty-handed, Victoria police said Monday. They said nothing was missing from the depot and a sledgehammer and a crowbar were left behind by the intruders.

Sewage Contract Awarded

PORT ALBERNI — Dillingham Corp. of Vancouver was awarded a $918,000 contract to build the first phase of a $1.5 million sewage project in Port Alberni it was announced Tuesday.

Work will begin immediately on the project which involves construction of sewage lines to intercept the outflow of raw sewage into the Alberni Canal.

The project is scheduled for completion by the end of this year.

Better Than People—President

Hovercraft Company Goes for Contracts

Those saving their money for the day when hovercraft passenger service resumes between Vancouver Island and the mainland will probably be disappointed.

Even if the legislative issue that stopped passenger service between Vancouver and Nanaimo last year is resolved, it will be at least 15 months before Pacific Hovercraft, the firm which operated the run, will be interested in re-establishing it, the firm's managing director said Tuesday.

"We'd rather get a $300,000 or $400,000 contract than sell 100,000 people," said Barry Jones. "It's hard work to get the contract, but once you have it, it's easy.

★ ★ ★

"The objective of the passenger service was to train our people and to introduce the potential for contract work. We did that very well."

The Vancouver-Nanaimo service stopped in 1969 after the federal government changed legislation under which the hovercraft was covered, removing it from aeronautical control.

Government plans were to amend the Canada Shipping Act to cover the vehicle but this amendment has not yet been passed.

Until now, Jones had maintained that lack of legislation was preventing resumption of passenger service.

His comments were made at a public meeting held to begin a province-wide sales campaign designed to sell shares totaling $880,000.

Jones also said that if contracts were to come in now requiring the use of additional hovercraft, the units would probably be built in the Vancouver area.

"We already manufacture many of our own parts in Richmond," Jones said, "and we could build the hovercraft through sub-contracts with the companies we now deal with."

★ ★ ★

All four of the firm's present vehicles were built in England by British Hovercraft Corporation and any manufactured here would be built under licence from the company.

If the hovercraft were ordered from the British manufacturer immediately, it would be 10 months before they were delivered, he said.

★ ★ ★

Pacific Hovercraft is the only operator licensed in North America and has vehicles operating in both the Alaska oilfields and the Canadian arctic.

Another of its vehicles is currently being converted for work in Indonesia and the fourth is under contract to the American navy.

No Official Support For Dayliner Plea

There will be no official support today from Greater Victoria municipalities for the Esquimalt and Nanaimo Railway Dayliner service between Courtenay and Victoria.

Victoria city council's B committee refused to take action Tuesday on a request by Mayor Courtney Haddock to submit a number of recommendations to the Canadian Transport Commission's hearing today regarding the CPR's application to abandon the service.

● Is CPR's obligation ended? Page 11

The decision to disregard the mayor's request was made at a closed meeting.

Ald. Clyde Savage said in an interview following the meeting the committee had no alternative but to refuse action because it had no jurisdiction over the matter.

"This committee cannot commit council," he said.

Haddock, who left the meeting shortly after the issue came up, had said Monday he would seek committee's approval to send City Solicitor Terry O'Grady to the hearing with three suggestions.

Track rights should be transferred to a company which would operate the line as a tourist attraction if CP receives permission to discontinue the run.

★ ★ ★

Should permission be denied, O'Grady was to ask the hearing that CP modernize tracks and equipment and adjust the train schedule to coincide with ferry and bus departures along the route.

Old Destroyer Will Assist Plotting Trials

NANAIMO — A mothballed U.S. destroyer-escort was towed Tuesday from Bremerton to Nanoose Bay where it will take part in experiments conducted at a torpedo-test range.

U.S. navy Lieutenant (J.G.) D. R. Evans said the ship would not be used as a target. It would be towed into the strait off Ballenas Island on four occasions for use in plotting exercises.

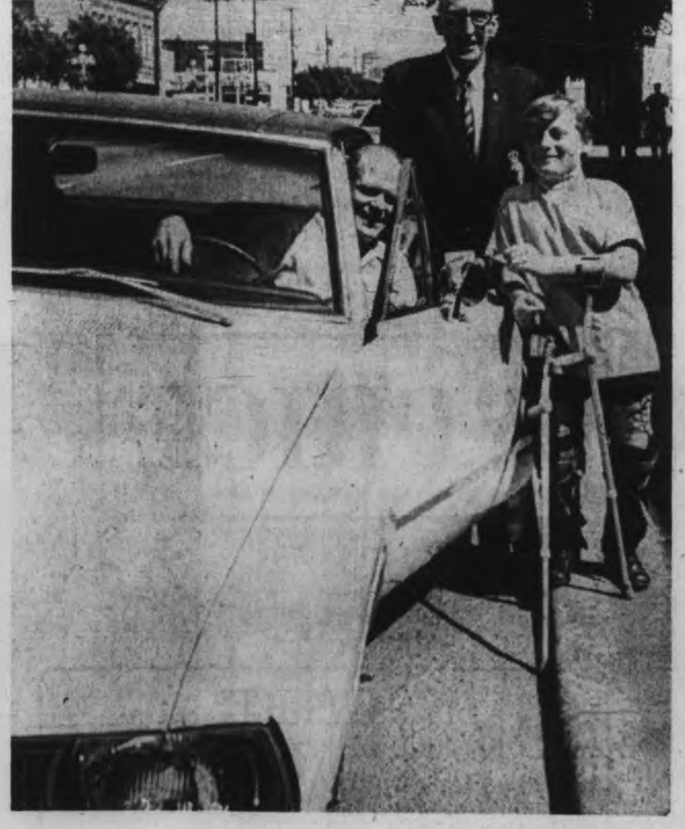

It would remain unmanned, he said.

The ship is the former U.S. Whitehurst.

The torpedo testing range at Nanoose is manned jointly by Canadian and U.S. forces. No live or armed torpedoes are used in the tracking exercises.

Boy Dies In River

PORT ALBERNI — A six-year-old boy drowned about 4:30 p.m. Tuesday when he fell off a dock into the Somass River, Port Alberni police said. Names are being withheld until relatives have been contacted.

Rubella Vaccine

Support Urged For Drive By Kinsmen

NANAIMO—Nanaimo phamacists said Tuesday they could not sell rubella vaccine for a price which was quoted earlier in the day by a Vancouver druggist.

Doug Chipperfield, operator of a Vancouver drug store, said he would sell rubella vaccine for $2.10 a shot which he said is 10 cents over the wholesale cost.

That price, Nanaimo pharmacists say, was about half the cost of the price in the Nanaimo area. They quoted a price between $4.00 and $4.75 for a shot in their area.

★ ★ ★

Ken Medland, a member of the Pharmaceutical Association of Nanaimo, said "Druggists here are treating the vaccine as an ordinary prescription due to a lack of demand."

Medland said he and his colleagues must pay a higher wholesale price than the retail rate quoted by Chipperfield.

"Nanaimo pharmacists," said Medland, "believe the provincial government will go ahead with a mass immunization program and a lot of people here are holding off buying the vaccine to see what happens."

Health Services Minister Ralph Loffmark has said he would support a Kinsmen Club rubella vaccination program if the club could raise $400,000, Medland said.

He said once the club raised that amount, the government would administer the vaccination program and pharmacists would get a lower wholesale price for rubella vaccine by bulk.

When the Salk polio vaccine came out some years ago, Medland said, "We pooled our resources, put on a drive and had a terrific turnout for the vaccine.

"Nanaimo was probably the first city in B.C. to do this, offering the vaccine at a dollar a shot," he said.

Referring to the rubella vaccine, Medland said Chipperfield must have "some good connections in order that he can sell a large volume.

"We could perhaps bring it in for a lower price too but with the uncertainty of the market, we would probably be stuck with it," he said.

"The Kinsmen club plans to raise the money as quickly as possible across B.C.," said Medland, "and will probably put on a door-to-door drive in each city."

Toilets Go In At Beach

VANCOUVER (CP) — The Action Committee for Unemployed Youth will go ahead with plans to build pit-toilets at Long Beach on Vancouver Island despite the fact provincial parks officials sent in a dozen toilets last week to ease sanitation problems.

A TACUY spokesman said Tuesday there are still only two toilets to serve several hundred people who have built a driftwood shanty town at Wreck Beach in the park on the island's west coast.

Unemployed youths will proceed with the toilet-building this weekend because more toilets are still needed and it is the type of meaningful work" that unemployed youths should be doing for pollution control" in the community.

The group said it intends to send a bill for labor, at union scale, and material costs for the project to the provincial government. The project will be accompanied by a musical festival.

Officials Find Woman

NANAIMO — After Nanaimo health authorities launched a search Tuesday for a woman who had unknowingly handled a rabid bat in the Departure Bay area last week, she was located within 30 minutes.

Officials said that apparently she had not been infected by the bat.

Earlier Dr. P. J. Reynolds, director of Central Vancouver Island health unit, said the woman had found one of two rabid bats recently discovered in the area and had handed it to an animal protection officer.

HIKING GROUP starts off to find caves. They are Jack Beaudon, Marilyn Crawford, Lynn Briggs, Rob Ferguson, Jenny Franklin and Ric Allen. They are planning to mark number of Island trails to make direction-finding easier for tourists. —(Agnes Flett)

Summer Task

Young Hikers Mark Trails

PORT ALBERNI — A group of young people are spending their summer marking hiking trails in central Vancouver Island.

Their latest effort was in connection with Horne Lake Caves, about 12 hiking miles from Port Alberni. But it wasn't an easy job. It took them 3½ hours to find the caves when they reached the other end of the trail.

★ ★ ★

They said that even with some rough maps it was a problem finding the caves because there were no signs and so many logging roads in the area which tended to be confusing.

Now visitors will find the way easier because the young people have put up directional signs.

This weekend they plan to tackle Della Falls at the end of Great Central Lake which will involve a two-day hike.

They have already marked the hiking trail on Mount Arrowsmith with large, visible arrows painted on heavy wooden slabs which, they hope, will be permanent and prevent hikers from becoming lost.

Shoot Scores Success

DUNCAN — A total of 40 entries were received at Sunday's Vancouver Island Shooting League match held at the shooting range of Cowichan Fish and Game Association. Contestants came from Victoria Fish and Game Association, Cowichan Fish and Game Association, Nanaimo Fish and Game Association, Campbell River Gun Club, Juan de Fuca Gun Club and Qualicum Fish and Game Association.

High scorer of the day was Ray McDougal of Victoria who was first master in "any sight" and "metallic sight" events.

Other results in those two classes were: First experts, Gordie Johnston, Victoria and Walt Zozula, Victoria; first sharpshooters, Bill Marriot, Juan de Fuca and Terry Lee, Cowichan; first marksmen, Al Larson of Campbell River, in both classes; first tyro in the metallic sight category, Al Peat, Juan de Fuca.

Winner of the free rifle class was Chris Barman, Victoria. Walter Latter, president of the Cowichan association, said the shoot was very successful.

Ucluelet Gains Market Boat

UCLUELET — The Independent Fishermen's Marketing Service of Port Alberni and Qualicum now has a boat stationed in Ucluelet harbor to buy fish from independent boats. The fish is shipped to Qualicum to the service's processing plant and then sold all across the country.

SOVIET SHIP ARRESTED

From UPI, AP

Israel formally announced acceptance Tuesday of U.S. proposals for peace in the Middle East, but Premier Golda Meir said not one Israeli soldier would leave occupied Arab territory until a "binding" peace treaty is signed. Officials in Washington expressed the hope that there could be a cease-fire within a week.

While the first moves toward it were being made, however, the air war went on. Israeli planes attacked along the Suez Canal for the 76th straight day.

Egypt and Jordan already have accepted the U.S. plan submitted by State Secretary William Rogers last June 19. It calls for a three-month cease-fire and reactivation of the peace mission of United Nations mediator Gunnar Jarring.

In New York, UN Secretary General Thant conferred with Jarring on the mechanics of a cease-fire and said "there is a real chance" for important advances toward peace between Arabs and Israelis. Jarring scheduled private meetings during the day with the envoys of Israel, Egypt, Jordan and Lebanon to work out details for the resumption of his mission.

The so-called Rogers plan, however, has split the Arab world and divided the Israelis. The hawkish right-wing Gahal party resigned from Israel's National Unity Coalition government to protest acceptance, which it said would commit Israel to surrender Arab territory captured in the 1967 war.

Iraq, backed by Alberia and Syria, denounced Egypt's acceptance as a betrayal of the Arab cause. Major Arab guerrilla organizations also have condemned Cairo and vowed to continue the fight until all of Palestine has been liberated.

Diplomatic efforts were underway to heal the breach in the Arab ranks. Premier Col. Moammar Al-Khadafy of Libya returned to Cairo Tuesday from talks with Iraqi and Syrian leaders in Baghdad and Damascus.

Fun in Far North

Public Inquest On Thursday

The Russian freighter Sergey Yesenin Tuesday was ordered placed under arrest in Vancouver harbor as a result of its collision Sunday with the British Columbia ferry Queen of Victoria, which killed three ferry passengers.

Lawyer John Bird of Vancouver, acting for the B.C. highways department, filed a writ at the Vancouver court house and the Exchequer Court of Canada issued a warrant ordering the marshal of the B.C. admiralty district to place the ship under arrest.

The warrant had not been served by late Tuesday night and lawyers said they had been instructed not to serve it until directed to. It was not known when that might be.

Attorney General Leslie Peterson said in Victoria that Bird has been instructed "to take appropriate action in respect to the collision."

He confirmed that the government's objective in taking legal action is the recovery of damages, but he refused to say how much they might come to.

★ ★ ★

"We have a preliminary estimate," Peterson said, "but I am not at liberty to make it public in light of the action we are taking."

The attorney-general also declined to answer questions about whether the passenger vessel may legally have held right-of-way over the freighter in Active Pass.

"I have some views on that," he said, "but again I do not wish to discuss them while this action is under way. It is just in its initial stages."

Asked if the B.C. government might ask Ottawa to introduce a law or regulation barring freighters from Active Pass, Peterson again said: "No comment."

★ ★ ★

The warrant orders that the ship be held pending further direction from the provincial government, which operates the ferry.

The government writ also seeks compensation for damages sustained by the ferry through what the highways department claims was negligent navigation by those in charge of the Soviet vessel.

The warrant orders the officers of the vessel to appear in the admiralty division of the exchequer court within seven days.

The 14,700-ton freighter knifed into the ferry — carrying 626 passengers and a crew of 50 — in Active Pass, a narrow passage among the gulf islands.

MONTEVIDEO (AP) Leftist guerrillas freed a Uruguayan judge Tuesday night but continued to hold a U.S. police adviser and Brazilian diplomat kidnapped Friday.

MANAGUA, Nicaragua (UPI) — Four young men and a woman dressed as a nurse tried to kidnap Alfredo Pellas, millionaire sugar mill owner and banker, near his home Tuesday but were frightened away by Pellas' 18-year-old son.

Premiers Warned

Pollution's End Starts at Home

● Premiers will meet in Victoria in 1971. Page 7

WINNIPEG (CP) — The 11th Canadian premiers' conference ended Tuesday with a stiff warning from one of its own committees that government must clean up its own municipal wastes if it expects industry to do the same.

The warning came in a terse, six-page pollution report by a committee of the Canadian Council of Resource Ministers, an inter-government body established by the federal and provincial governments.

It recommended that a declaration be made by "all governments" that the responsibility for proper waste management lies with those who produce the pollution.

★ ★ ★

"It must be declared that this recommendation is no less for a private individual than it is for industry and for every level of government," the report states while urging common approaches to exchanging information and the planning of pollution-control programs.

Governments should set a high example in handling of wastes to the extent of imposing deadlines on projects to clean up pollution-causing practices.

"If there is one area where there should be collaboration, it is pollution," said Quebec Premier Robert Bourassa, who played a leading role in the closed, two-day conference, his first.

★ ★ ★

But he agreed with Nova Scotia Premier G. I. Smith that pollution was only one of several problems faced by the provinces.

Smith, while acknowledging the seriousness of pollution, wondered "is it more important than education, or industrial development?"

Youths Attack Troops

BELFAST (Reuters) — Rioting broke out in Belfast Tuesday night for the sixth straight night as about 100 youths in a Roman Catholic area of the Ulster capital attacked British troops.

Army helicopters flew low over the embattled Ballymurphy housing development, where fighting was reported in a maze of small streets and alleys. The Ballymurphy area was also the scene of intense rioting Monday night.

Youths attacked troops with stones and bottles Tuesday night. Special "snatch squads" of soldiers raced into the crowds in an attempt to grab ringleaders.

Romney Wife Holds Lead

DETROIT (UPI) — Lenore Romney held a steady but thin lead Tuesday night in her battle for the Michigan Republican nomination to oppose two-term Senator Philip Hart in November. She is the wife of U.S. Secretary of Housing and Urban Development George Romney, a former governor of Michigan.

'Hardsite' Heir to Safeguard

New Missile Plan Hatched

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The U.S. Army has already begun work on another anti-ballistic missile system, this one called "Hardsite," to succeed the Safeguard ABM if it should become obsolete, it was learned Tuesday.

The new system — now in what the army calls the "hot idea stage" — would be dedicated exclusively to defending Minuteman missiles against a Soviet pre-emptive strike.

It would consist of smaller and cheaper radars and computers than those being used by the Safeguard system. But its total expense would be as great, if not greater, than the estimated $6 to $10 billion for Safeguard because it would require more components.

The existence of the Hardsite system was disclosed April 23 in secret testimony by army research and development officials before the House appropriations committee. The testimony was censored and released as part of a thick volume on defence appropriations late last month. Opponents of the ABM called it to the attention of newsmen Tuesday.

★ ★ ★

Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield, meantime, endorsed a proposed ban on expansion of the Safeguard to new sites, but made it clear he would not support any effort to hinder development of the ABM at the two existing locations.

The army has already spent $6 million on Hardsite and has asked congress this year for $58 million to accelerate work on the system.

Dr. J. B. Gilstein, director of the project, said the system would consist of radars, data processors and high-speed sprint missiles. Each of these units would defend "a smaller portion of the battlefield than now assigned to the Safeguard system, whereas the Safeguard now defends a squadron at a time," he said.

"By being given the assignment to handle a smaller portion of the battlefield, the whole engagement becomes easier for the technology to handle and, at the same time,

Despite Delays

Hope Glimmers In Postal Talks

OTTAWA (CP) — A rosy speck glimmered from the gray expanse of the postal dispute Tuesday but negotiators will have to wait until next Monday before they can try to nurse it into a glow.

"It's the first time we've had a discussion like that in a long time," reported Roger Decarie, co-chairman of the Council of Postal Unions, following a 1½-hour meeting with treasury board negotiators in the morning.

A further meeting, however, will not be held until the start of next week. Intervening on Thursday will be a hearing by the public services staff relations board into a council charge that the post office has illegally locked out employees in retaliation for rotating strike activity.

Discussion Tuesday involved the job security issue on which the unions have claimed they must have satisfaction before any settlement of the 11-month dispute can be reached.

A principal concern for the unions has been that work performed by their membership in the past should continue to be done by them and not shifted to other bargaining units in the post office as a result of reorganizations.

Strike action, meanwhile, was confined to Kitchener, Ont., and Baie Comeau, Que.

Coast Ravaged

Twister Kills 9 in France

BORDEAUX, France (Reuters) — A tornado ravaged the coast of southwest France Tuesday, killing at least nine persons and injuring 29.

Another 11 persons were reported missing.

It was not known if any foreigners were among preliminary casualty lists. Fourteen persons were reported badly injured.

The tornado began as a 15-minute thunderstorm accompanied by strong winds Tuesday afternoon. It caused havoc along the coast of the Landes and Gironde regions, then howled inland.

Nixon Headline Flashed to Jury

Colonist-Los Angeles Times Service

The shaggy-haired cultist then stroked his bearded chin and smiled pleasantly at three of his "girls" — co-defendants Susan Atkins, Patricia Krenwinkel and Leslie Van Houten.

By the time the resulting legal problem had been handled, Superior Court Judge Charles Older had questioned each juror individually and had sentenced defence attorney Daye Shinn to three nights in jail for contempt of court.

The jurist did not say what effect, if any, he thought the incident might have on the trial of Manson and the others for murder, but the defence indicated a motion for a mistrial may be made today.

The disruption developed just when it appeared the court had successfully manoeuvred past the problem created by President Nixon's remarks about the case in Denver Monday.

Nixon said Manson was "guilty, directly or indirectly, of eight murders without reason," then amended his remarks in Washington to say he had not intended to comment on Manson's guilt or innocence.

Despite the president's later word, however, defence attorneys used his initial comments as grounds for motions for dismissal of charges, a mistrial, a continuance, an investigation and censure of Nixon.

All were denied Tuesday morning.

Older explained he had ordered sheriff's deputies to take special precautions to avoid exposure of the jury to Nixon's statement.

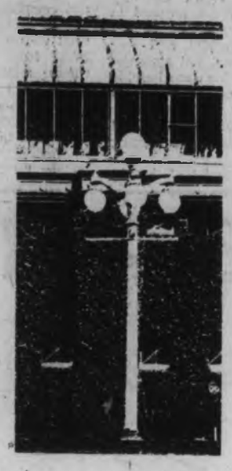

Bailiffs whitened windows of the jury's bus, chose a special route to and from the hotel where the panel is sequestered to avoid newsstands and made certain jurors did not have access to

The Crystal

Tarzan Once Swam Here

By BILL THOMAS
First of three parts

● The Crystal Garden recreational complex was the product of a compromise between the city of Victoria and the Canadian Pacific Railways in 1923. It has been the subject of great controversy and acrimony between the city and the CPR all its life and it seems that even in its death throes the Crystal Garden will be the centre of even more bitter controversy.

In this three-part series the history of the Crystal Garden will be covered, and also the widely divergent views expressed by civic officials, aldermen, and others will be explored to determine if there is any hope of preserving this city landmark, and if so, what the costs might be.

The marriage between the city of Victoria and the CPR, which gave birth to the Crystal Garden in 1925, goes back to the turn of the century.

Harry Barnard was mayor in 1904 and 1905, and it was he who put to the citizens the dramatic plan which led to the construction of the causeway and the demolition of the wooden bridge which served the James Bay district.

This was the plan that proposed the pumping of silt from the Inner Harbor to fill the swamp area between Government Street, Humbolt Street and Douglas Street. It would cover the mud flats that then stretched to the edge of the St. Ann's Academy grounds. The land created on the two acres, later occupied by the Crystal Garden, was to be used as a garbage dump for the city's 25,000 residents.

The city fathers also agreed to provide the CPR with free water and exemption from land and improvement taxes for a period of 15 years. In turn, the CPR was to build a hotel on the reclaimed land which was to cost no less than $300,000 and to keep it open year round for 50 years.

The hotel ended up costing $1,500,000 and it is still open.

The Empress opened June 20, 1908. Booming business produced another 100 rooms in 1911, and in 1928, the north wing of 345 rooms was added.

In 1923, the city fathers suddenly realized that the 15-year-old free water and taxes agreement was at an end.

It was now that the wheeling and dealing which has marked almost all subsequent negotiations between the city and the CPR began.

Right behind the Empress was a rat-infested garbage dump, part of which had been laid out as a baseball field with seats for up to 1,500 spectators. Various city business groups had tried and failed to make the stadium a success with both baseball and lacrosse.

It was this stadium and the garbage dump that the city used as its wild card in the poker game negotiations that produced the Crystal Garden.

In an 11-page, wordy legal document Mayor Reg Hayward fixed the taxes on the Empress Hotel and its land at a flat $15,000 a year, with an extra $5,000 for city water. In return, the CPR agreed to build the Crystal Garden on the city-owned two acres. It was to cost no less than $200,000, and the CPR was to operate what was legally described as "an amusement centre" for 20 years, with the right to renew for a further 20 years.

The CPR was told "the same shall be finally completed, ready for operation, on or before the first day of December, 1925."

The city fathers went flat out in an effort to sell the public on the deal, and on December 29, 1923 the Amusement Bylaw passed 2,909 to 352.

Even then, there was a group headed by one citizen, John Dean, who was convinced the whole deal was a giveaway.

Almost everything about the Crystal Garden that was a source of civic pride in its day has become a headache. The name Crystal Garden is probably derived from the fact that the amusement centre, as it was originally named, had a glass roof not unlike that of the Crystal Palace in London. The CPR retained architect Frank Rattenbury, who had been responsible for the design of the legislative buildings, the Empress Hotel, and a number of prominent Victoria family homes.

The plan called for a salt water swimming pool 150 feet long and 40 feet wide, two ballrooms, and a theatre, and of course, the glass roof.

Most of the features that were eulogized when the Crystal Garden was opened June 25, 1925, have come back to haunt the city fathers.

Writing about the event in 1968, former alderman Archie Wills reminisced "it turned out to be one of the greatest celebrations in Victoria's long history. Faith Robson was the queen and her princesses were Bertha Ross, Grace Macrimmon, Sara Grogan, Audrey Bennett, and Theodora Service."

Wills went on to describe the crowning of the queen by Lieutenant Governor Walter Nicol, who opened the door to the Garden with a special key, after which guests sat down to a $5 plate luncheon.

In those days the Crystal enjoyed its best public relations ever. There are numerous clippings boasting about the largest enclosed salt water pool in the world. Johnny Weismuller, better known as Tarzan, swam in the pool, along with a great many other stars. The Crystal Garden gained an international reputation as a convention centre, and when the first 20 years' agreement expired, the CPR was enthusiastic about renewing the lease. That was in 1944.

This time, the city, in negotiation with the CPR raised the payments to the city from the $15,000 negotiated in 1923 to $44,000 and the Crystal was taken over for another 20 years.

By the time 1964 came around and it was time to negotiate another 20-year agreement, the CPR had cooled to the idea of renewing the lease because the company needed funds to develop the Empress. When it was taken over officially on January 1, 1965, the buildings were valued at $425,000 with estimates on the worth of the land bringing the total to $600,000.

The CPR had convenanted to devote net profits "which it receives from the amusement centre over and above operating expenses, due allowance and provision for maintainence, repairs, insurance, interest on investment at the rate of 6 per cent per annum, and reasonable allowance for depreciation, to such betterments or improvements as will in the opinion of the company, add to the attractions of the amusement centre."

The CPR's interest in the building may have waned, but the company's interest in the site did not. The controversy surrounding the building was only just beginning.

Detour Opens Soon

A section of Patricia Bay highway will be closed for several months, beginning about Aug. 15, for road widening work.

A B.C. highways department spokesman said the affected section is between Royal Oak Avenue and Falaise Crescent.

Service roads detouring around the closed section have been built and will be paved before they are put into use, he said.

The service roads run from Royal Oak Avenue to Quadra and from West Saanich Road to the open section of the highway opposite Royal Oak burial park.

The spokesman said the exact date of the closure depends on when the paving of the service roads is completed.

Tree Savers Not Satisfied

An alternative plan to save some trees on Begbie Street from being felled in a road improvement program was recommended Tuesday to Victoria city council, but a spokesman for Save-the-Trees campaigners said later the solution was not acceptable.

If council endorses a traffic committee recommendation, all trees on the north side of Begbie between Belmont and Stanley will remain and the encroachment on Stadacona Park will be more limited than originally planned.

According to the city's original scheme, all trees along both sides of Begbie were to be cut down to make room for the widening of Begbie — a part of the Johnson - Begbie - Shelbourne extension approved at the city's capital budget referendum in April.

In a six-page brief, Morris listed 10 objections and proposed as an alternative the conversion of Fernwood into a two-lane one-way artery feeding south into the city from Hillside.

He objected to a lack of information on the project prior to the referendum and told committee the capital budget would have been defeated had taxpayers known the details of the city's proposed traffic schemes.

Following Morris' presentation, Victoria Fire Chief Eric Simmons told the committee that turning Fernwood into a one-way street would cut off certain sections of the city from effective fire protection.

Mayor Courtney Haddock said the city's traffic engineering department had worked on these plans for years. There was no better plan, he said.

Morris said in an interview Tuesday night the committee meeting had been a "perversion of justice," and the outcome an unacceptable compromise.

"From the very moment we entered the room, we sensed that we were being allowed to present our brief only so that the city could give the impression that justice had been done," Morris said.

The city was disregarding the views of the taxpayers in its planning for Victoria, Morris said. Aldermen and residents who appeared before the committee, he said, had been "mesmerized by the figures and statistics" thrown at them by experts.

"We feel the taxpayers, not the civil servants, should dictate the way their city is to be developed," Morris said.

"I have been polite and constitutional so far during this campaign. Obviously this carries no weight at city hall. To be heard, taxpayers have to be tough and rude, and have a lawyer with them," he said.

Dayliner Issue Flunks

Victoria city council's Group B committee refused to take action Tuesday on a request by Mayor Courtney Haddock to submit a number of recommendations to the Canadian Transport Commission's hearing today regarding the CPR's application to abandon the Esquimalt and Nanaimo Dayliner run between Victoria and Nanaimo.

The decision to disregard the mayor's request was made at a closed meeting.

Ald. Clyde Savage said in an interview following the meeting the committee had no alternative but to refuse action because it had no jurisdiction over the matter.

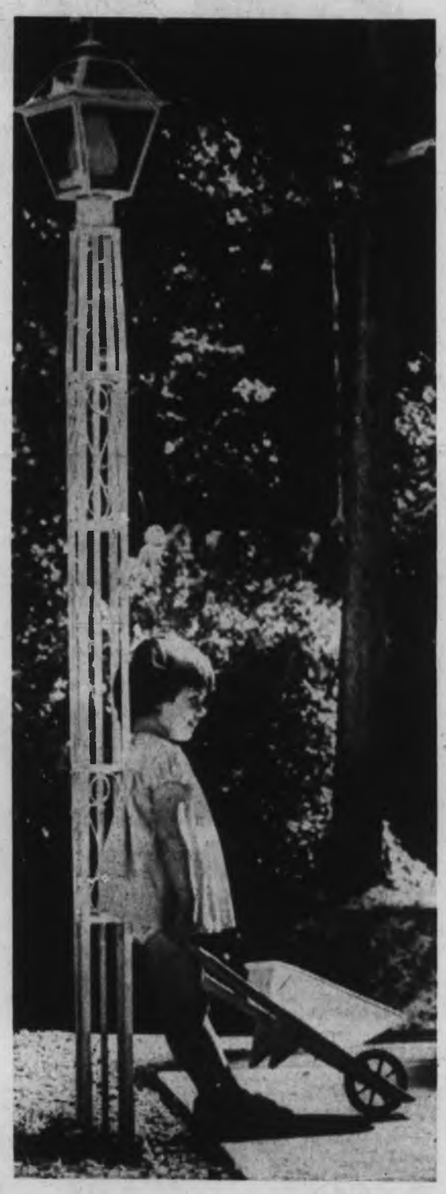

★ ★ ★

"This committee cannot commit council," he said.

Haddock, who left the meeting shortly after the issue came up, had said Monday he would seek committee's approval to send City Solicitor Terry O'Grady to the hearing with three suggestions.

Track rights should be transferred to a company which would operate the line as a tourist attraction if CP receives permission to discontinue the run.

Should permission be denied, O'Grady was to ask the hearing that CP modernize tracks and equipment and adjust the train schedule to coincide with ferry and bus departures along the route.

Pollen Idea

Pocket Parks Urged

Victoria Ald. Peter Pollen wants the city to purchase two small parcels of land and turn them into mini-parks.

The city's parks committee Tuesday endorsed a motion by Pollen asking city council to negotiate with the owners of the properties.

One lot is situated opposite the Memorial Arena at Blanshard and Discovery. Pollen told the committee it was assessed at $6,400. The other parcel of land, at the corner of Fort, Pandora and Belmont (the Oak Bay Junction) has an abandoned service station on it. Pollen said he didn't know the assessment value of this lot.

"These lots have very, very limited commercial value. The one opposite the arena has trees that are hundreds of years old. This is the type of land we should buy and save for pocket parks," Pollen told the committee.

City Comptroller Jim Bramley cautioned committee not to go too fast on the matter. He said there was no money for the acquisition of such properties in this year's budget.

Working Poor Ignored

By DON COLLINS

There was no bitterness, really. But the disappointment was unmistakable.

It was there Tuesday in the tone of an ardent trade unionist who found it necessary to say that organized labor, for the most part, had not been interested in his group of "working poor."

There are 130 of them in all — employees of four Victoria private hospitals — and they have won a long struggle by entering the labor movement with a union of their own.

This is not because they wanted their own union, says Jim Beaubien — but because no union to which they turned seemed to want them.

"They never wanted to be a separate union. They wanted to affiliate with another union, but they found the door closed to them," says Beaubien, who happens to be a member of the Hospital Employees Union — a union to which the group turned for help.

Beaubien, who has guided the group all the way to formation of the new Private Hospital and General Service Employees' Union, doesn't exclude his own union when making his accusations.

Because of this and the work he has done on behalf of the new union, he says: "I have jeopardized my own job over this thing."

It is a breach of his union's constitution to actively promote another union working in the same field. And if his union suspended him for this he would lose his job at St. Joseph's Hospital where he is a technician. Union membership is a term of employment.

But this, he feels, could be a "two-edged sword." By closing the door on people wanting to be organized the union could be violating its own constitution, he says.

The private hospital employees began trying to interest labor in their cause four years ago and failure to do so had left many of their number disenchanted with unionism.

The latest drive began early this year when one of those interested approached Beaubien because of his experience in such matters.

He had served as chairman of the 500-member Hospital Employees' Union local at St. Joseph's and was a former delegate to the Victoria Labor Council.

The union grew out of numerous meetings held at Beaubien's home at 2663 Fernwood. Later, some churches gave halls over to meetings in response to a special appeal.

The group had no funds — most earn the minimum wage of $1.50 per hour — and the churches had agreed to provide the halls rent-free.

Beaubien says the battle was not won easily. He claims there was harassment of some of those active in organizing the union and that several employees were dismissed for this reason.

Such charges concerning two women who worked at Sandringham Private Hospital will be subject of a B.C. Labor Relations Board hearing Aug. 11.

Beaubien

Negotiations for a first contract have just started with this hospital, and have been in progress in the other three.

Beaubien says that when he first approached his own union with the plight of the private hospital workers he was told it was too busy with its own negotiations to begin organizing.

"Now they've announced that they're going to start organizing private hospitals and nursing homes in the fall, but that's something that didn't come up until this thing of ours was well along the road," he says.

The labor council was approached and it in turn presented the case to a representative of the Canadian Labor Congress. All the while, months were passing by and nothing was happening.

Beaubien says he finally sent a telegram to a CLC official at last May's CLC convention in Edmonton "where the usual platitudes were flying around."

The result was that the Canadian Union of Public Employees came into the picture.

The new union recently received some financial assistance from CUPE, biggest of Canadian unions, and members have now voted to affiliate with this body.

Beaubien says the long wait for such a development is a symptom of the ills that he feels bother the labor movement. He believes labor is guilty of dodging self-criticism and spends too much time and money in jurisdictional disputes and too little on helping the unorganized.

He sees a need for more welfare money in the operation of the private hospitals and nursing homes and adds,

"The people who work in these places at $1.50 an hour are subsidizing the operation. The rest of society should be ashamed of itself."

Beaubien, 36, the father of seven, says he stepped into the picture in the beginning to counsel the workers and ended up acting as a sort of business agent and chief negotiator.

The new union wants rates equal to those paid in acute care hospitals and is asking for wages ranging from $2.05 to $3.56 an hour for the various job classifications.

"I didn't intend to stay on like this in the first place," Beaubien says, "I'll be glad to turn it over to the other now."

Crash Hurts City Couple

A Victoria couple was taken to St. Joseph's Hospital Monday night with multiple injuries received when their southbound sports car went off the road and rolled into a ditch on the Malahat near the cutoff to Shawnigan Lake, Colwood RCMP said.

Hospital authorities said Herbert Ford, 46, of 411 Kingston, is in fair to poor condition with multiple fractures to his neck and skull. They said his wife, Mary, 41, is in fair condition with fractured ribs and other undetermined injuries. RCMP said both were thrown clear of the car.
